Clairvoyant Poisoned Young Wife's Mind With Stories Of Other Women, Husband Charges.

A struggle between belief in clairvoyancy and the love for a husband is being waged in the mind of Mrs. Ethel Elliott, pretty girl-wife of Edward Elliott, 43 1/2 North Twenty-third street.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Elliott declared she believed her love for her husband had triumphed, but confessed her belief in the mystic had not been entirely shaken.

When Mrs. Elliott, with her 8-month-old baby, Edward, returned from a visit in Kansas a month ago she says she was assisted by a Mrs. Ida Clutter, who claimed to be a medium, and who lived in the same apartment building.

Mrs. Clutter urged her to undergo a reading and she consented. The reading was performed with cards. The first wife was informed her husband had "gone with other women while she was away."

Doubted Her Husband.

"My confidence in Edward, was entirely shaken," said little Mrs. Elliott yesterday, and a tear trickled down her cheek. "I felt the room in a dazed condition. Somehow I felt the presence of something mysterious—some unearthly being—while the reading was going on."

"I didn't want to believe Mrs. Clutter. Edward and I had only been married a short time, and there was my baby to think of. But she was nervous and shaken, and I couldn't help doubting him."

"Edward noticed I didn't seem the same. He questioned me and at last I told him. He was very angry and went to Mrs. Clutter with a check for $100, telling her she could have the money if she proved he was untrue to me."

"She was unable to prove it. She became angry and drew a knife on my husband. I called the police, but Mrs. Clutter went away before they arrived."

Little Mrs. Elliott held her baby tight and her eyes shone.

"I do want to believe in my husband," she announced. "I believe I can. I don't think he goes with other women because he works all day and stays at home with me at night. And he always gives me his pay check."

Promises To Forget.

Then her youthful countenance clouded. "It's hard to forget, though." She hesitated, and then "but I will forget and love him as if nothing had happened."

Her husband was arrested Monday on a charge filed by Mrs. Clutter, charging him with disturbing the peace.

He told her a story similar to that of his wife at Central police station, charging the clairvoyant had attempted to wreck his home.

He declared Mrs. Clutter's husband had offered to make further revelations regarding his infidelity but had told his wife he must place his arms around her to "tell her fortune right."

The Clutters left the apartment where the Elliotts live Saturday night and left no address. The charge of Mrs. Clutter against Elliott will be heard in police court tomorrow.

"I will testify that Mrs. Clutter drew a knife on my husband," said Mrs. Elliott yesterday morning. "I am almost convinced she was simply trying to wreck our home when she told me those things. I don't know why, though, unless—well, she might have cared for Edward."

"Anyway I'm trying, oh so hard, to forget what she told me and love my husband as I should."

Parade of Ponies 'Button Day' Aim Of Humane Agent

Director of Society Appeals to Children to Help Boost Money Drive Set for Saturday.

Kids with ponies here's your opportunity!

W. W. Bradley, secretary of the Nebraska Humane society, announced yesterday that if any pony owners in Omaha were sufficiently interested in the work of the society and would direct a pony parade he would co-operate and offer prizes of real cash.

Bradley wants the parade held Saturday, button day for the humane society. He wants all the kids in Omaha with ponies of every size and description to join in the parade and primarily he wants an adult pony owner with the public welfare at heart to volunteer to supervise the parade.

Bradley's telephone number is Douglas 5341 and anyone desiring to supervise a pony parade is requested to call him by telephone.

Bradley is willing to give a series of prizes for the youngest pony in the parade, the oldest pony, the pony coming the longest distance, the prettiest pony and prizes for other pony qualifications.

A parade of ponies and pretty girls and nice looking boys riding down Farnam street at noon on Saturday with banners advertising our button day and possibly with the high school band playing certainly would stimulate interest in the work of the society and aid in selling buttons," Bradley said today.

Bradley was looking hopefully to the Misses Eleanor Kountze, Margaret Burgess and Dorothy Higgins, who rode ponies in the Red Star parade in Omaha during the war. They are big girls now, Bradley asserted, and expressed hope that they might communicate with him and make plans for the pony parade.

California to Go 100,000, Sure. For Republicans

Senator Johnson During Short Sojourn in Omaha Gives Optimistic Report on Outlook on Coast.

Senator Hiram Johnson of California stated Monday night at the Union station, on his way east to begin a campaign tour under the direction of the republican national committee, that he had no doubt from the first about Senator Harding's position on the league of nations and that the nominee's stand is now absolute and will be justly and bitter-ender or irreconcilable.

The California statesman, who scored first place in the Nebraska presidential primary last April, is traveling direct from San Francisco to Chicago, where he will confer today with the republican campaign committee on matters relating to his speaking tour, which will begin in Ohio this week.

The senator sat on a truck, while he chatted with a group of Omahans. He was accompanied from California by Frank A. Harrison of Lincoln, who was his campaign manager during the primary contest.

Met by Omahans.

Among those who met him at the train were: R. B. Howell, national committeeman; W. G. Ure, county chairman; Thomas Lynch, secretary of the county central committee; John W. Towle, Ed. L. Bradley, R. C. Drusedo, Samuel Mancuso, John G. Maher and Robert Smith.

The local committee urged the senator to speak here in the Auditorium Saturday night, October 17, and thus break the tradition of Bryan speaking in Omaha on Saturday night before presidential election day ever since 1896.

The senator asserted that the proposition appealed to him and promised to endeavor to arrange with the speakers' bureau in Chicago to schedule him for this Omaha date.

The senator will open his speaking tour tomorrow in Toledo, and will speak in Cleveland Thursday, Milwaukee Friday and Chicago Saturday.

California Safe.

"I would not have left California unless I had been satisfied that it was safe for the republican ticket," the senator said. "I may say that California will go republican by 100,000 at the lowest estimate. I understand that Nebraska is safe, and that is why I did not expect to speak here, but your invitation to speak in Omaha appeals to me. I am mighty grateful to the people of Nebraska for what they did for me last April. Words cannot tell how I feel. The people here were more than kind to me."

He stated that the league of nations is the one big issue now, and commented on the fact that when he started out to fight the league the opponents were not as popular as they are now.

"There is nothing to it now," he added. "I am going to preach the same doctrine that I have been preaching for the last year and a half. This is a system I don't like and which I shall hereafter fight, but I have declared a truce temporarily because of the big thing that is involved."

After having been married in the city hall her allusions as to the millionaire Nebraska which the matrimonial paper had so cleverly described, were rudely awakened. Instead of a mansion she found that she was to live in a hotel as the stepmother of six ragged youngsters, and the bride of a chronic object of charity.

She went to work in the Swedish hospital and soon obtained a divorce. Her spirit broken in a strange land, whose language she did not understand, she pined to be with her married daughter in Copenhagen.

That is where she is today, for the Salvation Army provided her with transportation to New York and conveyed her all the way to a country where she would be happy and secure from a poverty stricken old age.
