Ornaments of a Home Found In Friends

It has been said that "the ornaments of a house are the friends who frequent it," and certainly nothing more clearly indicates the standards of living within a home than the kind of friends received in it and the manner of their reception. This does not mean that the home which entertains the upper social crust at elaborate and formal functions necessarily represents a higher standard of living, than the modest one that offers informal is friends, not

Characteristics Denoted by Features

EYEBROWS that lie wide apart denote an even disposition. They must not present a ruffled appearance to bear this interpretation.

A thin bridge to the nose, unless counterbalanced by long, drooping eyebrows, denotes extravagance.

An economic person has long, drooping eyebrows, with the upper part of the nose broad.

The jaw and lower part of the face larger than the upper, with a flat chin and prominent cheek bones, is a mark of egotism. Selfishness is also found with a head so shaped as to present a flat appearance at the back, and a long chin measuring downward from the center, more especially if the chin be pointed.

Eyes that are full underneath, so as to give the eyes a prominent appearance, give a command of words, and a faculty for acquiring languages.

A Grecian nose denotes passive endurance.

An energetic person has long, narrow nostrils, an aquiline nose, and that part of the cheek lying between the nose and the cheek bone very prominent.

Much space between the eyebrows and the eye at the outer corner denotes great love of enjoyment.

A square, high, broad forehead denotes faithfulness.

A narrow, square chin denotes faithfulness. This also shows a desire to love, but implies fickleness.

The tip of the nose broad and tilting upward and lips that have a tendency to curve up at the corners denotes flippancy.

A thin bridge to the nose denotes generosity. Full lips, which at the corner are pressed together, imply the same quality.

A genius has two or three lines on either side of the forehead, which slant down to a point in the center.

Lips which describe the curve termed Cupid's bow denote childlike merely visitors, that are being mentioned here. But as surely as water finds its level, the life within any home attracts the type of friends who reflect the degree of refinement, of culture, of broad-mindedness, of sincerity to be found in that home.

The home which is seldom visited by worth while people is the abode of people who are either selfish or thoughtless or lacking in social and intellectual graces. For whether one offers the simplest or the most elaborate hospitality to one's friends they will come and come again when they are certain of a welcome and a congenial spirit there. And if sometimes one is conscious of being too much let alone by others it is well to go through a self-examination to determine whether the cause may not be found in a selfish or an indifferent attitude toward others, and a lack of wholesome charm within the home that would draw desirable people to it when they are seeking sympathy and pleasure in congenial companionship.

CHARACTER READING

by DORIS BLAKE

amiability. Good nature is also shown by an overhanging upper lip.

Goodness—the under arch of the upper eyelids circular in form, and the upper lip larger than the lower.

When the hairs of the right eyebrows near the root of the nose, turn up a grateful spirit is shown.

Three undulating lines traveling the forehead horizontally denote hopefulness.

A heartless person has a high forehead, with a conspicuously rounded brow, while the lower portion is flat. A flat chin, with an aperture in the center of the mouth, which shows the teeth even when the mouth is closed denotes heartlessness.

Upright furrows in the cheeks on either side of the mouth denote hospitality.

The upper portion of the face strongly developed above the temples and the lower part proportionately small denotes idealism.

The crown of the head high, viz., the distance from the tip of the ear to the crown long, denotes imagination.

A forehead extremely perpendicular in outline denotes absence of imagination, especially if the forehead be smooth and unwrinkled. Such a person will be very practical, taking a matter of fact view of things.

An upward turn of the inner line of the nostrils gives a faculty for intuition. The same is found with elongated nostrils, and with an exceedingly wide mouth, the face being narrow.

Impressionability is shown by flat snub nostrils. These also indicate carelessness.

A long interval between the nose and the mouth is the indication of want of prudence and precipitation.

Fullness in the cheek by the side of the mouth denotes impulsiveness. The lower portion of the forehead projecting and the upper receding gives perception, but lack of thought.

An upward turn of the point of the nose denotes an inquiring mind.

Ruffled, irregular eyebrows that are well pronounced and not far from the eyes give intellectuality and irritability, a not unusual combination.

Oblique fullness at the side of the chin just below the upper lip denotes jealousy.

Large, clear, transparent eyes which move incessantly, the eyelids being sharply delineated, denote quick judgment.

To upright lines planted between the eyes denote love of justice.

A perpendicular forehead with a nose which sinks down at its root denotes laziness.

An indentation or dimple in the center of the chin announces one more anxious to receive love than to bestow the same. The upper lip is often raised in such subjects, showing the middle teeth. A chin which is both narrow and square also indicates a desire for affection, but will not give constancy in love.

Eyes that are round, large, full, and clear denote love of the opposite sex.

Luxuriousness is indicated by a nose which is much sunk at the root and slightly turned up at the tip, with fleshy lips and a perpendicular forehead.

A mean person has a forehead disproportionately long and covered by a tight, unwrinkled skin, the under lip projecting and the upper arched from the nose, when seen in profile.

Protruding eyes and a forehead raised and convex in the center denote a good memory.

Beauty With Ability In the Essex Sedan

It is not easy to associate the beauty and exquisite charm of the Essex Sedan with the extraordinary ability through which it has excelled all other cars by so many famous official proofs.

Yet what else could account for the unusual satisfaction and contentment Essex owners feel in their cars.

Essex holds the greatest official endurance record of 3037 miles in 50 hours. Four different Essex cars have 4 times broken the transcontinental record between San Francisco and New York. It holds the 24-hour marks for both dirt track and open road running. And for cars its motor size it holds all official speed and endurance records from 1 to 50 hours.

Moreover Essex gives all the light type saving in fuel, tires and oil. In addition its endurance and reliability eliminate much repair expense that less durable cars incur.

Your tired feet will find rest and comfort in these shoes

Feet that rebel at the restraint of ordinary footwear find relief, feet that "break down" after standing or walking for a few hours find health—all feet find rest and comfort in Cantilever Shoes.

Cantilever Shoes are easy without being ungainly. They are comfortable, because they fit snugly, restfully, like a doctor's bandage.

Cantilever Shoes have a shank that conforms to the curve of the arch. When you lace the shoe you draw up the under-arch sole so that it hugs the instep and relieves the arch of all strain. This support means gratifying comfort.

The shank of the Cantilever Shoe does not bind and weaken the muscles as do metal appliances and stiff-soled shoes. It flexes with the foot. Muscles surrounding the small bones of the arch have free play with every step. In this natural way, by strengthening the muscles, Cantilevers prevent and correct fallen arches.

There is plenty of toe room. The weight is distributed to spare the arch and encourage easy posture. There is grace and comfort in Cantilever Shoes. They are good looking, made of fine leathers, on trim lines. Widths from AAAA to EE.
