SLEEPY-TIME TALES THE TALE OF RUSTY WREN BY ARTHUR SCOTT BAILEY

CHAPTER XVII Help! Help! "Help, help!" Rusty Wren called loudly to his wife. "What's wrong?" she screamed. Since she was inside the house, and Rusty was outside, with Chippy, Jr., blocking the doorway, of course she was alarmed—for she couldn't see her husband. "This boy's stuck fast in our door," Rusty cried. "And you must help me move him." "Very well," she answered in a frightened tone. "But if we can't stir him, I don't know what we'll do." And she began to shriek. "Don't worry!" Rusty shouted. "Just say when you're ready." "I'm ready now," she replied. "One, two, three—all together!" Rusty Wren commanded. And he seized the head of Chippy, Jr., and began pulling as hard as he knew how. Chippy, Jr., at once let out a frightened cry. "Stop! Stop!" he begged. "I don't know what the trouble is, but I feel as if I should break in two!" "Well, well!" exclaimed Rusty Wren. And then to his wife he said: "Were you pushing or pulling?" "Pulling," she explained. "I was tugging on his coat-tails." "Ah! That was the trouble," Rusty told poor Chippy, Jr., who looked quite distressed. "I was trying to pull you out, and she was trying to pull you in. But you mustn't mind a little mistake like that." "Very well!" said Chippy, Jr., meekly. "But please don't do it again!"

Chippy, Jr., at Once Let Out a Frightened Cry.

And Rusty himself tumbled into the house and fell on top of the heap. As soon as they had picked themselves up, Rusty Wren and his wife and Chippy, Jr., looked at one another for a few moments without saying a single word. Mrs. Rusty was the first to break the silence—if a house may be said to be silent when there are six children in it, all clamoring for something to eat. "I knew we should have some sort of trouble if we took a stranger into our home," she wailed. "Why, what's the matter now?" Rusty inquired in surprise. "Matter?" she groaned. "Here's this great lot of a boy inside our house! And we'll never be able to get rid of him. Instead of his helping us to feed our children, we shall have to feed him! And now we are worse off than we ever were before." (Copyright, Grosset & Dunlap.)

Mr. Farmer and Ford Truck Owners

Grain Tanks for Ford Trucks

This is a sturdy farm body, designed especially for the Ford truck. It may be had in two sizes, either 47-inch, or 52-inch. Made of selected materials in a shop which has specialized in building wagons and contractors' supplies since 1897.

Illustration No. 1—Showing the Body Arranged for Hauling Grain

This body is designed especially for grain hauling, and easily holds from 70 to 80 bushels. It is 52 inches wide, 96 inches long and 36 inches high. Made of the best kiln-dried lumber, reinforced with heavy oak sills. Angle steel grain cleats make it absolutely grain tight. An ideal body for the farm.

Illustration No. 2—Showing the Sides Raised for Hauling Hogs.

Very rigid and durable. Each side composed of three panels, 14, 12 and 10 inches. They are held together by steel tie rods and oak cleats. The materials used in this body are very carefully selected. The floor is tongued and grooved, and is absolutely grain tight.

AN unusual opportunity to purchase truck bodies direct from the manufacturers at manufacturers' prices. These bodies are specially designed so that by slight adjustment can be fitted to any standard one-ton or ton and one-half truck. Combination grain and stock body—beautifully finished—best materials and assured durability.

It will pay you to buy one of these bodies for your future needs.

We know that you will wonder how we can sell them at this price. The answer—volume of production and purchasing power

Notice the Great Strength of Construction

The strength of a farm body lies principally in the sills, cross sills and floor. It is here that the greatest wear and the greatest strain comes. Notice the sturdiness of construction shown above. Four heavy cross sills, heavily bolted, resting on equally heavy "run sills" make this body unusually strong. The wood is all selected, kiln-dried material, and the floor boards are tongued and grooved, making it absolutely tight. The body is easily and quickly attached by the use of a common wrench, as there are no holes to bore in the frame of the truck. Just slip the "U"-bolts in front over the frame, and draw up the nuts; then put the two center bolts in the "run sills" through holes already provided in the frame of the truck, turn up the nuts, and your body is installed ready to slip in the side boards, end gates, and carry any load within the capacity of the truck.
