

Ku Klux Klan Revived in South

and Other Unusual Photographs

—Kaufel & Herbert Photo.

COL. WILLIAM J. SIMMONS, Imperial Wizard and Emperor of the Invisible Empire of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan which has been resurrected in nine states of the South under a charter from the Georgia court. It is devoted primarily to "Maintenance of White Supremacy." Only Americans who are loyal to the flag and constitution are taken into the order.

ANNUAL CONCLAVE of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan atop of Stone Mountain, Atlanta, Ga.

—© by Underwood & Underwood.

BENEATH THE PLACID EXTERIOR OF VICTORIA JANUSHAITE, typist, at the Lithuanian National Council in Washington, D. C., is the spirit of one of the women soldiers of Russia. Miss Janushaite was in Petrograd when she was placed under arrest. Making her escape in soldier's garb, she joined a band of deserters from the Red army on its way to Kolchak's forces, and fought as a man, finally reaching Vladivostok. "Maybe I killed a few," she says, "maybe many. When you are fighting you don't stop to count."

—Underwood & Underwood Photo.

NEW DANCE posed by Maurice and Leonora at a New York hotel.

—© by Underwood & Underwood.

JAPANESE ROOSTER WITH 18-FOOT TAIL—On the Island of Shikoku, Japan, long before the theory of evolution had been heard of, the natives undertook to breed roosters with longer tail feathers. By patient selection of a breed of fowls this is the result.

—© by Underwood & Underwood.

WILLIAM WOOD, of Page Avenue, Richmond Valley, Staten Island, is constructing a bungalow on wheels as his contribution towards beating the high cost of living. The curious looking vehicle is under construction in the back yard of the Wood home. Mr. Wood will hitch his bungalow to an automobile and start for a trip to Florida.

—© by Underwood & Underwood.

ELINOR GLYN, noted authoress, who wrote "Three Weeks," photographed on her arrival in the United States on the S. S. Mauretania. She is to tour the United States, making a search for the ideal type of man who will be the hero of her first movie scenario. She will write for the Paramount Pictures.