

Democrats Went To Frisco Meet On U. S. Taxpayers

Investigation Shows Men In Offices of Palmer and Meredith Attended Convention at Public Cost.

Chicago Tribune—Omaha Bee Leased Wire. Washington, Sept. 24.—How four assistants to Attorney General Palmer and the assistant to Secretary of Agriculture Meredith, both of them candidates for the democratic presidential nomination, found their way to San Francisco at the time of the democratic national convention on "official business" and at government expense was disclosed to the senate campaign fund investigating committee yesterday.

Vouchers were produced by the auditors of the Justice and Agriculture departments to show that these five government officials were in San Francisco throughout the democratic convention, returning to Washington immediately thereafter, and that their railroad expenses and subsistence were paid by the government on vouchers duly sworn to by the men themselves, who declared under oath that the nature of their business at the time of the San Francisco convention was "government business."

Occupied Drawing Room.

In one of the vouchers that of Attorney General Palmer's private secretary, was a Pullman charge from San Francisco to New York of $131, which members of the committee conjectured must have been for a drawing room, the auditor of the Department of Justice suggesting that this charge might have been for Attorney General Palmer himself, inasmuch as the man who made the voucher "always traveled with the attorney general."

The disclosures and apparent failure to develop any pressing government business in San Francisco at the time prompted Senator Reed, democratic member of the committee, to declare:

Five Officials Involved.

"If these men went to the San Francisco convention on government orders and at government expense, and were really not on government business, but the business of presidential candidates, they should be cashiered, and so should their superiors who approved the vouchers for these expenditures."

The five government officials involved in this testimony which the committee proposes to inquire into further, were the following:

Floyd R. Harrison, assistant to Secretary of Agriculture Meredith.

Frank K. Nebeker, assistant attorney general.

George M. Montrose, examiner of titles, Department of Justice, and private secretary to Attorney General Palmer.

J. Edgar Hoover, special assistant to the attorney general.

Another important witness of the day was Robert P. Scripps, editor of the Scripps newspapers, one of the sons of E. W. Scripps, master of the Scripps empire during the war after the decisions of the draft boards against his release from service had been appealed to Washington.

He testified that the Scripps newspapers were supporting Governor Cox and that he had recently been believed him to be more progressive than Senator Harding, and detailed to the committee how the company was sending every day to all of its clients, a page of matter devoted to the interest of the Cox campaign.

Exempted From Draft.

"Did Governor Cox have anything to do with getting you exempted from the draft?" Senator Reed asked him.

Scripps replied that he did not know of any, but admitted that he was exempted from the draft in 1917. He admitted that he had recently seen published the copy of a letter written by Governor Cox to the editor of one of the Scripps papers, which was forwarded to Washington and appears in the files of the War Department in the Scripps draft appeal case.

In this letter Mr. Cox made special plea in the interest of exemption for James G. Scripps, brother of Robert, stating that his retention to the Scripps news syndicate during the war was essential.

Philander P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education, called to explain circulation of democratic propaganda in "School Life," a government publication, admitted that an editorial favoring Governor Cox had been published, but that he had tried to stop its publication, when he discovered that it had been written by a new editor of the paper.

Mr. Claxton said that he had been away from Washington. When he returned he asked for the proof sheets of the paper. They were handed to him and he at once discovered that the Cox editorial was of a character which should not be published in a government paper.

Slumbering Gang War Renewed in Chicago

Chicago Tribune—Omaha Bee Leased Wire. Chicago, Sept. 24.—The slumbering gang war, which the police have feared ever since the slaying of "Boss" Enright and the discharge from prison of "Big Tim" Murphy, Dago Mike Carozza and others accused of the slaying, blazed up today and when the smoke cleared away Richard "Whitey" Forbes, known to the police as a "bad man," lay on the floor of Wilson & Gallagher's saloon with a bullet through his body.

"Whitey" gave a fictitious name and when asked who had shot him, replied:

"Oh, me and a guy just had a little argument—my friends will take care of the party."

Forbes was arrested last June on a robbery charge and had been released on bail but a few days ago.

Campaign of Education In Use of Medicines Urged

St. Louis, Sept. 24.—A comprehensive publicity campaign to educate druggists and physicians in the use of better medicines was recommended in a report here today by the National Association of Retail Druggists.

Druggists who are discarding narcotics from their stocks are shirking their duty, according to the report.

The Season's Modes in Complete Array for Women, Misses and Small Women

WITH Autumn here and Winter around the corner, life hums with social activities—and now, right at the opening of the season, we have seldom been able to offer more complete or more beautiful lines of ready-to-wear apparel than we now have on display. Smart, new wool frocks, tailored suits and elaborate wraps for every occasion, at prices unusually low.

The Coats for Fall in Delightful Variations

DELIGHTFUL variations of approved modes and accurate interpretations of the accepted Autumn styles feature the entire showing. The materials are so superbly fine, the styles so markedly individual and the workmanship so obviously expert, that connoisseurs of fashions and values will realize this as their paramount opportunity.

The Fashionable Straight Line is attractively carried over into these new coats and wraps with interesting variations, made manifest in huge self or fur collars, loose paneled backs, blouse and cape backs, some lavishly embroidered in silk chenille wool.

Distinguished by High Grade Fabrics and silk linings, they are of the sort you would expect in coats costing considerable more. The materials are Cashmere Velour, Silver-tone, Bolivia, Veldyne, Duvette and many qualities of pile fabrics. All are lined and interlined with the best and most beautiful silks, and include sizes for the stout woman. They are wraps that can be worn for Fall and Winter.
