

Healing Power Of Mrs. Etter Is Avowed by Many

Hundreds Flock to Tent Meeting in Hope of Being Cured—Rev. Mr. Savidge Testifies.

Many people, afflicted with various maladies, testified to the healing power of Evangelist Mrs. M. D. Woodworth-Etter Saturday afternoon at the "divine" healing meeting being conducted by Mrs. Etter at Twenty-second and Paul streets. The afternoon and evening sessions were better attended than those on Thursday and Friday.

The large tent, packed from end to end, reverberated with murmurs of "Glory to God; let us pray; thanks be to God for what he has done for me."

A choir of 30 male and female voices started the ceremonies. After a few hymns were sung, books were passed among the people who came to seek spiritual and temporal strength.

After the singing, Mrs. Etter made a few remarks as to the utility of her efforts as those seeking "healing" did not dismiss all doubt from their minds and have faith in God's miraculous power.

Many Want Aid.

When questions were asked as to how many wanted the Lord God to heal their body, hundreds rose to their feet and others raised their hands. At this juncture the entire audience fell on bended knees and prayed.

"Get a shock from heaven," was Mrs. Etter's way of expressing herself when she exhorted her followers to get on their knees and pray for faith in God.

Standing on her tip toes, with both arms outstretched to heaven and eyes gazing upward, she asked the blessing of grace and confidence upon those who sought relief. "I load your souls with the rubbish of this world," she exhorted, "take time to think of God in heaven; make Him a part of your business. I do not profess to be supernatural or to be able to lay hands upon anyone and cure them. It is your faith in God, God's almighty goodness that cures you."

Invited to Testify.

After Mrs. Etter's sermon, the audience was invited to tell of their shortcomings and testify as to the "great things the Lord had done for them."

An old lady who appeared to be 70 years old was the first on her feet. "Early in my life I suffered from a rupture and floating kidneys," she said. "Doctors pronounced me incurable. I attended a meeting such as this in Sioux City five years ago where I learned that God was my only hope. I placed my faith in him. I am here now with my little boy, who was blind in one eye, who now leaps for joy with his eyesight gradually coming back."

Rev. Mr. Savidge then took the stand. "I joined the church and was a seeker after complete rest for 20 years," he explained. "I can truthfully say that in the course of my efforts in this behalf I never had a meeting inspire me to work harder in my chosen calling. I am thankful more and more that I took up the work of God."

Deep Sea Fish Caught In Two Feet of Water

Westerly, R. I., Oct. 3.—Sword-fishing in Brightman's Pond may seem peculiar, but these deep sea fish are actually caught there in two feet of water, not by the spear and the barrel method as practiced off the Atlantic coast, but with a gauze seine by local fishermen seining for mummy-changs to be used as bait for bass fishing.

They netted a dozen or more small swordfish, identical in formation and appearance with the deep water food fish that average seven feet in length and weigh 250 pounds and more.

Those seined in Brightman's Pond are from six to eight inches long and in circumference about the size of a large fountain pen.

Shakespeare's Initial Found in Stonework

London, Oct. 3.—Lovers of Shakespeare are jubilant over the discovery of the famous bard's autograph on the stonework of a window recess in the famous haunted Gallery at Hampton Court, one of the ancient royal palaces of England, where Shakespeare at one time performed in his own plays.

Some time ago one or two faint illegible letters were noticed in the recess, and last week it was decided to clean up the plaster, with the result that Shakespearean experts have been fired with renewed enthusiasm, for the name disclosed was that of the world's greatest poet.

Break Your Neck But Don't Go to Movie Houses

London, Oct. 3.—"My general impression is not a hostility to the cinema, but rather that it is a terrible waste of time," writes G. K. Chesterton, the famous British writer, to the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings.

"It is terrible to think of a little boy wasting time in a cinema theater when he might be engaged in really climbing trees, and possibly really falling off, and possibly breaking his own neck."

"It is better that he should take a chance of his own destiny, and not merely follow the shadow of it on the pictures."

