Drama League Hears Paul Grummann

Prof. Paul H. Grummann, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, was presented by Mrs. E. M. Syfert, president of the Omaha Drama League, Tuesday afternoon, Fontenelle hotel, in a lecture on "Danton," by Romain Rolland. Rolland, with his rare devotion to democracy and a tolerance which transcends the interests of his immediate associates, is certain, said Professor Grummann, to be of lasting fame in the annals of France and mankind. "Danton," however, was referred to by the speaker as a "comparative failure."

"We strike the root of the whole matter," he said, "when we remember that Rolland is a critic and novelist and that his excursion into drama takes him into a field where he is not conversant with the technical difficulties." Lack of plot and action, lack of emotional quality, passages too great in length, too much quotation on the part of characters, and a large number of classical allusions, are some of the specific charges made by Mr. Grummann.

Professor Grummann's next lecture before the Drama League, January 18, will be upon "Jane Clegg," by St. John Ervine.

Some of the high lights in Professor Grummann's lecture are here given: "The new drama in France as in America calls for a new dramatic art. A new school of actors less devoted to technique and less susceptible to vulgarities must spring up before a new art is possible. The new art will not be puritanical and assuredly it will not be vulgar."

"A difficulty that besets the French as well as the American drama is the fact that we are growing more and more to be a mute people. Visit with me almost any class and you will agree that the articulation of pupils is atrocious. Reading aloud in the family is almost discarded, and comparatively rare at school."

"In the picture show we look, but we are not enraptured by the sonorous beauty of the voice. A generation ago we were glad to pay our dollars to hear Davenport and Macready utter their wonderful sentences. Are we willing to drop all the joy of the spoken word out of our lives or shall we strive to bring back some of the vanished glory of the old stage?"

"Zealots and cranks are proverbially underfed and under amused." "If our art, our best drama and our best music were good for anything, we should have resorted to them during the great crises (referring to recent war days). We should have gone back to the best sources of inspiration, to the best things that the ideals of the past could give us."

"Great art, even Gothic art, reveals a dominating simplicity amid a myriad of details. Whenever the drama has been simple it has lived, when it has become complicated it has lost its force."

"Not language, nor race, nor trade can bind a people together as effectively as a common bond of cultural tradition. Great leaders with their trumpets and their drums disturb our judgment for the hour, but when equilibrium is restored it is the nation's art, the flower of its best joy that endures, and allows it to be saved or perish."

"I cannot believe that dramatic activity in Paris reflects the best things in French character and manhood. Practically all of our dramatic activity in New York, not entirely a city representative of American life at its best. Instead of a thousand centers of dramatic activity, only one. Here the fate of our American plays is made or unmade, by a set of dramatic managers and a host of players who certainly do not represent our best national ideals."

"Where a whole nation sings there is some chance for a real flowering of musical art at the top. The same principle obtains in the drama."

"A great poet cannot be harnessed to a program of action. When a poet turns propagandist he commits artistic suicide. For no one can tell after that whether he is speaking for himself or for the cause that he represents. D'Annunzio, little as I care for him personally, is the typical poet in refusing to confirm (right or wrong) the feelings of his fellow countrymen. The one thing that a poet must preserve is his sincerity. Because this is true of Rolland, he will continue to be of interest to all true Frenchmen and to civilized persons the world over."

To remove stains from linen wet the part stained and lay on it some salt of warm water; then rub without diluting it with more water.

The Omaha Business Woman's League will meet for dinner Wednesday evening, 6:15 o'clock at Hotel Loyal. Plans will be made for the Omaha Omaha dinner to be given by Omaha women, under the leadership of Miss Mary Sturgeon, president of the Business Woman's League, Thursday evening, January 20, at the Chamber of Commerce.

Following the dinner Wednesday evening David Larsen of the Chamber of Commerce will tell how the men conducted their "Onward Omaha" dinner.

Problems That Perplex Answered by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Case for Explanation. Dear Miss Fairfax: In the place where I work is a young man who has invited me out several times, but I have had to refuse because I must take by sister with me when I go out. I cannot invite my friends to my home because my parents will not allow any men visitors. For the last week this man has avoided me and when we do meet he refuses to speak. Is it my place to ask him what is the trouble or should I wait until he feels inclined to speak to me?

Of course, there is no reason why this young man shouldn't take other girls out in his car. You aren't married, nor yet engaged, and he has every right in the world to seek companionship where he chooses. What is unfair is that he broke an engagement with you on the plea of business and then did just what he pleased. But haven't you brought this on yourself? You nagged at him when he didn't keep his engagements—you insisted that he had been out with other girls. So you put the idea into his head and gave him also the feeling that since you were insisting that he wasn't being true to you, he might as well live up to the accusation. Haven't you ever heard the quotation, "Might as well have the game as the name?"

"Mother" Tiffany, who for the past 21 years has been acting as a "mother" to thousands of miners at Nome, Alaska, has returned to her former home in Seattle Wash. It is the first time she has been out of Alaska since she went there in 1898.

The Result of Nudging. Dear Miss Fairfax: I have known a man for four years and have gone about with him for two years. Occasionally he has not kept his appointments and I have naturally accused him of going out with other girls. Last week a girl who knows him well told me she saw him out in his car with two other men and three girls on a night he was supposed to be out with me, and had told me he had to go out to town on business. He denies her story.

Removes Hairy Growths Without Pain or Bother

(Modes of Today) It is not necessary to use a painful process to remove hairy growths, for with a little delatone handy you can keep the skin entirely free from these beauty destroyers. To remove hair, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water. Spread this on the hairy surface and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To guard against disappointment be careful to get real delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

How to Make a Gray Hair Remedy

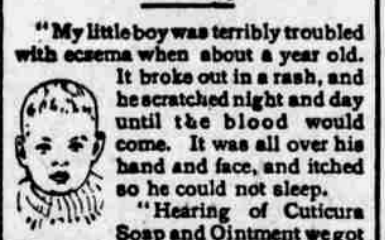

Mrs. Mackie, the well-known New York actress, now a grandmother, and whose hair is still dark, recently made the following statement: "Gray streaked or faded hair can be immediately turned black, brown or light brown, whichever shade you desire, by the use of the following simple remedy that you can make at home: "Merely get a box of Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extra to buy. Dissolve it in 2 oz. of distilled or rain water and comb it through the hair. Full directions for use come in each box. One box will last you for months. It is safe, does not rub off, is not sticky or greasy, and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray-haired person look many years younger."

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF BLACKHEADS

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads and that is to dissolve them. To do this get two ounces of caliche powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin—plugging and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores, and do not get them out after they become hard. The caliche powder and the water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in the natural condition. Anybody troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.
