

Mrs. Harding "At Home"

Estelle Bennett, correspondent, tells in "The Woman Republican" how Mrs. Warren Harding impressed her some weeks before election. She says:

Florence King Harding sat in the severely plain living room of her home in Marion and talked about woman's part in politics. There is nothing new about it to her, although she first began taking an interest in politics when Mr. Harding did. To her it is simply the old game of taking an intelligent, enthusiastic interest in whatever interests her husband.

Her firm, attractive mouth and the slim, strong hands that lay quietly in her lap as she talked, told a more vivid story of her efficiency than anything anyone could say. She wore a crisp white muslin frock and an early spring-green sash. She looked very calm, competent and altogether pleasing and friendly. She has a cordial manner that puts the most casual guest at home.

She had just been out greeting all the motorists waiting to see some member of the Harding family. There were women in modish motor coats and women with shabby veils. Mrs. Harding's sincerely cordial manner never varied. Her hospitality is a part of her.

"I think women usually do well whatever they have to do," she told me. "I only hope all women will vote and vote thoughtfully. I hope they will identify themselves with the party they think wisest in the needs of women. Of course, I think that is the republican party, but I have all intelligent women will think it out for themselves."

She was interrupted by her husband's secretary to say that there would be 40 governors and ex-governors for dinner, instead of 20. "Very well," she replied quietly, "I'll be ready for them."

The book continued: "I love having people to dinner," she said. "This is just a little more extensive, that's all. Of course, in my own house I concern myself about giving them wholesome, savory food, just as I do my family, but when I go out to dinner I don't care at all what I have to eat. A dinner is to me an opportunity to meet people."

"Yes, indeed?" And Mrs. Harding excused herself for a moment again to advise with the colored cook, who, she says, has an important part in the campaign, because "no man ever could be elected president who was not well fed." Neighbors say that if Senator Harding is not well fed it is because he refuses to eat!

"Did I ever do my own work?" Mrs. Harding echoed, taking up the thread again. "Of course, I did! I married a poor newspaper man and we lived on what we made. So I learned to make everything that Mr. Harding especially liked."

It was when she was doing her own housework and had been married less than a year that Mrs. Harding saw the trail of her duty lead into the office of her husband's paper. Mr. Harding was ill; the circulation manager quit at a critical time. Mrs. Harding went in to look after the circulation. She stayed seven years as circulation, advertising and business manager and brought the circulation of the paper up from two routes to 18, besides giving it an impetus that has sent it to 64,000 copies.

Every Day Creed For Working Girls

Much interest has been shown in the Every Day Creed, which was adopted recently by representatives of working girls in Ohio and West Virginia at an industrial conference held under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. at Oxford, O. The creed reads as follows:

"I believe in my job. It is very important. Some one will suffer, if I do not perform my work promptly and carefully, and I shall be the loser. My job can be made attractive by punctuality, system, and definite aim, and a high ideal of practical behavior."

"I believe in the other worker. For her sake I should not accept a low standard of pay or poor working conditions. For her sake, too, I should do all in my power to maintain a high standard of loyalty to the employer. I should give her a cheerful smile and helping hand whenever possible."

"I believe in my employer. He is a human being just as I am. He likes to have things go smoothly and he deserves to have them so. I should do all in my power to help him."

"I believe in myself—in the power that is within me. I owe it to myself to be all that I can be physically, mentally and spiritually. I owe it to myself to be as attractive as possible in manner and appearance."

"I believe in my home. I should protect it by maintaining the single standard of purity, by preparing myself for every homemaking task, and above all, by fitting myself to be the chief educator of any children that may be entrusted to my care."

"I believe in my country. When we all understand the true meaning of the Brotherhood of Man, it will be the best land in all the world, and the knowledge of the sacredness of the individual will be the law by which we shall all be governed."

"I believe in God, in His infinite love for humanity. Sincerity, honest work, merry laughter, clean play, and unfeigned kindness are all he asks of us."

Buy Clean Milk

Good whole milk is desirable, but if a mother is obliged to choose between clean milk and rich milk, she had better take the clean milk. Best of all, is clean whole milk, but if that cannot be had it is better to use clean fresh skim milk than dirty or questionable whole milk.

A quart of skim milk, even separated skim milk, contains about a third of a cupful of solid food, which is nearly all there was in the whole milk, except the butter fat.

In feeding skim milk, however, it is necessary to make up for the missing butter fat by giving the child plenty of butter to eat. If it is absolutely impossible to get fresh milk, then condensed, powdered or evaporated milk may be used.
