I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me. Eugene M, Pullen, Carpenter, 714 G Marcellus Avenue, Manssquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

What's What By HELEN DECIE.

What are the affronted guests to do when a hostess plays cards with one group of visitors and leaves another invited group to entertain themselves by giving them "something to read," or by telling them to watch the game? They will leave, of course, not at once, but a little

As the illustration shows this does not arouse a selfish and ignorant "lady of the house" to a sense of duty. She will not rise, even to speed the parting guests whose murmured adieux cover a resolution abiding as the raven's-nevermore! "It is no part of a guest's duties to teach her hostess manners," writes E. F. Benson, in one of his charming novels. Yet, in the course of the same story, when a newly rich vulgarian host and hostess do not rise to bid the rector and his wife good-night, the author very properly makes a peer and peeress (who are also guests) stand up in place of the derelict hosts as the visitors take their leave.
