

The Winter Bedroom

What is so uncomfortable as to try to sleep in a bed provided with insufficient bed clothing. Besides the sheets used on the summer time bed, each bed requires a pair of blankets, preferably of all wool. These are light in weight, but very warm. They are more expensive than the blankets having part cotton, but more economical.

The inexperienced will, in all cases, do well to patronize the reputable shops when shopping for blankets. The day when the housewife made comfortables is gone. The highest-priced ones are stuffed with down or lamb's wool. If these are used on children's beds the thrifty housewife often devises a washable cover of cheesecloth or any light-weight material to be slipped over the comfortable and held in place with tapes or buttons.

Then there are other things that go toward making the winter bedroom more attractive. A fresh coat of paint or varnish on walls or trim or dainty new curtains all help.

No matter what the lighting system of the home, there should be a candle and candlestick as well as matches in every bedroom. The best of lighting systems become arranged and this always at a most inconvenient or inopportune time. There are sets being shown which include a tray, a water pitcher and mug as well as a candlestick and match holder.

In the case of the bedroom, as in many other cases, attention to small detail is of much import. I have heard traveling folks recommend one hotel rather than another simply because "it has the most comfortable rocking chairs and well-placed lights."

Some housewives have a habit of relegating the most uncomfortable chairs to the bedroom and continuing to have the solitary lighting fixture in the middle of the room. But in your endeavor to make winter's bedroom more comfortable look up a comfy rocker and manipulate your light with cord or tubing until it really gives service near the mirror or near the bed or chair, where one may read.

If you have not been sleeping on an outdoor porch all summer you had better begin now if you are going in for outdoor slumber. It is quite universally agreed that outdoor sleeping is desirable. And it is especially so where there is any predisposition to lung trouble. It is never well to begin sleeping out right in the middle of winter, but rather work toward the colder days gradually. The sleeping porch may be glassed in and dainty curtains adjusted to the windows. The windows may be so arranged that they swing easily, admitting lots of air, but no draughts.

A heavy garment designed to well cover the body and preferably of wool is needed for the outdoor sleeper. Foot warmers are also desirable in the porch sleeping outfit.

But whatever arrangement you have, now is the time to put it in first-class condition for winter.

Probably without a parallel in the shoemaking industry is the record of service of Mrs. Lydia Ann Varney, who for 56 years has been a shoe worker in Brockton, Mass. For 22 years she has been working in the same factory and at the same machine.

Memorial Fund

At the convention in Chicago last February it was voted by the League of Women Voters that $500,000 be raised for the first great national memorial ever dedicated to a woman by women.

A two-fold memorial to Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, a Foundation in Political Science at Bryn Mawr college and a Foundation in Preventive Medicine at the Women's Medical college of Pennsylvania.

The fact that Dr. Shaw fought many years to win the vote for women, and as a physician paved the way for women physicians to follow; made this joint memorial especially fitting, opening up as it does new fields for women in the future.

The quota for the League of Women Voters of Douglas county is $1,500, to be raised by the first of November. All of the women of Omaha who wish to join in this thank offering to this simple, unselfish woman who fought for the rights that all women now enjoy may send offerings, great or small, to Mrs. J. L. Kennedy, Frances, West Dodge, Omaha, Neb. Mrs. H. C. Sumney is state chairman for the fund.

Though she has been teaching in the Davidson seminary at Petersburg, Va., for the last 56 years, Miss Nora Fontaine Maury Davidson is still active despite her 84 years of age. She has the distinction of being the oldest teacher in Virginia and is believed to be the oldest in the United States.

A dressmaking school has been opened in Tokio, Japan, for those Japanese women who wish to learn how to make western costumes. It is being conducted by Miss Hanaya Sakamoto, a Japanese secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who has studied in the United States and Canada. The class is attended by a number of the wealthier women of Tokio, who are dressing their children as western mothers do and wish to learn to make their underclothes as well as outer garments.

