Republican Leaders Still Far

Changes—Little Chance of Early Action.

Start Hearings Today

By ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire.

Washington, Dec. 12.—While conferences during the opening week of the congressional session have developed a partial program for the revision of tax laws, the republican leaders are far from an agreement on a number of important points of policy.

Hearings are scheduled to start before the house ways and means committee tomorrow, but there is little possibility of even an attempt to settle the chief question at issue until the special session of congress, which is to be called by President-elect Harding about the middle of March.

It will be within Mr. Harding's power to bring the party policy to a large extent in his inaugural message. With that in view, the ways and means committee will gather all the information possible during the present session, but reserve decisions until March or April or possibly later, if the tariff bill is completed first.

Dr. Thomas S. Adams, professor of economics at Yale university and member of the advisory tax board of the treasury department, will be the first witness at tomorrow's hearing. He will represent Secretary of the Treasury Houston, who indicated a desire to have the treasury experts take the stand instead of himself.

Agree on Two Points.

There are two points of policy on which the excess profits tax has been shown the republicans to be in substantial agreement. One is that the excess profits tax shall be repealed and the other that the payment of the war debt shall be extended over a period of from 40 to 60 years, instead of 25 years as proposed by Secretary of the Treasury Houston.

The chief point of difference, and one on which the republicans have failed utterly so far to come to an agreement, is the question of a substitute for the excess profits tax.

There are some republicans who hope appropriations can be reduced to such an extent that, coupled with a refunding of maturing indebtedness, it will be unnecessary to find a substitute. The more general view is that new taxes will be necessary which will replace the excess profits tax as lost by the repeal of the excess profits tax.

Two Substitutes.
The two chief substitutes for the excess profit tax under consideration are a sales tax and a tax on undistributed profits of corporations. Secretary of the Treasury Houston, who agrees with most republicans that the excess profits tax should be repealed, favors a tax on undistributed profits of corporations as a substitute, believing that inasmuch as individuals are subject to surtaxes in addition to a normal tax, corporations likewise should bear some burden in addition to their 10 per cent normal tax.

Secretary Houston is not lacking in republican support in this proposal. Such prominent republicans as Representative Longworth of Ohio and Representative Green of Iowa, among the most influential of the majority party members on the ways and means committee, favor the tax on undistributed profits.

Opposed to Plan.
Other republicans, including Representative Fordney of Michigan, chairman of the ways and means committee, and Representative Copley of Illinois, also a member of the committee, are strongly opposed to such a tax, believing it to be a tax on capital invested in business which should be avoided if the industrial progress of the country is not to be handicapped and crippled.

The republicans who favor the repeal of the excess profits tax, but oppose the tax on undistributed profits of corporations, incline toward a sales tax. Representative Mott of New York, a republican member of the ways and means committee, introduced a bill in the house yesterday for a 1 per cent general sales tax on all turnovers which would produce about $1,500,000,000 annually. Representative Fordney, Senator Smoot of Utah and Senator McCumber of North Dakota favor a sales tax.

There are many republicans, however, who fear that a tax on all turn-over would lead to the pyramiding of the tax, and an undue increase in the cost of living. Representative Longworth, who favors the tax on undistributed profits of corporations, holds this view. Representative Copley also believes that a tax on all turn-over is impracticable, but in favor of approving a tax on undistributed profits of corporations, thinks that a tax on final retail sales would be satisfactory. One estimate is that the latter would produce $800,000,000 annually.

"Slips One Over" on
New York Detective

Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire.
New York, Dec. 12.—The aid of the district attorney's office was invoked by a store detective yesterday to help find a woman who played a mean trick on him. She tried to give the store a check for $450 for some furs she bought. On refusal by the store, she asked that a detective accompany her and the furs home, where she would furnish the cash. They departed in a closed car and away off in the Bronx, up to what appeared to be a sanitarium. As soon as the detective entered he was seized by two guards, for it was a sanitarium, and locked in a room. When he shouted that he was a detective the woman said "That's one of poor Harry's tricks. He thinks he's a detective, and she departed with the furs. The detective talked for hours before he was let go.

Were Burned After Being Looted.

All of the mail sacks stolen from the storage car of a Burlington mail train in Council Bluffs November 13 were accounted for Saturday when a small boy reported to police the discovery of five locks of the kind used on registered mail sacks. Examination of the number on the locks showed them to belong to the missing sacks. Keith Collins, now at Fort Leavenworth for the crime, told officers that he and Fred Poffenberger also in a federal penitentiary, had burned the five sacks, after rifling their contents. Ten sacks were thrown from the storage car. One was found where robbers had missed it, three in a park and five were burned.

