Problems That Perplex

Beate: A good scalp circulation stimulates growth of hair. Gently massage your scalp each night, placing the fingers on the scalp and using a rotating motion. The idea is to loosen the skin. On some heads it is very tightly drawn. This means poor circulation. Brush thoroughly daily with clean brushes. Do not be so vigorous as to injure the scalp in any way. But be persistent and patient and you will get results. Watch this section for a story soon to appear on salt treatment for the hair.

Needs Housekeeper.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am afraid I am asking you to do for me too great a favor. You have helped others, so you may be able to help me. I have been left with four girls and I am badly in need of some good woman to look after them. I am 34 years old and have a good, steady job, and I sure would be so thankful to you if you will only keep my address and give it to anyone that may wish to ask for it. I am sure there is lots of women that are just as homesome as I am. I am a great home lover and I would do all I can to make some one happy. MR. S.

We suggest that the care of a household including four children would, indeed, be a good cure for homesickness. We hope, if you are honest in your request, that you find the woman who can handle the job. In the first part of your letter you seem to be looking for a housekeeper for your little girls, and in the latter part for some one who can care your loneliness. If it is the former, we will try to help you. I shall keep your address on file. Why don't you send your street number, instead of "general delivery?"

Be Straightforward.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am a girl of 18. About a year ago I met a young man at my place of business and it was a case of "love at first sight" and it was also my first love affair. One Saturday evening when he was supposed to come to the house to see me, for some unknown reason I disappointed him. He told my mother to tell me to write to him, but I didn't do so. The following week I received a letter from him asking me the reason why I disappointed him and why I didn't write. At present he is very ill in the hospital. I thought that it was no more than right for me to go to my home. He is a married man and in a position in one of New York's biggest banks, where I was employed. That was how I met him. I have been to visit him twice. Both times he asked me why I don't care for him. Now, this is just what puzzles me. I really love this young man. I don't want to tell him I care for him, but could you tell me how I could show or hint a little bit to him?

Your conduct puzzles you—and rightly. It is sufficiently "contrary" to cause anyone a great deal of wonderment. Why do you insist on sidling away from what you want and acting in a manner precisely contrary to the one you want to assume? It is indirect and almost dishonest to object to saying things "straight out." That's the way to say them. Stop taking life on the sly. Don't "hint a little bit." The next time the boy for whom you care so much asks you why you don't care for him, do the straightforward and honest thing, and tell him that you do. The only problem you have it with your own obliquity of vision.

Would You Give Her a Glass of Jelly?

"I want some jelly on my bread," says this lovely baby. And if you will take a glass over to the Day Nursery perhaps she can have a little of the "sweet" of life along with the substantial.

Melancholy Women

Women should understand that melancholy, commonly called the "Blues," in nine times out of ten a pure symptom of some organic derangement which should have attention. For nearly forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for such conditions, as proved by many testimonials which we are constantly publishing from women who have been restored to health by its use.

What's What

By HELEN DECIE.

"Ludleigh's over there at that table near the orchestra." "Yes, I know; I heard him at his soup course." Noisy eating is literally one of the loudest proclamations of ill-breeding. No boy with any "bringing-up" would have been allowed to pass into his teens without correction and eradication of this annoying habit. In later life, when the bad habit is firmly fixed, and acquaintances, cognizant of other good qualities in the offender, are not willing to put themselves in the position of reproving him, he is destined to spoil many an otherwise perfectly good dinner party. It is a pity for himself and for others, that the self-made man who is so extraordinarily clever in more difficult ways should so often be found wanting in the easily acquired niceties of table manners. Ounce of Prevention Some Times Worth a Ton Of Cure.

"An ounce of prevention is sometimes worth a whole ton of cure," paraphrased Mrs. Charles Hubbard, president of the executive board of the Omaha Campfire Girls, as she was busily working at Campfire headquarters on the tags to be used in the Saturday drive. "If we can teach the young girls to love and respect and understand the home, they will not need rescue homes later on. Rescue work is most wretched," Mrs. Hubbard declared, "but we should minimize the need for it by constructive and preventive action before it is too late. Campfire work is 100 per cent constructive. It elevates home life to its true plane."

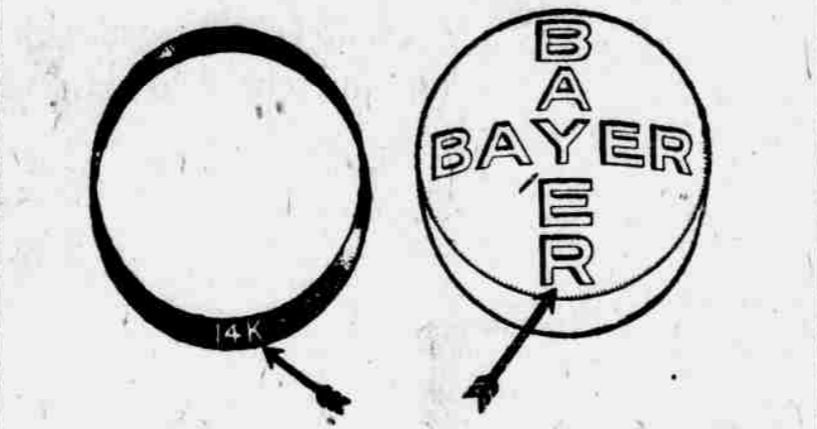

Many girls have responded to the call for workers to assist in making the 10,000 pretty colored beads which will serve as tags on Saturday. The money collected will be used, among other things, for paying the salary of a trained executive, who will instruct the local guardians who have the immediate supervision and guidance of the young girls.

Three Questions a Day for the Housewife. 1—How much water is contained in whole milk? 2—What are the best "jelly fruits"? Whether dry cleaning can be done at home? Hudson and Essex Cars Return to Bedrock Prices

Thousands have planned to buy Hudson and Essex cars this fall. For five years the Super-Six has been the world's largest selling fine car. In eighteen months Essex sales made an unmatched record. What must now be the demand for them at these bedrock prices? But labor and material shortages in early summer had forced reductions in schedules for fall and winter—and now the return to normal in prices assures such an immediate increase in sales that a scarcity of Hudson and Essex cars seems certain.

Choose your car now and learn how the price reduction increases its attractiveness. And remember that in either Hudson or Essex you obtain exclusive motors, for they are patented. You can save $200 to $450. Act promptly if you want delivery this fall.
