

Definite Stand Is Taken by Cox On Liquor Issue

Deserts Wilson in Fight on Oregon Senator and Wins Applause in Portland by Allusions to Roosevelt.

By ROBERT B. SMITH. Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Special Wire. Portland, Ore., Sept. 13.—The liquor issue was still dominating Governor Cox's campaign in Oregon. He was heckled about it again and he found it necessary to amplify his Seattle statement by telling an audience here that as president he would enforce the law.

"How about the liquor question?" The crowd attempted to shout the heckler down, but Governor Cox insisted on answering the question.

"I understand," said the governor, "that some newspapers out here have lost their former interest in the league of nations. Apparently one of their readers is interested in a subject as dead as slavery. This is a country of free speech and you are entitled to know where I stand."

The question is one of law enforcement and in that connection I want to call attention to the fact that when I became governor of Ohio the saloons were closed on Sunday, front door and back door, for the first time in the history of the state.

"I have been surprised on coming into this great northwest country to find out here, where the great moral issue of peace through the league of nations has become a soul-absorbing question, that the opposition has been seeking to avoid the issue by setting up as a bugaboo the liquor question."

"So far the president is concerned, the 18th amendment is one of law enforcement. As governor of Ohio I enforced the law and as president of the United States, I shall continue to enforce all laws, regardless of what interests may be affected."

Deserts Wilson Fight. Governor Cox's voice was greatly improved today. The Portland crowd was one of the most enthusiastic he has had on the western trip. At least half a dozen times the crowd was on its feet cheering the governor, especially when he talked about progressivism and Theodore Roosevelt.

The democratic candidate definitely lined up today on the side of Senator George E. Chamberlain, arch foe of the Wilson administration ever since he started the country during the war with Germany by declaring the war department had "ceased to function."

Chamberlain introduced the governor to the Portland audience, and Governor Cox responded by warmly praising the senator's war record.

"No man in congress did more to mobilize the resources and power of the United States during the war than Senator Chamberlain," said Governor Cox. "He will be tremendously helpful in Washington in solving the great problems of readjustment."

Uses Roosevelt's Name. Governor Cox's endorsement of Senator Chamberlain set Oregon democracy aglow in view of President Wilson's past efforts to defeat the senator for re-election. It is generally conceded here by republicans as well as democrats that Mr. Chamberlain is likely to be re-elected. The governor avoided mention of President Wilson and his administration.

The Ohio governor used the name of Theodore Roosevelt frequently in his speeches and it never failed to draw tremendous applause from the crowds. He assailed the republican "senatorial oligarchy" with more vigor than ever and told his audiences that he was waging the same kind of a fight that Roosevelt waged in 1912, with "intrenched reaction."

The crowds enjoyed the governor's humorous thrusts at Senator Harding's front porch campaign. "You perhaps have noticed in the newspapers that the front porch campaign has ended," said Governor Cox. "I am too modest to tell you who ended it."

The governor left Portland for Boise, Idaho, at 5 o'clock.

John's brother, Henry, was one of the group. The body was not recovered for over 24 hours. It was said that John jumped into the hole and evidently was seized with a cramp. Wife Returns to Find Hubby Wedded Again

New York, Sept. 13.—Adolph Grassgreen must answer in the Washington Heights court to a charge of having too many wives. The complainant is Mrs. Lily Grassgreen of 516 West 156th street, w/o. No. 1. She was lost in the war zones for five years, and returned from what was to have been a two months' visit to her parents in Germany to find that Mrs. Mary Grassgreen had taken her place. For a year she watched her husband's old haunts and finally saw him about to enter a cigar store at Broadway and 156th street.

She there caused his arrest on a charge of bigamy. According to Mrs. Grassgreen No. 1, she was married to Grassgreen in a synagogue in Pitt street, near Delancey street, in 1907. She left in 1914 for Germany, where she was held without communication with her husband during the war blockade of the central powers.

On her return to New York a year ago she began a search for her husband, which led her from the bureau of licenses, where she found he had taken out a second marriage license in 1909, to the synagogue in which his wedding was celebrated, where she found the record of Grassgreen's second marriage.
