MRS. HOWARD DOUGLAS

Yellow chrysanthemums and palms decorated the Church of All Saints, Saturday evening, when Katherine Louise Newbranch became the bride of Howard Nicholson Douglas. Rev. A. H. Marsden read the marriage lines. The tiny pages were Betty Nolan, who wore a boyish costume of white satin, and Gretchen Travis, who wore ruffled pink organza. Miss Eleanor Newbranch, sister of the bride, and Miss Helen Sturges were bridesmaids. Miss Newbranch was gowned in silver cloth under rose tulle and Miss Sturges wore silver cloth under sapphire blue tulle. Miss Evelyn Newbranch, another sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor and wore silver cloth as did Jade green tulle. All the gowns were decollete and short. The three attendants wore silver ribbon hats and carried staves tied with tulle to match their gowns. The bride was lovely in her modish gown of white charmeuse made with short bouffant skirt and low cut sleeveless bodice embroidered in iridescent beads. The tulle veil fell from a crown of rose point lace and ended in a short white satin train. With this costume she carried a huge bride's bouquet made in shower effect.

Miss Dorothy Doyle of Lincoln sang "Ave Maria." She wore a gown of orange satin under orange tulle and trimmed with huge golden flowers. J. H. Simms played the wedding march. J. Porter Allen and Fred Walrath were groomsmen and the ushers were Ward Browne and Richard Smith. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the Newbranch home. In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Ellsworth Newbranch, parents of the bride, and Mrs. O. P. Newbranch, her grandmother, and Mr. and Mrs. John Douglas, parents of the groom. Assisting through the rooms were Mrs. R. M. Jones, Misses Rita Sullivan, Mildred Rockwell and Helen Giltner. The bride's traveling suit was of dark blue tricot with which she wore a small hat of black and silver. Mr. and Mrs. Douglas have gone on a southern motor trip. Upon their return to Omaha they will reside at 120 South Forty-fourth street.

MRS. GEORGE STIRRAT
