A. Barrows. They are H. H. Antles, secretary of department of public welfare, and Leo B. Stuhr, secretary of the department of agriculture.

The investigation committee ceased.

The investigation committee ceased its activities at 6. Members announced that at the joint session of the senate and house to be held tomorrow morning, the committee would ask for unlimited time to con-duct its investigations. Many more voluntary witnesses and others who will be summoned, will appear before the committee before the investigation ends, it was announced. The meeting was held behind closed doors in accordance with instructions issued today by the joint committee on rules.

Question of Aility.

Efficiency and ability of Antles and Stuhr for their respective offices were the only questions under consideration, according to information gleaned from lower house members, who called upon the investigation committee to register personal com-plaints and complaints of constitu-ents against the code secretaries.
