

Harding Talks To Foreigners On Americanism

Senator Delivers Address on Dangers of Hyphenated Citizenship to Delegations From New York and Chicago.

Marion, O., Sept. 19.—Americanism, its meaning to the foreign-born citizen, and the dangers of a hyphenated citizenship, were the subjects of an address delivered from his front porch today by delegations of foreign-born citizens by Senator Harding, republican candidate for president.

The delegations, comprising several hundred, came from New York, Chicago and cities of the northwest and Cleveland.

While declaring that "it is not possible and ought not to be expected that Americans of foreign birth shall stifle love for kinfolk in the lands from which they came," the senator asserted that "we are unalterably against any present or future hyphenated Americanism."

Senator Harding was interrupted many times during his address by applause, as he struck sympathetic notes. Touching upon foreign relations, the senator declared that "nothing helpful has come from the wilful assumption to direct the affairs of Europe," but that, "on the contrary, the mistaken policy of interference has broken the drawstrings of good sense and spilled bad counsel and bad manners all over the world."

Raps "Meddling Abroad."

"Meddling abroad," he asserted, "tends to make Americans forget that they are Americans, and to arouse the old and bitter feelings of race or former nationality or foreign ancestry in the hearts of those who ought never to be forced to turn their hearts away from undivided loyalty and interest given to America's first duty."

Warning against hyphenism, Senator Harding asserted that "the time might come when a group or groups of men and women of foreign birth or foreign parentage, not organized for the interest of America, but organized around a resentment against our government, might press by propaganda and political hyphenism upon our government to serve their own interests, rather than the interests of all America. "It is not beyond possibility," he continued, "that the day might come when a God forbid it—when an organized hyphenated vote in American politics might have the balance of voting power to elect our government. If this were true, America might be delivered out of the hands of her citizenship, and her control might be transferred to a foreign power."

Senator Harding attended a reunion of Marion county Knights of Pythias of which he is a member, at a park here this afternoon and made a brief speech on "Fraternalism."

Urges Caution. Senator Harding said he not only believed in fraternity of citizenship, but a fraternity of nations, but that in playing America's role, caution should be exercised. He alluded to efforts to have America accept a mandate over Armenia and said "while I want America to do its share, I do not want somebody else across the sea to tell us what to do or how to do it."

He declared France and England had withdrawn their troops from Armenia in an effort to force America to accept a mandate for Armenia. "While I want America to do its share, I do not want somebody else across the sea to tell us what to do or how to do it."

Sham Battle Planned for American Legion Convention. Cleveland, Sept. 19.—Three thousand "regulars" of the United States army will come to Cleveland to join 1,000 veterans of the famous Thirtieth, or "Buckeye," division in re-fighting the battle of the Argonne, as a spectacular feature in connection with the national convention of the American Legion here September 27, 28 and 29.

This stunt, with "zero hours," barrage regulation and the same precision of maneuvers which won the American expeditionary force the admiration of the world's military critics during the great war will be staged on the two days preceding the convention's opening, according to L. S. Conolly, colonel of the new One Hundred and Forty-third regiment, national guard, formerly of the Cleveland Grays and a major in the war.

The "regulars" will be members of the first division, who went through the battles in France from the start of America's participation to the "cease firing" of the armistice.

South Side Arrest Former Police Sergeant On Boozè Charge

Released Upon Protestation of Innocence and Presented With Gifts as Token of Faithful Service.

Michael McCarthy, for 26 years a member of the Omaha police department and for the past five years sergeant at the South Side station, who resigned Tuesday, was arrested at noon Saturday by Chief of Police Eberstein at the South Side station and booked on a charge of illegal possession of liquor and bootlegging.

Chief Eberstein, who in company with Police Commissioner Ringer was visiting the station, said he noticed a rather large bulge in McCarthy's right coat pocket and upon investigation found the bulge was a quart of liquor. Peter Jolly, chief of police of the local Cudahy packing plant, said he noticed the liquor first and told Eberstein.

McCarthy was taken to the desk and booked and afterward taken up to the locker room, where he protested his innocence and asserted he was being jobbed and that the bottle was placed in his pockets by an "enemy." After a consultation between Commissioner Ringer, Chief Eberstein and Captain Briggs, McCarthy was ordered to stand up and Chief Eberstein presented the former sergeant with a handsome all leather traveling bag, a pair of diamond-studded cuff links and a gold tie holder as a token of the esteem in which he was held by the members of the department and for the efficient record attained in the 26 years of his connection with the department.

The prisoner, with tears in his eyes, expressed his appreciation of the gifts and his regrets for leaving the department. He stoutly denied that he had ever carried a bottle of liquor on his person outside of that taken from prisoners arrested for violation of the prohibition laws. McCarthy's story greatly impressed Commissioner Ringer and Chief Eberstein and the charge against the former sergeant was dismissed.

Suspect in Bomb Plot Is Arrested

The detonation took place. The writer declared the three men seemed to be in a jubilant mood. Brailovsky, police said, admitted being at the place mentioned, but placed his presence there an hour later than the letter charged. He denied all knowledge of the explosion. He explained his presence in the financial district by stating that he wished to dispose of some jewelry boxes there.

Refuses to Give Names.

Brailovsky further admitted, the police said, that he talked to three men there. He said he knew only one of the men, but the man whom he knew was acquainted with the other two. "My race," he is quoted as saying, "never divulges the name of another person without that person's consent and so I cannot enlighten you."

Firm in their belief that the disaster was caused by a time bomb planted by a band of anarchists who were implicated in the mail bomb plots in June, 1919, Department of Justice investigators have centered their efforts in seeking the identity of the person or persons who deposited five radical circulars in a mail box near the scene just a few minutes before the explosion.

These circulars, printed on cheap paper and signed "Anarchist Fighters," threatened "sure death for all of you," unless the "political prisoners" were freed. They bear a striking likeness, Chief Flynn pointed out, to those found in the investigations of June, 1919. Meanwhile, police investigators were continuing their attention trying to establish the identity of the driver of the dilapidated wagon which was abandoned near the J. P. Morgan & Co. bank a few minutes before the explosion, and which is believed to have contained the infernal machine.

Says U. S. People Demand Change

Country Will Soon Resume Path of Well-Ordered Government, Hughes Thinks.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 19.—Charles E. Hughes, in opening the republican campaign in New Jersey at a state rally here today, declared that Maine, with an unmistakable emphasis, points to the verdict of the country; that the people demand a change and with fresh courage "we shall resume the path of well-ordered government, of prosperity and progress."

A general election, said Mr. Hughes, "is the great asset, the time when administration is brought to an accounting. We are not a censorious people, but levity in passing judgment upon officers of government and political parties ill-becomes a democracy. The best security of the future is not in the promise of platform, but in the certainty of rebuke for maladministration and in the checking of harmful tendencies by the displacement of those responsible for them and the refusal to invest with power those who would continue on in error. We endeavor to appreciate accurately the mischief, not simply to be critical but to point the remedy and the future course."

"It is idle to trust those who have been in power during the war period with the same outlays, its difference to expenses, its reckoning in billions as we formerly reckoned in millions, with this duty of economy of retrenchment," Mr. Hughes said. "Their experience unfits them for it. It is equally idle to expect adequate results from those who would follow the same traditions and have the same fealties."

Discussing foreign relations, Mr. Hughes recalled the presidential demand for a partisan congressional victory in 1918, which he characterized as "the extraordinary return for the zeal and sacrifice of republicans in support of the administration in the conduct of the war."
