Omaha Irishmen Demand Death Of Lloyd George

Friends of Irish Freedom Ask Execution for Death of Mayor MacSwiney—Score Cox and Wilson.

Execution of Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain was called for at the meeting of the Friends of Irish Freedom in Labor temple Tuesday night, held on the occasion of the death of Lord Mayor Terence MacSwiney of Cork.

President Wilson, Governor Cox and the league of nations were all severely denounced by the Irishmen. A cablegram of sympathy was ordered sent the widow of the lord mayor.

A committee was appointed to set aside a day to be observed in Omaha as a memorial to MacSwiney. A resolution was adopted denouncing the British government as a menace to civilization and the State Department of the United States for taking no action in the case.

Stirring speeches were made by the Rev. Father Triscoll, Louis A. Kavanagh, President Tony Donahoe, William O'Shaughnessy, M. B. Hogan, Patrick Darcy. Several hundred were present.

Emotion Has No Place in Politics, —Mrs. Severance

St. Paul Woman, Decorated for War Work, Comes to Omaha to Speak Against League.

Mrs. C. A. Severance of St. Paul, Minn., who came to Omaha yesterday at the direction of the speakers' bureau of the republican national committee, has a message which she delivered to Omaha women voters at a meeting in the First Unitarian church, Thirty-first and Harney streets, last night. Mrs. Severance, who is a brilliant speaker, declares she has made more speeches on various subjects for the past two months than anyone except possibly Governor Cox. Her principal appeal is directed to the women voters to vote right and not be carried away by emotion. Last night she told her audience the importance of women rousing up and dispelling the indifferent attitude that has asserted itself in certain sections of the city. Twenty-three million women of the country have the deciding vote, Mrs. Severance declared. She urges that they cast it for Senator Harding for president because the republican party gave women suffrage. Mrs. Severance says it is unfortunate that Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the Women's Voting league, is making an emotional appeal to the members of the league to support Governor Cox, on the ground that he will do away with war. Membership in the league will precipitate war sooner than independence of it, Mrs. Severance declared. It is as deceptive a promise as Mr. Wilson made when he said he would keep America out of war. Mrs. Severance is taking an active part in the republican campaign as a patriotic duty. She says she has no political ambitions. Women can be most valuable in this regard she maintains, because their work is done with unselfish motives, not contemplating any political emoluments. Before the war Mrs. Severance took the platform in the interests of national preparedness, philanthropic service and in the interest of children of the devastated areas of Belgium she was decorated by the king of Belgium.

SLEEPY-TIME TALES THE TALE OF BROWNIE BEAVER

BY ARTHUR SCOTT BAILEY

CHAPTER IV The Freshet

The rain had fallen steadily for two days and two nights—not just a gentle drizzle, but a heavy down-pour. For some time it did not in the least disturb Brownie Beaver and his neighbors—that is to say, all but one of them. For there was a very old gentleman in the village known as Granddaddy Beaver who began to water began to rise very fast. It rose so quickly that several families found their bedroom floors under water almost before they knew it. Then Old Granddaddy Beaver went through the village and stopped at every door.

"What do you think about it now?" he asked. "Is it a freshet or isn't it?" In the houses where the water had climbed all over the bedroom floors the people all agreed that it was a freshet and that Granddaddy Beaver had been right all the time. But there were still plenty of people who thought the old gentleman was mistaken.

"The water won't come any higher," they said. "It never has, at this time of year." But they looked a bit worried, in spite of what they said. "It's a-going to be the worst freshet that's happened since you were born," their caller croaked. "You mark my words!"

When he came to Brownie Beaver's house Granddaddy found that there was one person, at least, that had taken his advice. "I see you're all ready for the freshet!" the old gentleman remarked. "They laughed at me; but I was right," he said. "They laughed at me, too," Brownie Beaver told him.

"There's nobody in this village that'll laugh again to-night," Granddaddy said, very solemnly. "For there's a-going to be a flood before morning."

A new grip that fits over the muzzle of a riveting hammer protects a user's hands against burns and gives him an unobstructed view of his work.

"You young folks can poke fun at me if you want to," said Granddaddy Beaver. "But I'm a-going right ahead and make my house as strong as I can. For w'en the freshet p'g here I don't want my home washed away."

All day long people would stop to watch the old fellow at work upon his roof. And everybody thought it was a great joke—until the second day came and everybody noticed that it was raining just as hard as ever. But no one except Granddaddy Beaver had ever heard of a freshet at that time of year. So even then nobody else went to work on his house, though some people did stop sniling. A freshet, you know, is a serious thing.

As the second day passed, the rain seemed to fall harder. And still Granddaddy Beaver kept putting new sticks on the roof of his house and plastering mud over them. And at last Brownie Beaver began to think that perhaps the old gentleman was right, after all, and that maybe everybody else was wrong.

So Brownie went home and set to work. And all his neighbors at once began to smile at him. "My roof needed mending, anyhow," he said. "And if we should have a freshet, I'll be ready for it. And if we don't have one, there'll be no harm done."

Now, all this time the water had been rising slowly. But that was no more than everyone expected, since it was raining so hard. But when the second night came, the

WHY?—Do We Speak of "Cutting a Person off With a Shilling?"

Blackstone, in referring to this phrase synonymous with disinheritance, states that it has its origin in the early Roman law, and that it has persisted in modern times notwithstanding the fact that the statutes leading to its adoption have long since been repealed. "The Romans," says Blackstone, "were accustomed to set aside testaments as being deficient in natural duty if they disinherited or totally passed by any of the children of the testator. But if the child had any legacy, however small, it was proof that the testator had not lost his reason or his memory, which otherwise the law presumed. Hence arose that groundless error of leaving the heir a shilling or some other express legacy, in order effectually to disinherit him." The law of England makes no such constrained suppositions of forgetfulness or insanity, and therefore, though the heir or next of kin be totally omitted, it admits no deficiency in natural duty to set aside such a testament.

Salvation Army to Start Fund Drive in Alliance

Alliance, Neb., Oct. 27.—(Special Telegram.)—The local corps of the Salvation Army established last week will hold a drive Saturday to raise funds to meet expenses of the new post. Plans have been made by the county advisory board for a later campaign to raise Box Butte county's quota of $500. The two women workers sent here from Hastings, Neb., have engaged a hall for permanent headquarters and will start nightly meetings in the hall and on the streets immediately.