Movie Houses in Frisco Open Until 4 in Morning

San Francisco, Oct. 3.—After the dances are over in San Francisco and the wee sma' hours of the morning roll in, local movie fans may see themselves to their favorite screen places and watch their favorite stars—until 4 o'clock in the morning.

"This is because the public welfare and censorship committee of the board of supervisors is having the ordinance amended so that screen houses may be kept running until the early hour, at the request of the local patrons."

Poultry

By EARL M. WHITNEY.

Back-lot poultry raising is gaining widespread popularity, particularly at this time when people are beginning to realize the great need for adopting every means possible to effect a reduction in living costs. It is known that eggs were put into storage at higher prices than usual and that there is a shortage this year over last in the four principal cold storage markets of the country—Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Chicago—amounting to something like 700,000 cases of eggs. This fact points to unusually high prices for eggs this fall and winter. As a result many people have already determined to produce their own eggs, and thousands upon thousands more will join in the army of producers as the facts become more generally known.

Lower Feed Costs.

The downward trend of the grain market seems to indicate an early drop in feed prices and, while this will probably have no effect on the price of eggs to be sold out of storage, it will at least enable poultry raisers to produce eggs this fall and winter at a feeding cost lower than heretofore. The owner of a small flock of hens also has the advantage of reduced feed costs through utilizing table scraps.

It will be the purpose of these articles, not only to interest people in poultry culture both from the rancid and utility standpoint, but to dispense information from week to week that has to do with the care and attention to be given fowls at the particular time in which the article appears.

Questions Answered.

By making a scrap book of these articles, the reader will, at the end of 52 weeks, have a fair synopsis of all the important fundamentals necessary to success with hens. While the limited space will prevent much of detail that is interesting, the writer will always keep in mind that absolute essentials should be discussed first. Where further enlightenment on the subject in hand is desired, the reader is at liberty to address this paper for the information. A self-addressed stamped envelope should be enclosed with the inquiry. Where questions are of general interest, the answers will be published.

Great progress is being made in standardized poultry raising. New developments are taking place almost constantly and so rapidly are improvements being made that many of the best methods of today may in a short time be supplanted by other methods still better. My articles will deviate from the regular subjects under discussion from time to time as new developments occur, so that readers of this department may be fully informed of recent happenings in the industry—new inventions and the results of experiments—that will help in any way toward great efficiency.

Three Big Essentials.

There are three big essentials to success in poultry raising, each intertwined with the other, for without any one of the three the poultry venture is doomed to failure. The first essential is good stock, meaning not only strong, vigorous, healthy birds, but also that they be standard-bred and not of mongrel type.

The second big essential is proper housing. Without the right housing conditions, the best of stock would amount to little or nothing. The poultry house must be as near like a human habitation as possible insofar as cleanliness, ventilation and freedom from dampness goes.

The third big essential is correct feeding. Good stock, properly housed, is of no avail if neglect of correct feeding methods is shown. There are a number of good feeding methods, and while they are not all alike the underlying scientific principle is the same. I advocate the use of a reliable manufactured feed for the back-lot poultry raiser in particular, as in the end it is both a money and time saver and besides not everyone can prepare a satisfactory home-made mixture that will produce the same results gained from the reliable manufactured product.

In later articles I will take up the three big essentials separately and discuss them in greater detail, beginning next week with the subject of good stock, which will include an enumeration of the various popular breeds and the purposes for which they are best adapted. Wheelbarrow in Treasury Has Held Millions

In Service 54 Years, Barrow Has Carried Billions of Dollars In Paper Currency.

By HARRY L. ROGERS, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—In the redemption division of the United States treasury there is a wheelbarrow which, though apparently only an ordinary wheelbarrow of the ordinary barnyard type is in reality probably the most remarkable wheelbarrow in the world.

This barrow came to the department in the administration of Andrew Jackson, since then has transported many billions of dollars' worth of paper currency.