Collins says he threw the securities that were in the sacks into the Missouri river and officials are keeping up a search for them.

Veteran of World War
Perishes in Hospital
Fire at Washington

Washington, Dec. 12.—One patient, Sgt. Alizon Messenger, formerly of the Seventh coast artillery, is believed to have burned to death and several other patients were injured, none seriously, in a fire that destroyed two of the psychopathic wards of Walter-Reed military hospital.

The fire, which hospital authorities believe was started by one of the patients with matches smuggled into his room, threatened for a time to spread to other wards, including several in which disabled World war veterans are patients, was checked by the combined efforts of the hospital and Washington fire departments.

The two wards, No. 43, in which violently insane are confined, and No. 44 in which other psychopathic patients undergo treatment, contained 75 patients. All, with the exception of Sergeant Messenger, died much headway. Messenger arrived at the hospital yesterday from the Panama canal zone.

The loss was estimated by the hospital authorities as little more than $25,000. An investigation of the origin of the fire was started late today.

Boston, Dec. 12.—The New England printers' conference heard from several speakers, sentiments in favor of the open shop. George H. Ellis in an address of welcome said:

"In the main, open shop principle is one that, as we leaders, should stand by and stand for. It is a belief in trade unionism, but we want them conducted on broader principles."

W. H. Lee of New Haven, Conn., in acknowledging the greeting, agreed that trades unions had a place in the printers' scheme of things, but said he wanted to see them run after the idea of employers' associations.

Combined Relief Work of All
Organization in China Can Save But Half Million,
Reports Say.

Outside Effort Is Needed

By CHARLES DAILEY.
Chicago Tribune Cable, Copyright, 1920.

Peking, Dec. 12.—A minimum of 15,000,000 people will die of starvation in China this winter. Efforts of relief committees, missionaries, American Red Cross and government projects can save but 500,000. This conclusion was reached at a session in Peking of the representatives of all the relief societies. Blame for this condition was placed squarely on the shoulders of the present tottering government.

Even if Gen. Chang Tsolin succeeds in the approaching election, as seems likely, it means the increased power of the military and lessens the chances of the present government to extend relief. The rival republic set up in the south by Sun Yat Sen and Wu Ting Fang only complicates the situation.

Outside Effort Needed.

Parliament has been dissolved and new elections ordered so the entire official mind is fixed on politics and money and it is extremely difficult to get the cabinet to focus attention on relief for the sufferers. Outside effort is needed, not only to save the best of China's population, but also to bring moral pressure on the cabinet to do something before it is too late, it was decided.

Already north China is covered with a blanket of snow and the last green stuff has been consumed. Deaths from starvation actually are occurring, but the real pinch is a month off.

W. P. Mills of the Hankow Y. M. C. A. and Missionary Shields, both working in Shensi, reports that wheat is being plowed up and the forbidden poppy seed sown in violation of the protocol, by clandestine orders of the government. This is a section where very little outside aid is possible. Father Jamin reports from Man Shen Hsin 4,800 pounds of government wheat have been received as the country's grant, but it was so distributed by the officials as to make the distribution worthless.

Little Money Available.

There are 24 Chinese relief committees which originally had representatives attending the international famine relief meetings at Peking, but only one they dropped out, as so little money was coming in.

Not only is there a tieup of cars on the Manchurian railway, but the yards at Mukden, where the gauge changes, are blocked and the warehouses are congested. This situation grows worse as the need for grain becomes more acute.

Admiral Tsai, when asked about this, said:

"They seek to exact the utmost from their stricken countrymen. I am going personally before the cabinet and insist that China square her self before the world."

Minister Bestows
Pope's Blessing on Omaha Congregation

The entire congregation of the Sacred Heart church, Twenty-second and Binney streets, attended special services held last night and were given the apostolic blessing by their pastor, Rev. P. J. Judge, tendered when he was accorded a private audience with Pope Benedict XV in Rome three weeks ago.

The church was crowded to capacity. The ceremonies began with the recitation of the rosary, followed by a letter by Father Judge on his visit to the Vatican palace during his trip abroad.

The concluding part of the services was impressive. With crucifix in hand, Father Judge bestowed the apostolic blessing on the congregation as it knelt in prayer.

Love of Candy Blasts
The Budding Criminal
Career of Chicago Lad

Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire.
Chicago, Dec. 12.—Paul Fisher, 13, is an "orphan," and he decided to run away from the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, and make his own way in the world. He has his own well-defined idea of the equipment necessary for a business start, so he acquired a revolver, a check book, and some small change.

