

Fremont Man Charges Fraud In Land Transfer

Alleges That Omahan and Others Inveigled Brother Into Giving Up Title by Unlawful Methods.

Fremont, Neb., Dec. 6.—(Special Telegram.)—One of the most sensational charges ever made in this county was brought to the Dodge county court today when Ogden Milligan presented a petition of intervention in the dispute over a land title between Thomas P. Curran of Omaha, and his father, John L. Milligan.

The dispute grew out of a deed given to some land in this county by a son of the defendant, Joseph Milligan, who formerly owned the property and transferred it to Curran, Ogden now claims that his brother, Joseph, was actually incompetent to control his own affairs and says that he was in a weakened condition resulting from debauches during the past year, is a dipsomaniac and otherwise irresponsible.

He alleges that Curran conspired with Jack and Zelma Short in the attempt to frighten and threaten Joseph into transferring the property to Curran, who acted as their attorney. He alleges that Jack and Zelma Short inveigled Joseph into a love affair and illegal relations and later threatened him with suit for damages and alienation of affections and white slavery if he did not give Jack Short $10,000 or a deed to the property which Joseph owned.

He says that his brother, a victim of the fear of persecution and threats, signed an agreement to this effect. The plaintiff alleges that Jack and Zelma Short are not man and wife, as they claim to be, and accuses the woman of being involved in disreputable affairs in Omaha.

The case was adjourned until next Monday so that more witnesses can be brought before the court. An effort will be made to locate Joseph Milligan, said by his brother to have disappeared. Ogden Milligan requested the court to adjudge the deed now held by Curran null and void.

35 Counties in Nebraska Have No Libraries

Movement on Foot by Commission Secretary to Encourage Establishment of County Institutions.

Lincoln, Dec. 6.—There are 35 counties in the state without public libraries of any kind, according to Miss Nellie Williams, secretary of the state library commission. She says there are but 116 tax-supported libraries, and about 30 association libraries in the state, less than half enough to satisfy the demands of the people.

People in many rural communities of Nebraska must depend entirely upon the traveling libraries of the commission to satisfy their desires for literature.

The forthcoming session of legislature will be asked, it is said by Miss Williams, to authorize the employment of a field worker whose duty it will be to encourage women's clubs and other organizations to get behind a movement to provide for a county library by taxation. Nebraska has no county libraries.

There is a state law authorizing county commissioners, on authority of the voters, to establish libraries. The library levy, the law provides, in no case shall exceed five mills.

In successful use elsewhere, Miss Williams says if the various organizations of the state realized the importance of convenient libraries they would endorse the tax levy. Other states, she says, have had splendid success with county libraries.

The library commission has approximately 22,000 books which are loaned out at all times. About half of the books are circulated by the traveling libraries. The traveling libraries usually are sent to rural schools for distribution. Each library contains from 20 to 25 books, about equally divided between fiction and nonfiction. Communities are sent as many libraries as needed to satisfy the people they serve.

In recent years the demand for authoritative books on agriculture and home economics has caused the state library commission to purchase a large quantity of such books.

mission to exert every effort to supply them with the best literature available on the subject.

Usual Requests Received.

Miss Williams receives some unusual requests from people seeking authoritative information on subjects they have been asked to discuss or debate.

During the debating season her office is swamped with requests for special books from students and club women. For the most part the books requested are on subjects of a general character, but it is not unusual to receive an appeal for information on freak topics. Also it is not unusual for Miss Williams to receive a letter marked "urgent" from an active club woman asking her to prepare a "paper that will take about 20 minutes to read to my club." The club women explain that she is too busy with her social duties to prepare the article herself, and that she will be obliged, etc. The subject may be immigration, problems of a South African ape, or the league of nations, it doesn't make any difference to the club woman.

John Owen Rankin, professor of rural economics, State farm, is making a survey of the library situation in Nebraska, which may be presented to the legislature.

Potato Growers' Body Wants Better Service From Railroad Lines

Lincoln, Dec. 6.—(Special)—The Potato Growers' association of Nebraska feels that the railroads have been receiving so many privileges that they ought to be compelled to pass some of them along and therefore has sent the following communication to the state railway commission:

"In view of the fact that the railroads have received a substantial increase in freight rates and should therefore endeavor to give the shipper better service.

"We, the members of the board of directors of the Nebraska Potato Growers Co-operative exchange, representing 2,000 potato growers, request and urge that the Nebraska State Railway commission use its power to have the railroad companies equip the cars used for shipping potatoes with false bottoms. The farmers of this district have been compelled to furnish these bottoms at their own expense, which we consider to be unjust to the shipper.
