

Photographs Here and Abroad With News Interest in Them

Burial of the Unknown Poilu in Paris. This ceremony, similar to one in London, was most impressive. Photograph shows the gun carriage with coffin covered by the Tricolor. Photo, Underwood & Underwood.

Capt. C. C. Mosley, U. S. A., winner of the Pulitzer trophy, and his American-made Verville-Packard biplane. He made a world's record for speed, averaging 178 miles an hour for the 132-mile course. Photos, Wide World.

Above—Wellesley College girls in "Carrots," a play given by the freshmen. Left to right: Miss Eleanor Shaw, Miss Florence Anderson and Miss Helen Miller (Carrots). Photo, International.

At right—Mrs. Charles Garland of Boston, who approves of her husband's action in refusing to accept a $1,000,000 legacy. She says she, too, will refuse any bequest from her wealthy father. Photo, International.

Frank W. Pruett, who is prominent in financial circles here and in the Middle West. Photo, Eric MacDonell.

Travelling store of the American Committee for Devastated France, parked at the village shrine at Le Mesnil. The store reaches many remote places.

The Earl and Countess of Granard and their three children, here for a visit. Left to right: Viscount Forbes, 5 years old; Lady Eileen Forbes, 7 years old; Lady Moira Forbes, 10 years old. The Countess was Miss Beatrice Mills of New York. Photo, Wide World.

