

How to Serve Without Maids

On the table at beginning of meal; service plate. Silver through salad courses; knives and spoons on right, forks on left, placed in the order in which they are to be used. Cocktail fork placed on the right. Sharp part of knife toward plate. Tines of fork upward. Sufficient space to allow for plate.

Place water glass at tip of knife. In-... salt and pepper in front of cover.

In serving without a maid the cocktails may be placed on the service plates before the guests come to the table. Fill water glasses.

Place relishes on table at beginning of meal.

Place and remove at the right—expectations for comfort and convenience of guests.

Service—First Course.

In passing dish, pass at left. Fill glass half an inch from top; when refilling do so without removing from the table.

Remove service plate with cocktail glass.

Place bread and butter plates at the point of fork.

Service—Second Course.

Bring whole or half-baked ham on platter with border of pineapple... to the table and place before the head of the family, who will slice it and serve plates with slices of ham, asparagus timbales, and corn fritter. Pass relish.

Remove dishes from this course. Do not pile them.

Service—Third Course.

Serve dessert.

Hipstess may serve coffee from perceptor brought to the table.

Oranges for Sick

An invalid whose mouth becomes dry and parched during the night, or a fever patient, will find that an orange, cut into small pieces and placed within easy reach of the bed, so that a piece may be held in the mouth from time to time, will be more beneficial than water. It has the added advantage that a patient can manage the pieces of orange more easily than he could a glass of water.

Baby's Sleep

The baby should be prepared for the night and quietly settled by about 8 p.m. He should be kept particularly quiet for about an hour before being put to bed, as excitement at this time interferes with a baby's sleep. He should be put into his crib without being rocked, or walked to sleep. At this is done he will soon acquire regular habits of sleeping.

Baby's Bath

Ordinarily a baby should have a bath every day, unless the physician advises to the contrary. If the baby is not quite as well as usual, it may be advisable to omit the daily bath or in the case of delicate children it is often well to substitute a sponge bath for the tub bath.

To Make Coffee

To make coffee good, it should never be boiled, but the boiling water merely poured over it, the same as for tea. The coffee should be purchased in the berry—if possible, freshly roasted; and it should never be ground long before it is wanted for use. There are many new kinds of coffee pots, but the method of making the coffee is nearly always the same; namely, pouring the boiling water on the powder, and allowing it to filter through.

A very simple method of making coffee is to have a small iron ring made to fit the top of the coffee pot inside, and to this ring sew a small muslin bag (the muslin for the purpose must not be too thin). Fit the bag into the pot, pour some boiling water in it, and when the pot is well warmed, put the ground coffee into the bag; pour over as much

Your Curtain Problem

The curtain item in housefurnishing is just as important as it ever was, but it certainly is not so expensive. The fact is we don't want to have those very expensive lace curtains that our mothers used to admire, or at least very few of us do, and there are very few houses indeed in which such curtains would be suitable.

Nowadays we think of the outside effect in curtaining our houses as well as the inside effect, and in some small country houses the entire front of the house upstairs and down shows the same type of window curtains, so that the effect is unbroken from without. For the sake of variety different sorts of inside curtains may be used. Or in the bedrooms no inside curtains at all need be used.

A generally attractive material of hanging these window curtains is close to the window, just within the window frame, at the top of the upper sash, allowing them to terminate just within the window sill. The effect is rather awkward to let them hang below this line if they are hung within the frame above. The sash curtain is sometimes effective. It is desirable where a curtain is wanted for protection, but where as much as possible of light is desired in the room.

A generally attractive material for the inside window curtain is a fine scrim or net with a solid flat dot. This permits considerable light because of its thinness, but has character because of the heavier dot.

Electric Washers

Electric washers equipped with a wooden tub section tend to warp or warp in a laundry that is artificially heated. However, if you keep a wet sponge in the washer when not in use you will run no risk of this sort of thing.

Never fail to oil your washer when you have finished using it. If you permit your laundress or maid to use an electric washer make a point personally to see that this is done or entrust it to someone you appreciate.
