

9 Father and Son Banquets Planned For Present Week

More Special Services to Be Held in Churches Today—Movement to Close Friday With Big Banquet.

More Father and Son services will be held in Omaha churches today, and nine more banquets have been planned for this week.

Fourteen churches held special services last Sunday, and 13 banquets were held during the week, attended by more than 2,500 fathers and sons.

At the First Christian church the Rev. R. E. Abbey will preach on "Comradeship of Father and Son" at 7:30 this evening. Special music will feature the services.

Immanuel Baptist church will observe the Father and Son movement at both services today. The Rev. John L. Barton will preach on "The Business of Being a Dad" in the morning, and on "The Modern Progress" in the evening.

Special Music. The Rev. Paul Galban will take the father and son story of David and Absalom as the text for his sermon, "Is the Young Man Safe?" at the Central United Presbyterian church at 11 this morning.

"Finding a Man" is the subject of a sermon by the Rev. E. L. Reese, pastor of the Hartford Memorial United Brethren church, at special services at 11 in the morning.

Special music by the choir of the St. Mark Lutheran church will feature the morning services at which Rev. W. I. Guss will speak on "Apostolic Requirements for Real Manhood."

The graduating class of Central High school will be guests of the First Central Congregational church and Rev. Frank G. Smith will preach a sermon to the young people which will be appropriate for both graduation and the Father and Son movement.

Banquet Postponed. Because of the absence of Ford E. Hovey, superintendent of the Sunday school, from the city, the First Methodist church, of which Rev. Titus Lowe is pastor, postponed its Father and Son banquet until early in February.

Next Tuesday night, the men's brotherhood of the Kountze Memorial Lutheran church will hold a Father and Son banquet with Judge Howard Kennedy as the principal speaker.

Mayor Smith and Stuart Edgerly, Central High school senior, will serve as joint toastmasters at the banquet of the First Central Congregational church Wednesday night. Supt. J. H. Beveridge will be the principal speaker.

W. E. Reed to Speak. President Stauffer of Midland college will speak at the banquet at the St. Mark Lutheran church the same evening, and St. Luke Lutheran church will hold its banquet that night.

The Concord club will hold a Father and Son banquet in the restaurant of the Henshaw hotel Thursday night. The First Baptist church will hold its banquet the same evening, as will the Emmanuel Baptist church, at which W. E. Reed, president of the Board of Education will be the main speaker.

Festivities of the second week of the Father and Son movement will close Friday night with a mammoth banquet at the First Presbyterian church at which 300 fathers and sons are expected to be present.

Omaha Lions to Have Charge of Ad-Sellers' Meet Monday. Omaha Den of Lions will have charge of the meeting of the Omaha Advertising Selling league in the Hotel Fontenelle Monday night at 6 o'clock.

"Hear the Lions roar and watch them eat, not the leaguers but the food" is the way Chairman Joe Elfred starts off his personal invitation to each member of the club.

"The Lions' jazz band, the Campbells, will be there, too," says Chairman Elfred, "all humped up and full of song. There'll be plenty of 'spizzerinctum'—that's 'pep' in action."
