

Eckman Sane as He Signed Will Deposition Says

Testimony of Trained Nurse Read in Court Supports Contentment of Young Wife In Will Fight.

Several depositions to show that the late E. M. Eckman was sane when he signed a will leaving his pretty young bride his entire estate were read in county court yesterday morning in connection with his step-daughter's effort to break the will.

Elizabeth B. Norman, a trained nurse, gave minute details regarding how the will had been drawn in Eckman's summer cottage in Minnesota while Eckman laid on his deathbed.

"Was Quite Normal."

"I was invited to spend a time with Mr. Eckman and his wife, who had been a close friend of mine," said Miss Norman in her deposition. "Mr. Eckman was quite normal during my stay and on the night the will was drawn he declared he wanted a will so written that his entire worldly possessions should go to his wife."

"He mentioned two of his diamonds and insurance policies while conversing about his estate. He said his oldest daughter had married a worthless fellow and complained his daughters failed to notice him."

"Because of this he said he intended to cut his daughters off."

Mrs. Eckman, who was formerly Miss Gwendolyn Petty, a pretty nurse, listened attentively to the deposition of her nurse friend, and occasionally nodded as if to give assent to its truth.

"Mrs. Eckman wanted to wait until morning before drawing up the will," Miss Norman said, "but Mr. Eckman insisted it be drawn up that night."

"There was a little table a few feet from his bed on the porch of his summer cottage. The will was written, then rewritten. I was the first to sign it."

Will Is Drawn.

Mrs. Emmet Hannan and Mrs. F. C. Henry, Omaha stepdaughters of Eckman, are contesting the will on the ground their father was suffering from paresis, a form of insanity, at the time the will was drawn.

It is estimated the Eckman estate will total from $100,000 to $150,000.

George Drew, a butcher at Worthington, Minn., in a deposition read yesterday, said Eckman had sold him an order of goods and that he seemed perfectly sane. Eckman "might have been drinking a little," he said.

Eckman was president of the Eckman Chemical company here. He first met his nurse-bride when she cared for him at his apartment during an illness.

A courtship ensued, ending when Eckman, Miss Petty and a chauffeur drove to Minnesota and were married enroute.

Eckman died the day following the midnight session in which the will was drawn and signed.

"Black Hand" Mystery Solved; Dynamite Is Used by Road Graders

The great "black hand" dynamite mystery has been solved. The box containing 100 sticks of dynamite found in a clump of bushes on the banks of the Elkhorn river last Thursday by George Danielson, a "red cap" employed at the Union a road overseer.

Deputy Sheriff Foster, when Red Cap Danielson reported the discovery, station, belongs to John Hoffeldt, ern to him, said he thought it might have been shipped here by the "black hand." Deputy Sheriff Hoye went out and took the dynamite to the neighboring home of County Commissioner Compton near Waterloo. Compton said he thought it might belong to Hoffeldt. Hoye hunted up Hoffeldt.

"Yes, that's my dynamite," said Hoffeldt. I use it on county road work. I use it to blow up stumps, and rocks and not to blow up people and I wish folks would let my dynamite alone."

Full 15 Years Given Assailant of Girl

Clarence C. Porter, chauffeur, was sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary yesterday by District Judge Troup for attacking Grace Gishan, 15.

Porter had "picked up" the Gishan girl in his automobile and taken her to a deserted spot near the Forest Lawn cemetery, according to evidence introduced in his recent trial in district court.

"I could give you from one to 20 years," observed Judge Troup, "but I'll give you a flat sentence of 15 years to make sure you'll not be released."

One Minute Store Talk

"Let the buyer beware," used to be the policy in clothes selling. This store changed all that in Omaha to "let the buyer be protected." But from some of the so-called sales going on, it seems that people have eyes of their own and a keen sense of values. "No wonder your store is crowded with eager clothing buyers," said an observing customer.

Why be satisfied with less than Greater Nebraska values?
