

Senators' Probe of U. S. Housing Is Held Worth While

Industrial Secretary of C. of C. Upholds Trip of Solons Over Country; Will Help Building, He Says.

J. M. Gillan, manager of the industrial bureau of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce, who served as secretary on the special committee which met with the senate reconstruction committee, headed by Senator William M. Calder of New York, to discuss the housing situation here last Saturday, issued a statement yesterday upholding the value of the trip the committee is making across the country.

"While everybody agrees that the practical way to relieve the housing situation, is to build more homes," Mr. Gillan declared, "the question of where the money is going to come from and who will furnish it is the rub. All great constructive movements require a good deal of agitation in order to get them properly started, and the housing situation is no exception to the rule. Vast sums of money formerly flowing into house building have been diverted within the past three years into other channels, and something must be done to start the dollars rolling again into house building."

"Work Worth While." "A great many people no doubt felt that the hearings held by the United States senate committee throughout the country would be of practically no value and in fact I was rather inclined to that opinion myself. But after getting into the work of preparing for this hearing, which required more than a week of getting briefs from the business men of Omaha, covering every viewpoint from the more lenient to the more drastic, I am fully convinced that the work was well worth while; and such hearings tend to bring this important matter before the public and before the congress of the United States with much greater force than the ordinary discussions could have produced."

"Senator Calder is sponsor for a bill introduced in congress by which it is proposed that the government sell long-time bonds for the purpose of creating a fund which will be used exclusively for home building. The funds derived from the sale of these bonds will be distributed throughout the country to the building and loan associations, in exchange for real estate mortgages. The plan looks practical and if it is, it will enable the building and loan associations to enlarge their scope of home building because they will have more funds for that purpose."

To Benefit Omaha. "Omaha stands in the very front rank of home building, by and through the building and loan associations, and if this proposed plan advocated by Senator Calder and others should prove to be feasible and is adopted, the Omaha associations will undoubtedly be benefited."

"On the other hand, if the plan is not adopted, the Omaha associations will undoubtedly be benefited."

does not meet with the approval of the building and loan associations and financiers of the country, then some other plan must be devised and put into use at the earliest possible moment.

Gives Much Light. "Senator Calder stated several times at the hearing here that his trip over the country had been of a great real of value to him and had thrown much light upon the situation in various communities, which he and his committee would not have had without meeting the business men and people face to face, and learning of their difficulties and problems as they actually exist in each community."

"Marrying Parson" Replies To Dr. Cobbe's Criticism. Rev. Charles W. Savidge, the "marrying parson," replied to charges of Rev. C. E. Cobbe of the First Christian church that he "tipped crowd house elevator men to send him copies to be married," by declaring "if anyone assists me in my work it is my privilege to reward them."

He denied he was commercializing marriage or destroying its sanctity, as charged by Rev. Mr. Cobbe.