His career might not have ended so abruptly had he not encountered a candy store and he threw discretion to the winds.

"I want some candy," he told Nicholas Gopoulous, the proprietor. "I guess maybe I want $400 worth."

"But can you pay?" demanded Gopoulous.

"Sure thing," said Paul, producing his check book. "I've got a million dollars, I guess."

He wrote out a check for $400 and Gopoulous asked him to wait until he went out and got a box large enough to hold the candy. When he returned, a policeman accompanied him. Paul produced his revolver, but the policeman took it away. Today he is back in the home again and a budding criminal has been blasted because he pined for candy.

Atchison, Kan., Dec. 12.—Clara Smith, wanted at Ardmore, Okla., on a charge of murder following the death of Jake L. Hamon, spent an evening in Atchison three days after the shooting, according to a statement made by Harry McAleer, who came here two months ago from Ardmore.

"Clara Smith spent the evening with me in Atchison," he said, "at the time she was supposed to be speeding through Texas in a motor car. She told me she was driving north out of south from Ardmore, and had gone to Omaha, stopping here on her way to Kansas City, where she expected to receive aid from friends."

"She did not tell me she had shot Jake Hamon but she was very nervous. She told me she was broke and I loaned her $10 so she could get to Kansas City. I took her to dinner and then to a hotel where she registered. That was the last I saw of her. Two days later I received a letter from Kansas City containing the $10 I had loaned her."

Army of "Moochers"
Heralds Appearance
Of Reorganization

Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire.
Chicago, Dec. 12.—Amples evidence that a great reorganization is under way is afforded by the appearance, in increasing numbers, of the professional "parasitoid" and "moocher" individuals who received high wages during the war period and saved not a cent of their earnings.

They were the first to hit the street when employers began to weed out the incompetents, and now they are back at their old haunts, sliding up to men and women, mostly women, and begging a few coins.

Street begging has increased enormously in the last two weeks, say officials of the Bible Rescue mission and the police. Men at the mission say men stood in front of their place last year and begged for food at officers of work at big wages. Today, even larger crowds are begging for anything that will bring them the price of coffee and sinners.

Big Deficit

Expenditures Totaled $17-

cording to Annual Report of Burleson.

Burleson Raps Congress

Washington, Dec. 12.—Operation of the United States postal service for the fiscal year 1920 resulted in a deficit of $17,270,482—the second largest in the history of the service.

Postmaster General Burleson shows in his annual report to the president, in which expenditures of the Postoffice department are placed at $454,322,609 and revenues at $437,150,212.

The postmaster general charges congress with direct responsibility for the deficit, explaining that the expenditures included approximately $33,202,600 paid as a war bonus to postal employees and stating that but for this there would have been a surplus of $18,427,917. Mr. Burleson says he declined to approve the bonus action of the legislative department, adding that he had offered suggestions of another plan for compensating the employees which would have served the purpose without, at the same time giving a blanket increase in pay to "thousands" who were already amply compensated.

Reference also is made to the decision of the Interstate Commerce commission, granting the railroads additional pay aggregating $8,103,889 for carrying the mails. This served likewise to offset increases in postal receipts, Mr. Burleson declares.

Scored Organizations.

Attention is directed by the postmaster general to the growth of organization among the postal employees and he urges that steps be taken to "curb the malicious and pernicious influence" of these organizations upon the postal personnel. He says they are organized to "interfere to a considerable extent with the efficient conduct" of the service, adding that "much of the so-called 'demoralized postal service' and 'dissatisfaction' exists only in the minds and imaginations of paid agitators of these organizations."

He still these doctrines into the minds of the employees through the medium of their publications.

The postal service head declares the use of the strike against the government by an "outside" organization is a menace to which a feature of the republic as it not only results in a divided allegiance, but engenders dissatisfaction, discontent and unrest and lowers efficiency.

Mr. Burleson also recounts in his report, the development of the foreign service of which a feature is the Transpacific, South American and Mexican service. He says that in the last fiscal year, the number of countries and colonies reached by American service was increased from 45 to 260 and that more rapid transportation is being effected because of a rehabilitated merchant marine service.

Service to Mexico Improved.

Mail facilities to Mexico continued to improve during the year so that mail service "at present is on the whole better than at any time since 1914," Mr. Burleson says. The New York branch service has been operated regularly on a bi-weekly basis by way of Havana and Progresso.

