

Boy Pastor Is Held for Court Trial

Father-in-Law Makes $2,000 Bond—"I Have Clear Conscience," He Tells Reporter.

"The sins of this world are not the sins of human endeavor and the sins are not filled with men of ambition."

These were the first words of Robert E. Jenkinson, former pastor of the Minne Lusa church to newspaper men just before he was arraigned in Central police court yesterday on a charge of check forging.

Jenkinson after being arraigned before Judge Fitzgerald, waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to the district court in $2,000 bond furnished by his father-in-law who operates the Holcomb Food Chemicals Products company, 918 North Sixteenth street.

Mrs. Martha Petersen Jenkinson, 22-year-old wife of the former pastor, appeared early at police headquarters to greet her husband.

"I may have lost all my friends, a portion of my business, but I still retain my patent and a clear conscience," Jenkinson told his wife.

Will Buy Back Stock.

Jenkinson first appeared to be rather nervous but after a few minutes of rapid fire conversation with detectives he talked freely.

"All I want is two months and I will buy back every dollar's worth of stock in the United Shale company I have sold," said Jenkinson. "I can show one dollar for every dollar I have received from stock."

He made business mistakes but never have passed any check with criminal intent and did not rob anyone.

"It is the check which I am accused of passing had gone through the proper channels, there would not be any trouble."

Doesn't Like Jail.

"I have been over the hills of experience and that is just what most preachers lack, the human contact. Any life without charity is as tinkling cymbal and sounding brass."

Jenkinson denounced the insubordinate conditions of the city jail and the "bull pen" at central police headquarters. He said most of the men were "dope fiends, bums, loafers and coke heads."

W. C. Petersen, 4712 North Fortieth street, Jenkinson's father-in-law, shook hands with him and said that he would "stick by him."

The pastor admitted that he was divorced from his first wife in Denver seven months ago.

"She wanted too many clothes and while I was a poor minister, she was quite a society girl," said Jenkinson.

"I love him and will die for him," said Mrs. Jenkinson. "I am sure with a little help from my father he will be even with the world. All the boys who bought stock will not lose anything."

Man Arrested for Theft of Auto, Car Is Recovered

Fred P. Witt, 2826 Decatur street, was arrested early yesterday, charged with grand larceny, after he had been caught by Officer Buglewicz at Twenty-fourth and Sprague streets in an automobile belonging to Mrs. Jabez Cross, Strehlow apartments.

The automobile was stolen from Fourteenth and Farnam streets Friday night at 9 o'clock. Witt was taken to the robbery when firemen at Twenty-second street and Ames avenue notified them that a man had tried to obtain money from them to buy gasoline. Witt was trailed through Minne Lusa and was arrested when he left a confectionery store at Twenty-fourth and Sprague, where he is alleged to have tried to sell the stolen automobile to Joe Klaucek, proprietor of the store.

Men and Women Fail to Agree on Child Labor Laws

Code Commission Divided on Whether Boys Should Work or Play After School Hours in City.

The question of whether it was better for a boy to work or play after school hours developed wide differences of opinion within a sub-committee of the children's code commission meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms yesterday.

The women members were unanimous in believing that child labor almost anywhere but on a farm was unwise.

C. E. Prevey, secretary of the commission, opened up the discussion by stating there was a somewhat widespread opinion that outside work had an educational value that supplemented school study.

Favors Doing Chores.

"I see no harm in children as young as 10 years old earning a little money by doing chores after school hours," said John C. Barrett. "When I was a boy I carried sacks of flour and other groceries on a delivery wagon, and it never hurt me."

The object of child labor laws should be to prevent warping the bodies of the children, Mr. Barrett stated.

"And their minds," added Judge Lincoln Frost of Lincoln.

"I would favor a general prohibition of employment for all children under 14 except in agriculture and domestic service."

Not Like the East.

Mr. Barrett came back with the statement that work on a farm was no more healthful than that in many lines in the city.

John Larsen, of the state workmen's compensation bureau, said that no law limiting child labor on the farms could ever be adopted.

"It should not be," said Mr. Barrett. "This idea of regulating child labor comes from the east where children are exploited and ruined physically by being herded in factories. We do not have to deal with that evil here, and we will certainly make a mistake if we try to jump in and regulate every little case where a child finds something to do. We must prevent children working at night, or in unhealthy places, however."

Minimum Wage Commission.

Mr. Barrett has drafted a bill for a minimum wage commission, which will come up later today. Under its provisions three commissioners, one of them to be a woman, and each member representing the public, the employers or the employees, would be empowered to regulate wages paid women and children in all employments except domestic service.

Upon petition of 25 persons in an occupation, the commission would hold hearings on wages and conditions of employment, and set a minimum living wage for beginners and another for trained employees.

In all cases where an employee, due to age of partial disability could not attain the standard of production, a special license allowing lower wages would be extended. This commission was authorized by one of the amendments to the state constitution adopted at the election this week.

The Right Perspective

The remarkable success of the new $100,000,000 French Government Loan is unmistakable evidence of returning confidence on the part of the investor. It is understood that a surprising large number of small subscriptions were received which indicates an excellent demand from the investor of small means.

With flotation of the French Loan came a decline in call money rates and favorable crop reports show corn gained 128,000,000 bushels, oats 40,000,000 bushels, which indicates that the three big cereal crops will give the farmers 235,000,000 bushels more grain to sell in 1920. This means prosperity for the farmers and an increase in other lines of business.
