

Mother and Sons Meet In Prison

Alleged Murderess, Dressed In Prisoner's Garb, Smiles as She Greets Her Two Boys.

"Say, you'll let us see our mother, won't you?" was the first question asked by Burt and Mike Tierney when they arrived at the county jail at noon yesterday after being sent up under $2,000 bond each by Judge Fitzgerald in South Side Police court on a charge of highway robbery.

"Oh, I guess so," said Jailer Sherman Clayton. Their mother is Mrs. Mike Tierney who, a week ago last Saturday, shot and killed Ray Dunlap, who had married her 10-year-old daughter, Ethel, a few days before. She is charged with first degree murder and is held without bond.

"Never before in my recollection have we had a mother and sons in the county jail awaiting trial at the same time," said Jailer Clayton.

Greets Them With Smile.

Mrs. Tierney is in the matron's ward of the jail in the southeast corner of the fifth floor of the court house. Her sons were escorted over there before being placed in their own cell on the opposite side of the jail.

Mrs. Tierney, in the blue "bloumer" uniform used by women prisoners, was waiting anxiously for the boys. As they came up to her cell she put her hands through the bars and on their shoulders. She kissed their cheeks. Not a sign of a tear appeared in her eyes. She even smiled.

"Oh, my boys!" she exclaimed. "I just know you're not guilty, and I know you'll soon be out of jail. You must work now, work hard, and go straight for the sake of your sisters and your father."

Forgets Her Own Troubles.

Mr. Tierney, who had been separated from his wife prior to the shooting, returned home after her arrest and declared he will fight to free her.

Mike and Burt remained talking to their mother for some minutes, a deputy sheriff standing guard.

Mrs. Tierney seemed to have forgotten her own troubles in planning for her boys' release, though she is awaiting trial for a crime the penalty for which, upon conviction, is the electric chair.

The two young men were taken to a cell in the "bound over" ward of the jail after their talk with their mother.

"Everything will come out all right," were her parting words as they were led away.

Daughters Devoted to Her.

The other children of Mrs. Tierney have been extremely devoted to their mother since she has been in jail.

"The two daughters, Margaret and Ethel, have been trying to see their mother every day," said Sheriff Clark, "although Friday is our only visiting day. This takes much of the matron's time because the court is in the room all of the time that the visitors are there."

The specific charge against Burt and Mike in the present case is the holding of J. E. Cera, railroad detective, September 28 at Fourteenth and Locust streets. They were arrested in a raid last Saturday night in a house on the South Side, in which 11 men and one woman were arrested.

Yesterday Police Judge Foster, in Central police court, refused to hear the Tierney cases, on the ground that they belonged in the South Side police court, because the arrest took place on the South Side.

Judges Disagree.

This morning Judge Fitzgerald, in South Side police court, at first refused to hear them, holding that the case belonged in Central police court because the alleged crime occurred in Omaha. He consented to go ahead, however, when police pointed out that the witnesses had all been brought into the court.

Landlord Chummy With Man After He Garnishes Wages

While C. H. Ward, Missouri Pacific railroad switchman, ate, smoked and chatted intimately with John E. Rickett, proprietor of Hillside Inn, a rooming house at Twenty-second and Davenport streets, he was unaware that John had instituted legal action against him.

Ward appeared in Justice of the Peace Collins' court yesterday to answer a garnishment summons for $70 filed a week ago by Rickett.

"I've lost my job and my standing in the union on account of it," he declared. "Why, my room rent wasn't even due yet, and that man set across the dinner table from me, clammed with me!"

"He told me he would wait until pay day for the rent. Why, this morning at breakfast we talked intimately about current affairs and the weather. Then I learn he has garnished my wages. That's friendship!"

Mr. Ward appealed to John Larson, head of the city labor board, to help him get back his job.

Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire. Washington, Oct. 6.—The democratic national campaign from now on will have two chieftains and two managers.

In partnership with Governor Cox and his campaign chairman George White, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, and Homer S. Cummings, former chairman of the democratic national committee, have joined to pull the league of nations covenant from the rocks, if it can be done.

So far as can be learned, the partnership interests have been mutually agreed upon. Governor Cox and Chairman White having yielded at last to the insistence of administration forces in the party that the league of nations must be played over all else in the party.

handbills henceforth until election day. As a matter of fact, some influential democrats declare the supreme commanders of the democratic effort from this date will be Wilson and Cummings. Cummings, who wanted to renominate Wilson at San Francisco, having taken final instructions from the president at the White House today before invading the middle west to strike for the league.

Cummings Takes Up Fight.

Mr. Cummings, who delivered the eloquent tribute to Wilson at San Francisco, which almost made the former national chairman a formidable candidate for the democratic nomination, resigned as chairman when Governor Cox was nominated, and up to the present time has taken little active part in the campaign. But when President Wilson leaped into the breach to aid Cox in the final drive for votes, with the league as the imperative issue, Cummings rushed to Washington from his home in Connecticut and is now on his way to take up the White House burden in the fight to save the Wilson covenant from national repudiation.

President Wilson talked with his former campaign manager for half an hour this afternoon. When Mr. Cummings left the president he would not, of course, comment on what the executive said. But judging from the president's message to the American people Sunday night, calling upon them to vindicate their country's honor by endorsing the league of nations, it was conceded that the president talked over with his political manager, the plan they are to pursue in seeking to turn back the American masses from their steady stride toward the restoration to power of the republican party.

Invades Doubtful States.

Mr. Cummings is to make his drive in what has been described as doubtful territory in this campaign, being scheduled to whomp 'em up for the league in Ohio, Kansas, Indiana, New Mexico and Colorado.

He will open the administration's phase of the speaking tour in Cincinnati Thursday. While the president is preparing to follow his address of Sunday night with further arguments on the league, the republican publicity association called attention to the vitally important fact in conjunction with the league, that "one party to a contract cannot insist upon the right to determine the interpretation of the language of the contract."

Peace Officers Denied Right to Search Homes Without Warrants

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 6.—Right of peace officers to search private premises or seize personal property without a search warrant was denied in an opinion handed down by the Kentucky court of appeals.

The case was the outgrowth of an effort, the record shows, to enforce prohibition laws.

A citizens whose home was searched by a sheriff without a warrant appealed to the higher court when the officer took from his premises a quantity of liquor. The court ordered the liquor returned.

Chief Justice John D. Carroll's opinion said: "It is better that a guilty individual escape punishment than that a court of justice should violate a vital, fundamental principle."