For the greater part of that 54 years it has been chaperoned by James D. Rowe, 80-year-old veteran employe of the department, who during the 53 of his 54 years of service there has worked in the redemption division.

That mutilated or badly soiled pieces of paper money which you exchange at the bank for a crisp new bill, doubtless is some day due for a joy ride on Mr. Rowe's famous barrow. Such currency, recalled from circulation, is assembled by national banks and sub-treasuries throughout the country and shipped to the redemption division of the treasury at Washington where it is stored in vaults in the basement of the building.

After being counted the usage-scattered banknote is perforated with two holes at each end to insure cancellation. The bill is then cut in two, the halves going to different offices of the department. At each count is made as a means of checking with the original figures of the treasury.

The bureau of engraving and printing utilizes the discarded certificates by reducing the halved bills to pulp, which is sold to paper manufacturers and used for making high-grade writing papers. Thus, in these days of speedy evolution in domestic relations, it is not impossible that the

Italian Composer Is Coming to U. S. On Visit

Signor Giacomo Puccini, noted Italian composer of "Madame Butterfly" and other operas, is en route to this country for the purpose of writing an opera on American life. Signor Puccini, while here, will live in Virginia.

Mr. Rowe will be 80 years old October 17, 1920, and has served under a score of secretaries of the treasury. In addition to his skill in manipulating the remarkable wheelbarrow Mr. Rowe's younger days was renowned as the champion rapid-fire dollar counter of the treasury. On one notable occasion, according to department traditions, he counted and piled with a period of 24 hours 90 tons of silver dollars, consisting of 2,000 bags, each weighing 60 pounds.

Accuses Hanley Of Blocking Dry Law Enforcement

County Head of Anti-Saloon League Asserts Fear of "Double-Crossing" by Prohibition Officer.

Rev. F. A. High, Douglas county head of the Anti-Saloon league, charged Saturday that Prohibition Enforcement Officer J. T. Hanley not only is not fighting prohibition in the Omaha district, but that he is actually blocking enforcement of the dry laws.

The charge came in response to the assertion of Mr. Hanley that Dr. High, Elmer Thomas and other prohibition workers in Omaha have been "lying down on the job" in assisting in the fight against violators.

"It is true that the Anti-Saloon league has not furnished Mr. Hanley with evidence we have gathered," declared Dr. High, "but the reason that we have not been because we think that he would double-cross us."

"We believe that Mr. Hanley has not only failed to properly carry on the campaign against violators, but that he has actually blocked efforts to enforce prohibition."

"Instead of carrying the evidence which we have gathered to Mr. Hanley we have taken it to the state prohibition officer, Gus Hyers, or to the governor. From these two men we have expected and have received a square deal."

Police After Men Who Raid Gardens

Concord, Mass., Oct. 3.—The Concord police are aiding the farmers of the Nine Acre Corner section in an attempt to run down the thieves who are making raids on corn, potatoes and other vegetables. It is said that the thieving is done by men from a neighboring town, who load an auto truck each night. While several of the party go to the river to "fish," the others go through the woods to the farms. The fishermen watch while the raiders work.

Yanks Return to Paris to Marry Girls Of France

Doughboys Returning to Paris Outnumber Tourists Two to One—Many Out Of Work.

Paris, Oct. 3.—That the lure of Paris is still strong, even on the doughboys who were rabid in their desire to get home "foot sweet," is proved by the numbers of ex-soldiers from the United States who are returning to France by every boat.

Returning doughboys already outnumber tourists two to one. They are coming back with all manner of excuses—as traveling salesmen, as travelers at leisure, as agents for various businesses and as just plain unemployed hoping for a job. These last are in the big majority. So many of them are showing up in Paris—finding an utterly changed Paris now that the Y. M. C. A. hotels and the canteens are gone—that the Red Cross and the American Legion are hard put to solve the problem. The Red Cross, which still maintains a gigantic organization in Europe, is employing as many stranded ex-soldiers as it can, but complaints have already been heard in Washington about "arm-chair" jobs over here and many who seek work with the A. R. C. fail to find it. The American Legion can't do more than make futile hunt for jobs for them.

