

Seaplane Used By De Valera In Making Escape

Two Vessels, One a Yacht From Ireland, Were Instrumental In Aiding Republic President to Return.

New York, Jan. 10.—President Eamonn De Valera of the Irish republic used at least two boats and a seaplane on his trip to Ireland, according to disclosures made today.

It is declared that he departed from this country on December 21 or 22, being picked up outside of territorial waters by a yacht which had made the trip from Ireland for the purpose of transporting him home.

On the afternoon of December 29 his yacht was met by a seaplane at a point about 20 miles out from Mutton island, which is five miles from the coast of County Clare. After some trouble with the engine of the plane the Irish president was landed on Mutton island near dusk wet, tired and hungry. His followers, some of whom had waited two days for him following a secret notice of his coming, welcomed him but did not dare to build a fire to warm him for fear of the British watchers who were everywhere.

He was given temporary sustenance in the shape of bread and water. Communication through established channels was maintained with the mainland and shortly before the dawn word came that the British guards had been lured from the vicinity. De Valera and his party embarked in small boats and made for the mainland. He went to the home of a loyal friend near Kilmurray, where he remained all day December 30. In the early hours of that day, while he rested, the word was flashed back to America to release the message of his landing in safety.

At one time on the trip across the yacht was challenged by a British captain, but the captain of the yacht persuaded the Britisher that his was a pleasure yacht out cruising.

Since landing De Valera has moved nearly every night always traveling with a sufficient guard of the Irish republican army to insure his safety from capture by an ordinary detachment of the military.

His lieutenants here who made public the story of his trip declare that they have advised that at no time has he been in danger of capture.

Intrigue Charged By Telegraph Head

Western Union Chief Says U. S. Intimidating Cuba In Controversy.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Charges that the State department was "making threats against the Cuban government" to prevent the issuance of permits for Western Union cable landings on the island were made before a senate committee today by Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union company.

Mr. Carlton declared the department was "pursuing to the point of persecution" its differences with the company over the attempt to land the cable from Barbadoes, which, he said, would establish a new line of communication with South America. Questioned as to alleged supervision by English authorities of official dispatches sent from Washington to American diplomatic representative in Great Britain, Mr. Carlton refused to "answer categorically because it would make trouble."

Electors Name Mrs. Wheeler as Their Delegate

Lincoln Woman to Carry Certificate of Nebraska Vote to Capital—Mrs. Draper Smith Is Alternate.

Lincoln, Jan. 10.—(Special).—Mrs. H. H. Wheeler of Lincoln was named delegate, and Mrs. Draper Smith of Omaha, alternate, to convey the certificate of the Nebraska electoral college to Vice President Marshall in Washington, D. C.

The naming of the messenger followed a solemn casting of the eight votes for Harding and Coolidge by the eight members of the college meeting for that purpose in the office of Governor McKelvie Monday noon.

It has been an understanding that the only two women republican electors should be commissioned as messengers, but a later investigation failed to reveal any federal or state authorization for more than one official messenger.

Will Make Trip Together.

The understanding remains, however, that Mrs. Wheeler and Mrs. Smith will make the trip to Washington together, with Mrs. Wheeler nominally the official delegate.

Mrs. Wheeler asked if there was anything to prevent such action and was informed that it was a matter for her to arrange with Mrs. Smith. The federal government allows 20 cents a mile and a per diem for electoral messengers—enough to take two delegates to the capital if the law made such a provision.

The first ballot for delegate gave Mrs. Wheeler six votes to Mrs. Smith's two, but on motion of Allen Tukey of Omaha the vote for Mrs. Wheeler was made unanimous.

Members of Electoral College.

Mrs. Wheeler voted for Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Smith cast her ballot for Mrs. Wheeler. On the vote for alternate, seven ballots for Mrs. Smith were cast, Mrs. Smith herself not voting.

The new charter provides for the issuance of $750,000 bonds the first year and $500,000 the second for street improvements.

Several committee members and councilmen declare the charter should provide for the issuance of bonds to cover any proposed improvement at the time the contract for it has been let.

X-Ray Physician Is Sued For Large Sum by Girl

Constance Elizabeth Stowell charges carelessness by Dr. William H. Mick in exposing her to X-rays against him yesterday for $25,000 damages.

Last January, she says, he gave her X-ray treatments while she was employed in his office. A month later the skin where the treatments were given became red and broken, she declares.

In spite of this, she says, he permitted her to continue to work in his office without providing her with a screen or lead apron, used by those who handle the X-rays. Her condition grew worse, she says, and she finally had to be removed to a hospital.

The physician denies the girl's charges.

Court records show the divorce went by default. The Svengards were married in England in 1908.

Crippled Invalid Sees First Movie

Portable Machine Brings Silent Drama to Home of Bedridden Woman.

Mrs. Margaret D. Cox, a crippled "shut-in," confined to her bed the last 20 years at her home at 222 Park avenue, and unable to go to the movies, has enjoyed the distraction of having the silent drama come to her.

She has always held a skeptical view toward motion pictures of which she read in newspapers and magazines. Her views were changed Friday night, when, through a chance remark by Miss Henrietta M. Rees to Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Mason that Mrs. Cox had never seen a movie, the Masons enlisted the services of a friend who owned a portable projecting machine. They gathered up films from Manager H. B. Watts of the Strand theater and other Omaha film exchanges and, assisted by Gus Herrmann of the Rialto theater, set up a show at the home of Mrs. Cox.

Mrs. Cox wrote of her party: "To witness such a performance from my bed had seemed an impossibility to me. In imagination such performance had seemed sort of a foolish, simple pastime, notwithstanding the glowing accounts of devotees and the newswriters. The reality so far exceeded the imagined performance that I was overwhelmed."

THE NATIONAL FUR & TANNING COMPANY manufactures, right here in Omaha, a surprisingly high-grade line of fine fur garments and make, in their Douglas Street display room, as classy a showing of beautiful, handsomely made furs as is to be found in the exclusive Michigan Avenue shops of Chicago or on Fifth Avenue, New York.

For a number of years they have been in the habit of sending an annual catalogue to persons who could not see the goods personally, but their catalogues have heretofore failed to completely convey the impression of quality that one gains from a visit to their store and they have not been as successful as they might have been from the standpoint of producing business.

Last summer, a representative of the K-B service department happened to see the line and became greatly impressed with its magnitude and exceptional quality. The possibilities in the way of increased business that might be brought by a proper presentation loomed large in his mind and Mr. Loomis, the National's manager, was urged to permit the K-B organization to build him a catalogue that would faithfully represent the line.

He consented, and the book he is now using, with entirely satisfactory results, was the outcome. After a careful study of the selling problems involved, the K-B service man went through the stock, selected, with Mr. Loomis' assistance, the numbers that would make the most inviting showing, put them on hand-picked models that were to the manner born, posed them with painstaking care to bring out the maximum beauty of the garment and the picture, personally supervised the photographing, with the ultimate result that pictures were secured that did not require or get the least bit of retouching. They were shown absolutely true to life and with convincing honesty.

The printing plates were made in Omaha under our own supervision and came out splendidly. The text was written in an interesting way largely by women writers who knew how to appeal to their sex, a page size was selected that aided materially in creating the general impression of quality and richness, the best paper that could be had for the purpose was used and the presswork was of the usual K-B quality.

That the K-B "hunch" was a good one is evidenced by the stream of orders that the book is producing in spite of adverse merchandising conditions.

If you are interested and would like to check up on any of the statements made here or would like a copy of the book, call up Mr. Loomis at Tyler 0120 and he will answer your questions and mail you a copy.
