Qmah Realtor Predicts Building Boom by Spring

Prospects of a bumper corn and wheat crop, coupled with the coming presidential election, should bring relief to the stringent money market and start a boom in building in Omaha before next spring, according to J. L. Schroeder of the Schroeder Investment company, who declares there is an acute shortage of six and seven room homes in the city. George H. Schroeder, jr., is now actively engaged in the realty business with the firm, Mr. Schroeder announces. Lighting Fixtures—Burgess-Granden Co.—Adv.

Declares Peace Pact Treaty of Vengeful Force

Wilson's League Would Rob People of Freedom, Says Raymond Robins at Central City.

(Continued From Page One.) "I want to give you the view of a man who voted the democratic ticket for 28 years," Colonel Maher said, "and who this year will vote the republican ticket from top to bottom. The covenant of the league of nations is the most infamous document ever framed. Any man who is overseas, and I was there, is certain to want to end the curse of war. I say this document of Woodrow Wilson means endless bloodshed to uphold its many wrongs. You and your children will have to give your blood and money to carry on the conflicts in all parts of the world if Mr. Cox is elected president."

Maher Creates Sensation.

A sensation was caused at Schuyler by a speech of Col. John H. Maher of Lincoln against the democratic party of which he has been an important figure. Colonel Maher made the trip through Nebraska with Colonel Robins and Governor McKelvie.

Wilson League Would Rob Nation of Its Freedom

Central City, Neb., Sept. 18.—(Special Telegram.)—"We are in the heart of the greatest campaign since the Civil war," Raymond Robins told crowds here this morning and at Columbus this afternoon. "The United States constitution and the right of the American people to live their own lives in their own way, free from control by any foreign assembly, such as the league of nations, is at stake. Senator Harding and the republican party stand for America first and America free."

Wilson League Would Rob Nation of Its Freedom

Central City, Neb., Sept. 18.—(Special Telegram.)—"We are in the heart of the greatest campaign since the Civil war," Raymond Robins told crowds here this morning and at Columbus this afternoon. "The United States constitution and the right of the American people to live their own lives in their own way, free from control by any foreign assembly, such as the league of nations, is at stake. Senator Harding and the republican party stand for America first and America free."

Hoped For Justice.

He is filling the engagements of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, jr., who was called back to a special session of the New York legislature, as perhaps the closest friend of Theodore Roosevelt. He is presenting the progressive view of the national issues to crowds whose enthusiasm denotes certain republican success in Nebraska.

"In common with the majority of the men and women in this audience in this city and state and nation, I hoped for a treaty of justice that would make for peace and restoration of the normal life of the people of Europe from the council chambers of Paris," he said. "I also hoped with all fair-minded men and women everywhere that there might be some agreement, association, call it what you will, of the free peoples of the world that would give some reasonable guarantee against another catastrophe such as that one which has just bathed the world in blood. "The treaty and league of nations, emerged from these secret councils in the French capital assumed the character of a treaty of vengeful force and economic imperialism containing the American people more than any similar convention in the history of the world.

A Military Alliance.

"The league of nations appeared under analysis not as a league of peace to free peoples to serve humanity, but in effect a military alliance that would put the men and money of America under obligations to serve bankrupt governments in maintaining the economic imperialism of European diplomacy."

Limitation on Free Speech.

He emphasized the fact that the provision of the Clayton act, called by Mr. Gompers the "magna charta of American labor," which provided that the labor of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce, had been amended by the secret council in Paris to read "that the labor of a human being is not merely a commodity or article of commerce, and the further fact that Mr. Gompers' bill of rights of American labor which contained declarations against involuntary servitude limiting child labor and other provisions in accordance with American labor standards was overwhelmingly beaten on the floor."

Mr. Robins took up the question of constitutional guarantees providing for free speech, free press and the right of peaceful assemblage. He discussed the organs and limitations of the second constitutional rights and denounced the violation of constitutional guarantees by Attorney General Palmer and Postmaster General Burleson.

Discusses H. C. L.

He referred with appreciation to the admirable declarations on this subject contained in Senator Harding's speech of acceptance. Mr. Robins also discussed the high cost of living, devoting his remarks to four elements involved in the present high cost of the necessities of life. These he defined as, first, domestic profiteering; second, extravagance in governmental expenditures; third, European economic imperialism and taxes for international bankers and, fourth, the economic deficit due to the war and destruction of the world war.

Cites Prices in Australia.