Two reasons are given by the ex-soldiers for returning to France. First, they want to be somewhere where they can buy a drink, and second, they want to marry French girls. The last is the excuse heard oftenest.

A separate container for the ice features a new glass pitcher for cold drinks.

Grand—"The Miracle Man," a special production.

Anita Stewart played to success in her latest offering, "Harriet and the Piper," at the Rialto theater yesterday. From the standpoint of artistry in settings and dramatic acting, the picture is probably Miss Stewart's cleverest work. However, for "Old Kentucky," surpassed her current vehicle.

The story tends to run on a verge of immorality—of free love. How genuine love and happiness in the end grow out of the star's empty romance of "Old Kentucky," in the hands of artists, is revealed in a fascinating manner.

As an added attraction at the Rialto, Harold Lloyd cuts some cute capers in "Get Out and Get Under."

His one long series of laughs. Both pictures will continue at the Rialto until Thursday.

Those who have read the popular story, "Head and Shoulders," by F. Scott Fitzgerald in "The Saturday Evening Post" will live through it again in pleasant reality by seeing the picturization of the story under the title, "A Chorus Girl's Romance," at the Sun theater this week.

Viola Dana—rather her irresistible shoulders—are the main attraction.

The story has to do with the romance of Marcia Meadows, a chorus girl, with a propensity and gift for shimmying. Her principal objective throughout the picture is a prodigy at Yale. So there is a decided touch of comedy in the play.

Garrett Hughes plays opposite Miss Dana with success.

Buster Keaton, the comedian that "Fatty" Arbuckle found, is starred with plenty of mirth in "Three Weeks," an added attraction at the Sun theater.

For actual spell-bound drama, "The Master Mind" lives through it again in pleasant reality by seeing the picturization of the story under the title, "A Chorus Girl's Romance," at the Sun theater this week. It is a deep mystery play, of mental intrigue and subtle situations.

The art shown in the photography, such as when the star sees his own "master mind" before him, snatches up the live figure and hurls him from his hand, is really a puzzling innovation in pictures. The scene typifies the star's state of mind toward himself.

Hangman Gives Luck Kisses at Party Of Austrian Aristocrat

Vienna, Oct. 3.—One of the first acts of the national assembly of the new republic of Austria after the 1918 revolution was to abolish capital punishment.

Joseph Lang, who had been the executioner for many years and who was pensioned off by the new government, has just published his memoirs, in which he tells the following story:

One evening a distinguished Austrian aristocrat sent his secretary to Herr Lang with an invitation to a dinner party, where he was to tell some stories of his life. Herr Lang accepted the invitation, and after dinner gave a lecture on executions. He had to explain the procedure in detail, and the ladies especially took the greatest interest and tormented him with questions.

After he had taken his leave and was passing through the hall a young baroness who had been hiding there stepped forward and asked him for a kiss, declaring that "a kiss from a hangman brings luck to every lady."

Other women guests overhearing this rushed forward and also asked to be kissed, and Herr Lang had to kiss nearly all the young women present at the party.

Anti-Suffragists Will Vote, Leaders Declare

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 3.—How times do change.

Women who didn't want to vote have decided to cast their votes the same as the suffragists who fought for the suffrage amendment.

"What we must do now is educate the women voters to the highest possible efficiency as factors in good citizenship and good government," said Mrs. Joseph McCloskey, of the League of Women Voters here.

"Although I resent having suffrage thrust upon me and upon other women at this time, still, if it cannot be deferred I shall accept the situation and feel it my duty to vote," declared Mrs. Jerome Stern, active in anti-suffrage organization.

"If I become a voter it is under protest," said Mrs. Nicholas Lowenthal, sr., honorary president of the Hamilton County Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage. "I trust that the political party in which I have faith may win."

