Iron Board Cover.
The cover on the ironing board may be made of old sheets, but is better made of new heavy unbleached sheeting 60 inches wide. This allows the width of muslin to form the length of the cover. The cover should be hemmed and four pieces of tape firmly sewed to each side so that it can be easily put on and taken off. Ready-made covers laced together through eyelets are also convenient. There are various spring devices for holding the cover together, but some of them are likely to tear it.

Notes of Interest to Women

The recently formed Belgian academy has decided to admit women to its sacred councils.

Only about 6 per cent of the females in Spain are employed outside their homes.

Mrs. Esther M. Richardson has been a school teacher in Kansas for the past 63 years.

Mrs. Hugh Wallace, wife of the American ambassador to France, is considered the busiest American in Paris.

One thousand girl scouts in Harrisburg, Pa., acted as nurses for babies for mothers who desired to vote on election day.

Of the 789 qualified voters on the list in Upland, Mass., 390 were women, the majority of which exercised their right to vote.

The famous school of the Beaux Arts, where the great traditions of French art are taught, is now open to women in all its departments. Up to the present women could only study painting and sculpture, engraving and lithography being barred to them.

In Zealand the girls and women all wear full long black skirts, white caps, tiny gold spirals, coral beads and aprons.

Kurdish women are particularly attractive. They go unveiled and they have the straight, direct look of the men.

Women artists' models in Japan are paid $23 to $30 per month and are expected to do two or three hours' sittings a day.

It is estimated that the 1920 census will show that fully one-third of all persons in the United States who are gainfully employed are women.

There are in the United States 25,000,000 women and girls over 10 years of age who are not wage earners, but are occupied in their homes.

Women were practically unknown in the business world in Argentina until American business concerns began establishing branches there.

Problems That Perplex

Answered by BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: Please help me decide some questions in mind. I have been keeping company with a young lady for nearly a year. I asked her some time ago if she would marry me; she said, "I will let you know some day."

We do not live in the same town, but will see each other Thanksgiving day. I am sure she will tell me then and I believe she will say "yes." If she does, what will be proper for me to tell her? How long afterwards will I buy the ring? We will be at her home. Is it necessary to ask her father for her, and, if so, what shall I say to him? She has been "stepping out" with other fellows. Is this all right, or should I object to it? Who sets the wedding day, or should both of us? Should I ask her how large a diamond to buy? A SUBSCRIBER.

If the girl says "yes" say what you really mean. Tell her it makes you happy, or talk over plans for the future, or whatever is natural. Be spontaneous. Don't plan too closely what you will say, but try to be sincere with your words. The rule about "being father" is not as strict as it once was, but it seems to me a young man should address the girl's father on the subject.

The matter of the ring is up to you. You might ask the girl if she prefers a diamond or some other stone. If she is like most girls she will prefer the diamond. But you should say nothing to her about the size of the stone. Buy a ring which you think will please her, making it as nice as you can afford. It is perfectly natural for a girl to like a pretty diamond, but she is not the right kind of a girl if she wants you to buy a large stone just to satisfy vanity, whether you can afford it or not. If she accepts you on Thanksgiving, it seems to me Christmas would be a good time to present her the ring.

So long as you are not engaged, it is all right for her to go with other fellows. If she accepts you Thanksgiving, you might tell her that it hurts you when she goes with other fellows, and she probably will not continue to go with them. That, however, is a matter you should leave largely to her good taste and judgment.

You should talk over the wedding day together, deciding upon an approximate time. Let the girl set the exact date.

Little Miss Doubtful—Your letter sounds straightforward. Why should there be anything wrong in knowing a man of 29? Many men of that age are very fine. The man is considerably older than you and I would advise you not to be too hasty in developing the friendship.

It is all right for the man to stop at the hotel in your town when he comes to see you, but you should make it clear to him before he comes that you cannot entertain him in your home. Tell him truthfully that your sisters and their husbands will be with you over Christmas, and that it will be necessary for him to stop at the hotel. But you can tell him your table is large and you will expect him to join the family there for meals and in every other way to be at home at your house. He may prefer not to join you at breakfast, but you may invite him.

Yes, if he comes all the way from Georgia to see you, give him a Christmas present. A fountain pen, something in leather goods, or even a tie pin, would be appropriate. The gift should not be elaborate or too personal, but should represent to some extent your kindly feeling.

E. N.—Some of the best men in the world are fat men. It is very evident you do not care for the man in question, but you seem disposed to trifle with him. If you can't give him sincere friendship, let him alone and at least don't hurt his feelings and destroy his confidence in women.

years of the war here and have many friends here, and the Hon. H. D. Landis, regent of the university. Professor Landis and Professor Avery left Lincoln on October 11 to officially represent the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. The occasion is the semi-centennial celebration of the Ohio State university at Columbus, O. On October 14, 15 and 16, they represented the university at the inauguration of President Burton of the university of Michigan at Ann Arbor. On the 18, 19, and 20 Chancellor Avery, as president for the year, presided over the sessions of the Land Grant colleges at Springfield, Mass. This convention comprises 55 universities and colleges, in fact all the colleges of the country receiving federal support for agriculture. The association represents a total of 10,000 professors, 100,000 students and annual expenditures of $40,000,000. From Springfield Mr. Landis and Chancellor Avery went to Amherst to participate in the exercises of the semi-centennial Massachusetts Agricultural college. The 23d, 24th, and 25th they spent in studying the architecture and layouts of Harvard university. Institute of Technology and Brown university. Mrs. Avery joined the university party in Rhode Island and came with them to Washington. Architecture and memorials were studied here. A very delightful evening was spent with the Washington University of Nebraska alumni on the 28th, at which Chancellor Avery and Regent Landis reported on the progress of the institution since the last Washington meeting four years ago. The party were entertained delightfully in the home of the Strattons at 1004 Park road, and left on Friday evening of last week for Lincoln.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Probably there is no other car that every day in the year meets the demand of the Physician quite so satisfactorily as does the Ford Coupe, with its permanent top, its broad seat and deep upholstery, its sliding plate glass windows, by which in a minute the car is changed from a closed car to an open car. While in inclement weather it remains a closed car, dust-proof, water-proof, storm-proof. Equipped with electric starting and lighting system. Demountable rims with 3 1/2-inch tires all around, tire carrier, and embodying all the established merits and economies of the Ford car. Low in purchase price; low in cost of operation and maintenance; simple, yet sure in operation, and durable beyond any other make of car. Just as useful to the Traveling Salesman, Real Estate Man, Contractor, Builder, and a two-seated family car. Leave your order with any of the dealers listed below.
