Warsaw Government Representatives Fear That Soviets Seek Delay to Mass Armies Against Them.

By PARKE BROWN. Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable, Copyright, 1920.

Riga, Sept. 20 .- Mutual mistrust already threatens to make the Polish-Russian conference at Riga another Minsk fiasco. The representatives of the Warsaw government are almost unanimous in the conviction that the tions in order to continue their military operations until they reach the line giving them the last acre of territory to which they have any pretext of claim.

Polish delegates say they are convinced that the parleys will be broken off the moment the red armies are ready to make a new assault, and the Trotzky-Lenine agents say they will not agree to give Po-land certain territory on which they believe Poland has cast her eyes. In consequence neither delegation, 48 hours before the first session is scheduled to begin, sees any real prospect for the establishment of peace here. Before the eyes of the world the bolshevists have a decided strategic advantage. The Moscow party arrived here three days before the Poles, and ever since have been in-sisting that they are ready to get down to business immediately in a sincere effort to reach an agreement.

On the other hand, the Poles are compelled to bear complete responsibility for postponement of the opening session until Tuesday, their only basis for this request being the necessity for final revision of some points in their counter proposals.
