Model Legislator May Lose Reputation Before Session Ends

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 7.—(Special.)—Among other qualifications which put Gifford of Pawnee in the winning column in Pawnee county for election to the lower house was that he never drank, smoked, chewed or swore. But today, when he learned the extensive program which the children's code commission has outlined for the legislature, he almost became profane.

"Damn it," he said.

The near profanity was the result of listening to an outline of the commission's plan to put salaried people on a state censorship board of motion pictures.

"It will cost a lot of money and wouldn't do a bit more good than to give the county attorney power to prosecute any motion picture company throwing certain pictures on the screen in his county," Gifford said.

And today Gifford was preparing a bill naming the "don'ts" for motion pictures in Nebraska and imposing fines for failure to heed them.

"Damn it," he said.

"State Sheriff" Official Title

Law Enforcement Officers Named to Avoid Confusion; Secretary Antles in Charge.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 7.—(Special.)—The law enforcement division of the state administration, heretofore operating as a separate unit, has been transferred to the department of public welfare, created under the code, Governor McKelvie announced today.

The change was effective Friday. A change in titles was also effected. Hereafter the chief of the division, Gus A. Hyers, will be known as "state sheriff" and his deputies will be known as "deputy state sheriffs."

The governor explained that the changes were made because of the confusion arising in telephone messages.

By the change, Secretary Antles becomes the responsible head of the law enforcement division, with Mr. Hyers, who was formerly directly responsible to the governor, responsible to Mr. Antles. He will be called "state sheriff."

The governor also announced that the honorary commissions as officers in the law enforcement division granted to local officers and others co-operating throughout the state were canceled January 1, and would not be renewed.

The bureau will be maintained with funds appropriated by the last legislature.

Speedy Law Passage Will Not Be Allowed This Session

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 7.—(Special.)—The speedy passage of a bill, which, under the new constitution, can be introduced and passed by the legislature the same day, will not be a part of the lower house program this year. It adopted a rule this morning which preserves the old method of reading on three separate days before final passage, the first two readings to be by title only and the last in full.