He referred to the prices of food and clothing in the commonwealth of Australia and cited the following list of prices generally prevailing there 90 days ago: Refined sugar, 7 cents a pound; best cuts of beef, 18 cents a pound; mutton, 13 cents a pound; pork, 30 cents a pound; potatoes, 4 cents a pound; onions, 5 cents a pound; two-pound loaf of bread, 9 cents; all-wool custom-made suits, $35. He said that this low cost of living in Australia was due to government's safeguarding adopted there at the beginning of the war. He referred to Senator Harding's pledge against profiteering, quoting from his acceptance speech "in all sincerity I promise the prevention of unreasonable profits. We challenge profiteering with all the moral force and the legal powers of government and people."

First Week of King Ak's Reign Is Over

(Continued From Page One.) will see a crowd of visitors this week which will surpass the biggest crowds of past years. Omaha is prepared to house and feed the visitors. That department of the affair has not been overlooked. Bureaus established for the purpose have great lists of vacant rooms in private homes and rooming houses, all ready for the visitor. Out-of-town people will have to worry about a place to stay in King Ak-Sar-Ben's great capital city even during the week of that monarch's coronation. The Hill hotel, a hostelry with nearly 300 rooms, has just opened, adding its equipment to the city's large list of hotels. "Let 'em come, and welcome. We're all ready," is the word. Ak-Sar-Ben den is the center of mystery now. Within its historic walls stand the floats of the great electrical parade and of the daylight tercentenary parade, magnificent floats built regardless of expense, built for but one view by the unnumbered thousands that will see the parades. Prepare for Coronation. In the den there is ceaseless activity by hundreds of workmen and actors in the great coronation spectacle. The coronation of King Ak-Sar-Ben XXVI is to be a scene surpassing in splendor any previous coronation, it is said. Those who have seen the wonders of costuming and staging of previous coronations profess not to see how this is possible. The first parade this year will be electrical, the parade of 10,000 incandescents, which will move through the streets Wednesday night. Its route will be the same as in other years, except that it will extend its march west on Farnam to Twenty-fourth street, south to Harney and thence east to Sixteenth street. The floats will be dark from Twenty-fourth and Harney streets to Twentieth and Harney streets. Over all the rest of the route they will be illuminated. Famous Love Stories. The theme of the parade this year is of universal interest, "Famous Love Stories." The daylight parade, Thursday afternoon, will celebrate the landing of the Pilgrims in this country in 1620. Episodes connected with that historic event will be depicted in 22 floats. And then the coronation and the ball, Friday night, the city's greatest social event and most splendid pageant! Today a large list of new attractions will arrive at the carnival grounds and this place of merry-making will be in full blast all this week, starting tomorrow. "Who will be the king of Ak-Sar-Ben and who will be his lovely consort, the queen?"

Who Will Be Crowned.

These are questions that are foremost in everybody's mind except in the minds of the king and queen themselves and a few of the inner circle of the court of Ak-Sar-Ben, who know. This secret will not become known to the general public of the kingdom of Quivera until the night of the coronation. For it is a tradition of the realm which saith that these two questions shall not be answered until the coronation of the new monarch and his queen. And even the ladies of the court, who know for days or weeks ahead, have never been known to tell. Thus do they belie the ancient proverb which saith that if thou wouldst keep a secret tell it not to a woman.

Benkelman Hatchery Purchased by State

Lincoln, Sept. 18.—(Special.)—The state of Nebraska purchased the Benkelman fish hatchery for $7,500 from Harry Runyon. It consists of 33 acres of land with springs, ponds, dwelling house, hatching house, barn and sheds. Runyon will continue to live on the place and act as keeper for the state, at least until April 1, at a salary of $75 a month. The state now owns three hatcheries—one at Gretra, one at Valentine and the third at Benkelman. The last legislature appropriated $15,000 to buy the Benkelman hatchery, and for its maintenance and improvements. The game and fish division expects to spend $500 to $1,000 this fall on ponds, banks and overflow ditches. No decision has been reached as to the location of the new fish nursery in Antelope county, for which the legislature provided a fund of $2,500.

Congressman Flays Democrats for Waste

Lincoln, Sept. 18.—(Special.)—The democratic administration has spent and wasted over $300,000,000 a year, Congressman Frank Reavis charged in an address before the Lincoln Harding-Coolidge club. The speaker urged a treaty instead of a league of nations. "A league of nations is not the issue of the campaign. The issue of the campaign is to restore the government to the people and get rid of Woodrow Wilson as quick as God will let us," he said. "It will take 100 years to appraise the damage that was brought upon the United States by Woodrow Wilson," Congressman Reavis declared. Mr. Reavis charges that President Wilson, through his actions and by various stands during the war, gained for the United States the enmity of several of the "largest of the European countries. Again flaying the democratic party, Congressman Reavis said that in nominating Franklin D. Roosevelt, the democrats merely nominated a "name" for vice president.