Appetite of English Girls Increasing Say Cafe Men

London, Oct. 3.—English women have dropped the famous "burn and milk" luncheon and are now eating substantial meals, according to John Pearce, pioneer of chain restaurants in London.

Before women and girls began to take a big part in English business life they ate lightly and sat for hours over a 10-cent meal. Now they eat steaks and pies in a hurry.

The profits of London restaurant men are going up, says Mr. Pearce, because all classes of people are spending more on food than they did before the war.

Be Rid of That Nagging Backache!

ARE you tortured night and day with a dull throbbing, never-ceasing backache? Do you suffer sharp, knife-like pains at every sudden move? Evening find you tired, irritable "all played out?" Then it's time you were finding the cause. Likely it's your kidneys. Perhaps you have been working too hard, getting too little rest and sleep, and overdoing generally. This may have tended to weaken the kidneys and bring on that tired, depressed feeling and that dull, nagging backache. You may have headaches and dizzy spells, too, with some annoying kidney irregularity. Don't wait for the trouble to become serious. Get back your health and keep it! Live more simply for awhile and help the weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

These Are Omaha Cases:

FORTY-THIRD STREET J. P. Johnson, painter, corner 43d and Vinton Sts., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are fine, for I have found them so. Some years ago my back was so stiff that I couldn't bend over enough to put my shoes on or lace them. My kidneys would act four or five times during the night, and the secretions were highly colored and at times contained a brick-dust-like substance. They burned in passage, too. Sharp pains would many times catch me in my back and I could hardly move for a moment. I read statements in the paper of a great many who told what Doan's Kidney Pills had done for them, so I got a box. It was not many days before I was sure they were just what I needed, for they gave me relief, and I have only needed them occasionally since."	SOUTH SEVENTEENTH STREET Mrs. E. E. Bates, 707 S. 17th St., says: "It was about a year ago that I was weak in my back from a bad condition of my kidneys. This annoyed me a great deal and seemed to take all the ambition from me. Bending over would cause sharp pains to pierce the small of my back and kidneys. I had an awful time with dizzy spells. I used Doan's Kidney Pills, and they relieved my condition in a short time. After using some two or three boxes my relief was permanent. I have used Doan's occasionally since, when my back has felt a little tired, and Doan's have always done their work fine."	VALLEY STREET Erhard Corneer, proprietor dairy, 3510 Valley St., says: "It was a number of years ago that I was first taken with kidney trouble. I knew that so much jumping on and off my wagon was the direct cause for my trouble. There seemed to be a constant ache across the small of my back and kidneys, and an awful soreness through my hips. My kidneys acted frequently and the secretions were highly colored. A friend told me of Doan's Kidney Pills and being so good for this trouble, and it was only a day or so after I commenced to use them that I was better. After I had used two boxes my back and kidneys were strong. That is the kind of a cure that Doan's Kidney Pills gave me."
OHIO STREET Mrs. R. E. Bitney, 1508 Ohio St., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are a fine remedy. About five years ago I had a great deal of trouble with my back. I got down and it was just impossible for me to move, for my back felt as though it were broken. I had dizzy spells and everything would get black before me. My kidneys were disordered, too. A member of my family had used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results, so I tried them myself. It only took a few to relieve me, and one box cured the trouble. About three months ago I had another slight attack of the trouble, but a few Doan's fixed me up again in a couple days. My back and kidneys are now strong."	LEAVENWORTH STREET C. M. Downing, 2216 Leavenworth St., says: "My first trouble with my kidneys was caused by a strain some ten years ago. I would be so lame I couldn't stoop over to pick up anything, and the awful, sharp, cutting pains in my kidneys felt as though someone had stuck a sharp knife into me. My kidneys would act frequently during the night, and the secretions were highly colored. At times it felt as though I had a heavy weight across my back, and it felt as though it were pulling me down. A friend advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills, so I got them and was relieved of the trouble after using a couple boxes."

NO package of Doan's Kidney Pills is genuine unless it bears the maple-leaf trade-mark and the signature—"JAS. DOAN."
