

Butter and Milk For School Kids Who Are Skinny

Nutrition Centers Established In Three Institutions to Fatten Subnormal Children.

Nutrition centers will be started next week in the Pacific, Bancroft and Hawthorne schools, according to an announcement by Charlotte Townsend, supervisor of medical inspection in the public schools.

The establishment of these three centers will mark the beginning of a new era in public school health work here. The children of these schools first will be weighed to determine whether they are of normal or subnormal weights, according to a standard which has been accepted as authoritative. Children who are 10 per cent or more underweight will be eligible to the nutrition classes.

Milk and Butter.

It is proposed to limit the class in each school to 20 and to make replacements when some of the class members show an improvement. The classes will meet from 10 to 10:30 a. m. and from 2 to 2:30 p. m. each school day in rooms specially provided for this purpose. During the first 10 minutes of these, half-hour periods the children will be given milk and buttered bread without cost to them. During the remaining 20 minutes of the period they will rest on cots and fresh air will be admitted to the nutrition rooms.

To Invite Mothers.

Each child will have a chart which will show the weight at time of entering the class and a red line will indicate what the child's normal weight should be.

A school nurse will be assigned to each nutrition center. She will visit the homes for the purpose of promoting proper health habits. The mothers of subnormal children will be invited to attend the nutrition classes once a week, when the children are weighed.

Son of M. C. Peters Decides to Leave Needle In His Foot

X-Ray Shows Steel Imbedded Deep In Bone—"Won't Hurt You, Let It Stay," Surgeons Advise.

Chances are that he will carry a piece of steel needle imbedded in the bone of his foot for the rest of his life.

A little over a week ago, Clarence H. Peters, son of M. C. Peters, 206 South Thirty-second avenue, crossed the floor of his bedroom in his bare foot.

He felt something sharp pierce the ball of his foot. Investigation disclosed nothing, and with a passing thought that he had stepped on a tack, he dismissed the case from his mind.

The incident was forgotten for a week, when of a sudden sharp pains began to shoot through his foot.

Young Peters consulted a surgeon, who advised an X-ray examination. The examination showed a needle, broken into three pieces, imbedded in the foot.

Monday one of the three pieces was removed, and Tuesday a second was taken out.

But the third section of the sharp instrument is so buried in the bone of the foot that surgeons advised the young man to leave it there.

The piece is needle which is in the bone is causing no pain and probably will never do any damage, the surgeons declared.

Skin Diseases Not On the Surface

Must Be Treated at Their Source.

The mistake that is so generally made in treating diseases of the skin is a very common one, but it is also very expensive to the sufferer.

What are popularly known as skin diseases, are not in reality skin diseases at all. The surface of the skin is the seat of the attack, but the source is deep-seated.

What, then is this mistake, that the average person afflicted with skin disorders, makes in his effort for relief? And why is it that the error is so general?

In the first place, eczema, tetter, scaly eruptions and other irritations of the skin are exceedingly annoying, and in many cases, the itching and burning become intensely terrifying. Often the victim is kept awake at night scratching and rubbing the burning skin, in an effort to get some relief.

Because what he sees and feels of his affliction is on the surface, he is misled into the error of believing that all treatment should be directed toward the location of the pain and discomfort. Then, too, because of the intensity of the suffering, he is willing to try almost anything that he thinks will afford some measure of relief, no matter how slight.

This leads him headlong into the mistake that is so general, the one that really prolongs his suffering by keeping him away from the intelligent, sensible treatment that will get results. He endeavors to get relief from the pain and torture by the use of ointments, lotions and other local treatment applied to the surface of the skin.

These remedies will prove beneficial, if temporary relief is all that is wanted. But just as soon as their soothing effect is over, the pain and suffering return with increased severity. This has been the experience of other sufferers, and yours will be the same.

Skin disorders, like other ailments, must be treated at their source if you want to be permanently rid of them. Any disease that can cause so much torture and discomfort is deep-seated, and comes from far below the surface of the skin.

The millions of tiny disease germs must be removed from the blood, before you can expect to get rid of your skin troubles, but all of the local treatment in the world will not do this. The most satisfactory remedy for this purpose is S.S.S., the fine old vegetable blood remedy that has given such splendid results in similar cases.

S.S.S. acts by cleansing the blood thoroughly, and routing all disease germs that act through the skin. Those who want real results should begin its use at once.

S.S.S. is sold by all druggists. Get a bottle today and begin a treatment that goes right down to the source of the trouble and removes it. For expert medical advice without cost, write all about your case to Chief Medical Adviser, 288 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.