Turning from the general administrative work to detailed matters, the head of the department says that the receipts of postage on mail aggregated $391,552,205, a decrease of 1.76 per cent from last year. Of the total amount, $38,060,795 was derived from mailings on which the postage was paid in money. He points out that the total postage bill was equivalent to $3.65 per capita for the nation's population.

Parcel post revenues, Mr. Burleson estimates, aggregate approximately $150,000,000 or $10,000,000 more than in the previous year. Postage on second class mail produced $25,107,841, an increase of more than $9,000,000 over 1919.

The volume of mail of all kinds likewise has increased, the report shows, and Mr. Burleson urges the establishment of greater plants, especially in New York and Chicago, where the situations are represented as particularly acute. One-fifth of all of the second class mail matter handled originates in New York City and Mr. Burleson recommends the construction there, of three great buildings, costing in the aggregate about $30,000,000, together with a tunnel connection between them to expedite the handling of mails. He also recommends the construction of one large building in Chicago.

County Attorney Said to Have Told Woman to Leave
State to Avoid Charge.

Grand Island, Neb., Dec. 12.—(Special.)—The charge of forgery against Mrs. T. P. Mullins, brought to this city from Wyoming, has been dismissed, but another charge, according to the local police officials, has given reason to believe this involving the irregularity of action on the part of the county attorney of Chappell, Neb.

Mrs. Mullins passed a check of $100 on the firm of S. N. Wolbach & Sons of this city. When payment was refused by the bank from which drawn, complaint was made to the local police. The chief of the department traced the woman to Mullen, Neb., thence via Alliance and Sidney to Cheyenne.

When overtaken there she demanded and first indicated she would demand extradition papers, but finally consented to come to Grand Island to answer the charge. Here, it developed that she had previously cashed checks and that they were paid by her husband, a dentist at Chappell, and that she did not have any reason to believe this one would not also be cashed.

It appears, however, that differences had arisen between husband and wife and that when this check was passed he refused to pay it. Divorce proceedings had been instituted according to the local officers, the husband and county attorney met the woman at Sidney and there induced her, by reason of the Hall county charge, to sign away certain conditions or rights, as alleged, and likewise advised her to go to Wyoming where she would be out of the jurisdiction of the Grand Island charge.

Attorney General Davis has been advised of the circumstances, it being asserted here that the action was, in effect, aiding and abetting of a woman who would be out of the jurisdiction of the Grand Island charge.

Fire Follows Attack on Soldiers Saturday Night—Lord

To Fight Flames.

Populace Panic Stricken

Dublin, Dec. 12.—A message received at 6 o'clock this evening says that the fires at Cork are under control.

An official report of the conflagration received at 1 o'clock says that the Cork city hall, the Carnegie library, the Corn Exchange and 18 other buildings had been destroyed up to that hour.

By The Associated Press.

Dublin, Dec. 12.—The central portion of the city of Cork has been burned to the ground and other portions of the city are ablaze. The conflagration followed an ambush of the military at Pillons Cross, Saturday night in which four persons were killed and many wounded.

Three civilians were taken from their homes and shot dead after the ambush of the military. Then the fires started. There were bomb explosions, and firing also was heard. The populace is panic stricken.

The municipal buildings, the Carnegie library and the Corn Exchange, which cover a large area, have been consumed by the flames, which are so hot at places that passing train cars have been set on fire.

Mayor Appeals for Help.

Belfast, Dec. 12.—The lord mayor of Cork has telegraphed the lord mayor of Dublin, stating that the fire brigade at Cork was unable to cope with the outbreak and begging for help. It is possible that a Dublin fire brigade will be sent by special train.

A dispatch received here from during useless efforts of the firemen. Two acres soon became a furnace. The front walls of houses were blown out with bombs. The great block between Maylor street and Fish street still was burning Sunday afternoon, the fire eating its way backwards.

Worst of Reprisals.

Dublin, Dec. 12.—Several blocks of buildings in the heart of the business district of Cork were destroyed by fire during last night, constituting the costliest destruction of property since the reprisals began in Ireland.

Early estimates place the damage at between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 pounds. The fires extended from St. Patrick street to Cook street, to Malor street and swept rows of buildings on both sides of Wintthrop street, leading from St. Patrick street to Old Georges street.

It was reported from Cork yesterday afternoon that newly-arrived parties of auxiliary cadets marched through the streets, holding up and searching pedestrians and firing into the air, following the ambush of auxiliaries within half a mile of the barracks, 12 of them being wounded by a bomb thrown from a lorry.

Between 7 and 8 o'clock, a period of intense quiet fell on the city, but near 9 o'clock uniformed men began to display great activity in various parts of Cork.