What's What

The spoiled child was in evidence before Solomon's time, and, no doubt, the type will remain with the race until Doomsday. The nursery tyrant is always on his worst behavior when guests are present. In the illustration, an infant terrible is kicking the hapless visitor, upon whom, for business reasons, both host and hostess are anxious to make a favorable impression. The embarrassed mother is utterly incapable of controlling the infantile fury; the spoiled child has ruined the all-important visit.

Overindulgent parents are continually rewarded by these exhibitions of youthful savagery. Discipline should rule the child from his first consciousness of adult authority. He should be taught to lip polite greetings, to answer civilly when spoken to, and to govern his temper at all times. Then, and then only, will he be likely to "behave in company."

Humane Society Officer

Mrs. C. L. Farnsworth is secretary-treasurer of the woman's auxiliary to the Nebraska Humane society. Many dollars are being turned in to her as a result of the Saturday "Button Day." The National Humane society will meet in convention in Omaha October 25-28.

The Life of Your Garments

A good deal depends on how you keep your clothes as to whether their life is long or short. Everybody who has observed the life of two different fipcks, one of which was carefully used and the other of which was carelessly used, knows this.

It doesn't follow that you must not wear your clothes, or that you must wear them carefully. When one sees a woman too careful of the clothes she has on, one is reminded of the little girl all of us knew who was eternally flouncing her sash out of harm's way when she sat down, and vigilantly, if surreptitiously, rubbing her shoes on her stockings to remove the dust. Too great care in the wearing of clothes is an unattractive habit. Far better to wear a cotton frock and wear it easily than to wear one of satin with too great care.

As for the care you take of the clothes once they are off your back—that is another thing.

For one thing, air everything that does not go to the tub. Place blouses and frocks, coats and skirts on suitable hangers, and air them at least once a week, if possible out of doors, on a porch, or else in an open window.

Have plenty of hangers. Never hang anything up carelessly. You can save tailor's bills by observing this hint.

Have your clothes cleaned when they need it, either by yourself, by your maid, by a tailor, or by a dry cleaner.

Brush or shake out everything when you take it off. This removes much surface dust that would otherwise become firmly lodged.

Keep velvet clothes in bags, to prevent their rubbing against other cloths and ruining their own soft nap.

"Let Us Smile"
(M. B. Paris, 1906.)
The thing that goes the furthest towards making life worth while, That casts the least and does the most, is just a pleasant smile. The smile that bubbles from the heart that loves its fellow man Will drive away the clouds of gloom and chase the sun again. It's full of worth and goodness, too, with nearly the same cost. It's worth a million dollars and doesn't cost a cent.

There is no room for sadness when you see a cheery smile. It always has the same good look, it's never out of style. It naves us on to try again, when failure makes us blue. The smiles of encouragement are good for me and you. It pays a higher interest for its merely lent; It's worth a million dollars and doesn't cost a cent.

A smile comes very easy, you can wrinkle up with cheer. A hundred times, before you can squeeze it ripples out moreover to the heart strings that will tug. So smile away? folks by what a smile is meant. It's worth a million dollars and doesn't cost a cent.

Of the 30 Serbian girls brought to America by Dr. Rosalie S. Morton of New York, all are to take up dental and medical courses in schools and colleges in the United States. Each student is required to sign a contract that they will not marry an American, and if they do, the money spent on their education must be repaid.

The Lady Says She Felt No Pain Whatever

Although having very Sensitive Teeth, she had eighteen teeth extracted at one sitting.

Read Her Letter

Dear Dr. Crook—
I have been wearing the new plates you made for me about ten days now, and I feel I ought to tell you how comfortable and satisfactory they are. My friends tell me I look fifteen years younger.

I don't mind telling you now that I took me over a week to make up my mind to come to you and have my teeth out, as I have always suffered agonies in a dentist's chair. It was my sister, Mrs. _____, who made me come after she had her work done by you. Doctor, I can truthfully say that you extracted my teeth without the slightest pain whatever. My only regret is that I did not come to you five years sooner and saved myself five years of trouble.
