

Dazed With Wine as He Wed Twice

"Tons of Champagne, Then—I Don't Remember," Is Alibi of Nebraskan Accused of Marrying 2 Chicago Girls.

Claimed Also by Third

Portland, Ore., Oct. 15.—(Special.)—A third girl, Kathleen Elms, a toe dancer, now in Seattle, made claim yesterday that Glen T. Aldrich, former naval officer facing charges of bigamy filed by two Chicago brides, is her husband. She alleges that he married her in 1914. Aldrich is held here pending extradition to Illinois.

The troubles of Aldrich, who says that his father is a wealthy packer of Nebraska City, Neb., began with a grand drinking and spending orgy in Chicago several weeks ago, he says.

Detective Sergeant John Cartan, here to take Aldrich back to the Windy City, states that the authorities have evidence that Aldrich overdraw his account $4,000.

Has Copies of Letters.
One unnumbered check for $600 is said to have been given the Hotel La Salle in Chicago in payment for the wedding party celebrating Aldrich's marriage to Miss Lillian Dumbrow, 18, daughter of wealthy parents.

Ten days after this marriage Aldrich is alleged to have married Miss Esther Carlson of Chicago at Great Falls, Mont. He is alleged to have deserted this bride after two days.

Sergeant Cartan showed alleged copies of letters to Bride No. 2, in which was a full confession of the first marriage.

An excerpt from the letter follows: "She was but a nightmare in my life—a figure in a drunken revelry. I met her at the Midway. Frolic. Tons of champagne flowed."

"Then somebody said, 'How about a wedding breakfast?'"

"I don't remember what happened next, but when I awoke I found I was married to this girl."

"I don't even know her first name."

"Have Written Dad."
In another letter he said: "I have written dad for financial help and figured I would get financial affairs straightened out without having to worry over them."

Again he wrote Bride No. 2, urging her to telegraph $250 at once and admitting that he had been discharged from the employ of the Allied Packing association under a cloud.

Aldrich says he will not fight extradition.

Drivers of "Liquor Hearse" Are Arrested on New Jersey Ferry

New York, Oct. 15.—The first arrests in connection with the hunt for New York's alleged "liquor king" came when two men were taken into custody on an automobile hearse, carrying alcohol on a ferryboat to New Jersey.

Prohibition enforcement agents asserted they had been hearing of a "hearse saloon" for some time past in connection with the "liquor curb," but had had difficulty in tracing it. Records were said to have shown that the hearse had been in use as a liquor and alcohol transport for considerable periods.

Murderer of Wife Hears Trap Sprung

Chicago Tribune—Omaha Bee Leased Wire. Chicago, Oct. 15.—In a jail cell, away from the death court, Carl Wanderer, murderer of his wife and unborn baby and a stranger, Thursday heard the traps fall as two murderers shot through the holes in the gallows. A little later he crossed the bridge in the criminal court building and heard his former neighbors testify against him. James E. Williams and his wife, close neighbors of the Wanderers, said they were in their kitchen when she heard first a single shot and then a fusillade of shots in the Wanderer home.

The trial is being greatly delayed by constant objections by the defense to questions asked by the state. Wanderer prompts many of these objections.
