Wyoming Men Make Fight for Pure Wool Bill

roducers Want Legislation to Prevent Deception Practiced on Purchasers Of Clothing.

Producers of wool have at least one thing in common, in the opinion Wyoming and Nebraska wool producers-and that is the purity of the product.

Wyoming wool producers are waging a battle for a bill in congress to force the labeling of all wool products, so that the buyer may know whether the finished product is wool or "shoddy," all-wool or

Kleber Hadsell of Wyoming is preparing to champion the bill before the next congress, and, in supporting it, says:

I believe firmly in the homely old saw, that honesty is the best policy. I take no stock in the advice reputed to have been given by the father to the son, 'to get the money; honestly, if possible—but get the

"If a producer, or a manufacturer of an article makes a good product, he ought to take pride in it. If it is an honest piece of work and is exactly what it purports to be, he ought to want to tell the users of that article just what it is, what it is made of and all about it. If he is ashamed of what he makes or in-tends to deceive the people who buy and use it, and means to be dishonest with consumers, then the law ought to step in and exactly make an honest man out of that fellow.

"It is realized that everybody will not want pure woolen goods. That there is a demand for materials which contain other and cheaper products. It is not the desire to drive an article from the market be cause it is not made of pure wool; the whole object of the 'truth in fabric' measure is just what its title implies, to force manufacturers to tell the truth about their goods. To tell just what is put into them in the process by which they are changed from raw materials to finished products.

"The objects to be accomplished the measure are so obviously honest and square to everybody concerned that I cannot conceive of the slightest objection to it from anybody from the wool grower to the final user of the goods.

"The paragrapher in your funny paper tells you about it when he says: "Tell me not in mournful num-

"A bill to prevent deceit and profiteering that result from the unrevealed process of substitutes for virgin wol in woven fabrics purporting to contain wool in garments or articles of apparel made therefrom. manufactured in any state or territory of the United States or District of Columbia, or transported or intended to be transported in interstate or foreign commerce, and providing penalties for the violation of the provisions of this act, and for other purposes."

"The bill will be before the next session of congress, and it ought to pass. One of the strongest support ers of the measure is Senator Cappeof Kanas. He has done and is doing yeoman service to make it a law I trust the next session of congress will take action. There has been no matter touching the business in which I am engaged that has interested me more than this matter of compelling people to tell the truth

Socialist Declares Society Is Divided Into Buyers, Sellers

Columbus, O., Oct. 2.—Society has been divided into two classes, buyers and sellers. George R. Kirkpatrick, socialist writer and orator, made this division during an address here. He classified the capitalist as the buyer and the working man as the seller.

"The working man sells power," said Kirkpatrick. "You have seen the tired workman come home with his shoulders stooped-all in.

"But when he gets home and sits down to a nice supper, a porterhouse steak an inch thick, brown on both sides and red in between, with strips of fried chicken and mashed potatoes and a lot of other nice things around it, you know, he feels a lot better after eating that meal.

"He hen reads the paper for an hour, visits with his wife a little while and then get six to eight hours sleep and wakes up to the charming music of an alarm clock and eats a dish of peaches buried in cream not baptized in milk, and has real cream in his coffee, and then some tried chicken, spring chicken, not born in 1898, and, perhaps, some become imported bacon from Chi-cago. Armour's best, why, he feels ike a new man. "Nature has repaired him. He has a skin full of power, and he hurries off to work because he has to sell that power.

"You can keep a pumpkin, or a watermelon, for six weeks and then sell it; but not power; oh, no; you have to sell it that day."

Next War in Air and Under

Seas, Says Marshal Foch Paris, Oct. 2.-This is Marshal Foch's opinion of warfare in the future as he expressed it to a number of young naval officers while return-ing from the last conference at "The next war will be frught bereath the seas and in the air. That is a certainty, for with improved methods of warrate man wou I soo: be wiped our on the land and drowned on the
