

Police Protest When Gamblers Are Released

Majority of Persons Rounded Up in Chicago Raids Are Turned Loose; Others Receive Light Fines.

By EARL L. SHAUB, Universal Service Staff Correspondent, Chicago, Nov. 23.—The greatest array of gamblers ever seen under one roof in Chicago appeared in the South Clark street police station Monday when 742 persons, arrested in Sunday's gambling raids, were arraigned for trial.

The speedy disposal of 442 of the cases brought a protest from police authorities, prosecutors and others when fines of $25 were assessed against some of the prisoners and a majority of them were released.

Men who are known to have won $25,000 in a single night paid their $25 fines and went their way. Only the keepers of gambling houses who led guilty were fined.

Big Winner Fined.

Clarence Lazarus, who owns one of the most luxurious gambling apartments in the city, paid $25. The police have records to show that he has won $25,000 at a single sitting. They say his flat was the last word in style. Rich oriental rugs broke the floor all on the floors. Negro butlers waited on the patrons. In a smoking room for women there were white maids in attendance. The lookout knew just which of the men in evening dress who drove up in automobiles to admit.

Nicholas Dandolous, known as "Nick the Greek," who was arrested as an inmate of the place, was released. Police records show he had often won $3,000 in a night. At the time of his arrest it was reported he had $140,000 in his shirt.

"I should like to see that $140,000," said Judge Richardson.

"You have nothing on me, judge," replied. "I should like to see it."

A crowd that gathered around the court room was a record. In addition to the prisoners there were hundreds of politicians and what the trouble was all about, to see what they could do about it, bondsmen and scores of "fixers," in addition to the prosecutors, court attaches and that ever-present throng of curious spectators. The backwash from the court room filled the hallways and the line extended into the street. The wheels of justice spun rapidly, but didn't mind so fine as those stones of the gods which move more slowly.

After a $25 fine had been assessed in one place where the police produced sheets to show that as much as $50,000 changed hands in a night Chief of Detectives Hughes and Lieutenant John McGeehan were displaced. In another place the judge indicated he would release the men, since the police had not actually witnessed the gambling.

The raid had the effect of closing many places, said to have been operating under full protection, with a strong evidence was obtained in some of the places which may result in the dismissal of five police captains in whose district the dives were operating.

Alleged Embezzler Is Arrested in Dallas, Tex.

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 23.—Police here arrested a man they said they believed to be George L. Martin, wanted in Louisville, Ky., in connection with alleged embezzlement involving about $700,000. Martin has been missing from Louisville since January, 1918, local authorities were advised.

Martin had been operating a real estate business in Dallas for more than a year under an assumed name, according to the sheriff.

Forty Injured in Wreck.

Berlin, Nov. 22.—Forty persons are known to have been killed or badly injured in a collision between a freight train and an express at Barauswalde, near Marienwerder. It is feared that other victims are still beneath the wreckage.

American Wife of Greek Prince Gets Triumphant Welcome

Paris, Nov. 23.—The Princess Christopher, the former Mrs. William Leeds, widow of an American millionaire, expects to make a triumphant entry into Athens tomorrow beside her royal husband, Prince Christopher, youngest brother of former King Constantine.

The streets of the Greek capital are gaily decorated in honor of the return of the first members of the exiled royal family. Enthusiasm is running high and there are turbulent scenes of joy in the streets. Great crowds are parading nightly, shouting, "We want Constantine."

The former Mrs. Leeds informed Universal Service this morning in an interview that she will remain in Athens but a few days, when she will go to Corfu, where she will have charge of arrangements in suitably preparing Achillion palace for the future residence of her royal cousin, former Kaiser Wilhelm, who is now preparing to quit Doorn permanently and live in Greece.

Oklahoma G. O. P. Leader Will Be Held by Police

Ardmore, Okl., Nov. 23.—Because of the unfavorable condition of Jake L. Hamon, republican national committeeman of Oklahoma, who was shot Sunday night, county authorities announced today he would not be arrested until his condition improved.

Miss Clara Smith, said to have been formerly his secretary, charged jointly with Hamon with a statutory offense and also charged with the shooting, has left Ardmore, ostensibly for California.

District Judge Takes Rap At Governor for Paroles

Grand Island, Neb., Nov. 23.—(Special Telegram.)—In sentencing James Price, negro, to the penitentiary, Judge Bayard Payne of the district bench, commented somewhat caustically on the parole question. Price had pleaded guilty to grand larceny in the police court Monday morning. He was sentenced from one to seven years.

In imposing the sentence, the court explained that in the case of good behavior the prisoner might apply for parole at the end of 10 months. "And," continued the court, "perhaps such a step can be taken prior to that time by the present governor, who is somewhat peculiar in that respect."

Evening courses in foreman training will be organized in New York City, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse and Poughkeepsie.
