

"Onward Omaha" Conference Is Set For December 2

Business Men Will Meet at Auditorium to Discuss Plans For City's Development: Stores to Close.

Indicative of the interest Omaha citizens take in their city's progress is the announcement made by the officers of the Chamber of Commerce that a day shall be set aside—December 2—when business men will gather en masse in the Municipal auditorium to discuss and adopt measures for Omaha's future development. The occasion has been named an "Onward Omaha" conference by the committee in charge of arrangements.

"From that day forward, Omaha will take steps it has never taken before," declared Robert S. Trimble, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

All Business Men Invited. Postal cards have been mailed to all members of the chamber inviting them and their friends to the "Onward Omaha" dinner which will precede the program of speaking, singing, music and general discussions, all bearing on the future well-being of the city. Members are urged to return their reservations and invite their friends at as early a date as possible.

All business men of Omaha whether members of the chamber or not, are invited to attend the conference. It is not a money-raising meeting, according to the committee.

A picturesque sign in elaborate color effect, bearing the inscription, "Hold the date December 2 open for 'Onward Omaha' conference," covers the back wall of the main dining room of the Chamber of Commerce.

Stores Will Close. All business houses in Omaha will be closed that day.

A brief outline of the program thus far prepared follows:

Presiding officer, Robert S. Trimble, president, Omaha Chamber of Commerce; toastmaster, Mayor Ed. P. Smith; "Onward Omaha," Dr. Frank G. Smith; "Business Fundamentals," John Fletcher, vice president of the Fort Dearborn National bank, Chicago; "Omaha—Let's Do It!" Ward Burgess, chairman of board, Burgess-Nash company, vice president and general manager of M. E. Smith and Co.

The following subjective is being sent out by the committee: "If you are interested in your city's future, you will attend this conference. Let's have a 100 per cent attendance and make this date historic in the city of Omaha."

Pious Elder Bans "Sacrilegious" Organ Music From Church of Christ

Younger Set Retaliates by Purchase of Even More Wicked Instrument, a Piano—That's How The War Began.

O'Neill, Neb., Nov. 23.—(Special.)—The courts of Boyd county are not going to pass upon the question of whether or not organ, piano and vocal music are sacrilegious when made a part of the program of church services.

Elders, deacons and members of the congregation of the "Church of Christ," at Spencer, Neb., are at war over the question and hostilities reached such a stage recently that Elder Maiford K. Stevenson sought to have Elder J. M. Bayne placed under peace bonds for remarks charged to have been made to and at Deacon C. E. Yenglin and which Elder Bayne and his wife promptly denied were made when he was haled before County Judge Ford of Boyd county at Butte last Monday. Judge Ford, on hearing the several versions of the quarrel, with the wisdom of Solomon refrained from taking sides and dismissed the petition.

Declared Organ Out of Place. It seems that for many years the church at Gross was possessed of an organ and that it was used to reinforce the singing at the regular church services. Then Elder Stevenson joined the church. He declared the instrument and vocal music to be entirely out of place in religious services and, in carrying out his intentions to have the church return to "the old apostolic lines," with the assistance of the acting minister, carried the organ over and placed it in the garage of Elder Bayne.

The women and the younger members of the congregation thereupon waxed exceedingly wroth and promptly began a series and season of entertainments, the receipts from which were devoted to the purchase of an even more wicked instrument than the organ, a piano, which was placed in the church. They also contracted for a lyceum course of entertainment this fall, under the auspices of one of the church societies.

Couldn't Stand Sacrilege. Such sacrilege was more than Deacon Yenglin could bear so he called upon Elder Bayne, who belongs to the modern and musical faction of the congregation, and the two engaged in repartee which on coming to the ears of Elder Stevenson prompted him to ask that Elder Bayne be placed under peace bonds.

In court Elder Bayne denied that he had conducted himself in a manner calculated to disturb the peace and dignity of the neighborhood and contended that he merely had suggested that Deacon Yenglin accompany him to one of the lyceum entertainments to ascertain whether or not the latter was immoral or objectionable.

The outcome of the quarrel may be two churches of the denomination at Gross; one with organ, piano and vocal music and lyceum courses and the other without these modern frills and fancies.

THE spirit of adventure played a big part in the early days of Omaha's history—plowing the first fields meant risking life. Men battled the Indians—suffered untold hardships, and with loaded guns were prepared for any enemy.

Farm equipment was then but the creation of the toiler—crude of pattern and of but little real help. Necessity brought up improved transportation—steamboats, telegraph, telephone, flying machines, and with them farm machinery.

Today, with the work of development well in hand and the days of adventure gone, it should be with pride that we speak of Omaha as the third city of the United States in distribution of farm implements, with more than $20,000,000 sales last year.

Speak a good word for Omaha—its industries and its craftsmen—and your dividends will be the larger.
