Remainder that the well is producing 2,500 barrels a day, that the day of the organization comes Don Barelay, whom Omahans have not seen here in five seasons, Mr. Parckay will quickly rewin the public favor that was his hulf a decade according to the chorus Mr. Pearson has assembled for this season's tour and the production is elaborate. Tomorrow's matines starts at 3.

at 3.

The "Greenwich Village Foliles" will conclude its engagement at the Brandels today with two performances, matines and evening. Manager Sutphen is negotiating for a return engagement of the company for next spring at the conclusion of its transcontinental tour. There is no No. 2 company. The sue seen here all this week is the same that created such a furore in New York and Chicago and which for the past 10 months, has played to capacity houses in all the larger cities of the country. Though now on its seventy-seventh week, the "Follies" is as fresh and smart as on the night of its premiere in the quaint little Greenwich Village fheater in midsummer of 1919.

With tonight's show starting at a colock, the engagement of the current orpheum show will finish. This is the bill headed by the Ford Dancers. Franklyn Ardell comes to head the new bill, beginning with the marines tomorrow. With a company of seven other carefully chosen players, he will appear in the farcical comedy. "King Solomon, Jr." A featured act will be the absurdity presented by Moss and Frye, who solomnly debate "How High Is Up?" Their non-sense is said to be exceptionally laughable.

The show at the Empress, which closes its engagement with tonight's performances, is headed by Casson Kirke and company, who race through 12 minutes of snappy songs, dances and musical specialties. A delightful blend of music, song and comedy prettily arranged is presented by Arthur Angel and Violet Fuller. Songs that remind old-timers of their younger days and the younger generations that their ancestors had a humorous streak are carried on, to the delight of the audience.

James Kelo and Edgar Smith, two members of George M. Cohan's comcidians in "Mary," in conjunction with George 16. Mack, execute an eccentric dance that is decidedly Cohanesque. It to but natural that it would be so, as the famous Yankes Doodle comedian, the famous Yankes Doodle comedian, the comes to the Brandels theater next week.
