merous high school cage contests which will be played throughout the state during the next five days.

The University of Nebraska hoopsters will spend the week preparing for their third Missouri Valley conference clash, scheduled for next Monday at the state fair ground audi-torium against the University of Oklahoma quintet.

Creighton university will hold the center of interest this week among the basket ball fans of Omaha and vicinity. The Blue and White tossers are carded to mix with the University of South Dakota team in a two-game series, starting Wednes-

Creighton Big Favorite.

Coach Mulholland's players should defeat the Coyotes. The Vermillion, S. D., aggregation suffered a defeat last week by the University of Nebraska squad, and according to reports, showed nothing in their game with the Huskers that would lead oen to believe that the Dakotans would trounce the Creighton basket-

Coach Adams of the University of Omaha is trying to arrange a game with the Nebraska Wesleyans for this week, but it is doubtful whether the University Place squad will con-sent to a contest with the Maroons, as it has games scheduled this week with Grand Island, Kearney and Hastings.

Commerce Plays South High. Commerce and South High will meet in the second contest staged thus far in the city high school basket ball championship race, Friday night at the Y. M. C. A. The Bookkeepers should trounce the Packers, if the dope runs in the right channel. Coach Patton's South Siders lost to Plattsmouth Saturday, 30 to 29, but the locals played without the services of Graham and Emigh, star performers.

Coach Drummond's team is also scheduled to meet Cedar Rapids high of Cedar Rapids, Ia., at the local "Y Saturday night. The Iowa squad is considered one of the strongest quintets in the Hawkeye state and likely to give the Commerce tossers a tough game.

Central High has scheduler game with Council Bhiffs and St. Joseph High teams this week.

hicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire. Chicago, Jan. 24.-With the first hree weeks of the "Big Ten" conference basket ball season finished, the trend of the 1921 race is not what was expected. Eight of the 10 coaches are wondering if the two Hoosier teams, the University of Indiana and Purdue university, can be halted in their unbeaten dash for the championship.

The case of Indiana presents an unusual problem for the fans to figure out. The Bloomington team lost all of its regulars from last season, except Captain Deau, center, and was not expected to cut much of a figure 2,656 this season with a green team. Two new forwards, Marxson and Dehority, have been playing great basket ball and Indiana now heads the race with four straight wins. Indiana does not play Chicago, the 1920 champions, who look equally strong this year, nor are they scheduled to face either Illinois or Wisconsin, a pair of powerful teams. With a schedule composed of games against weak teams, Indiana, unless there is weak teams, Indiana, unless there is a slump in her play, can breeze through to the title.

With Purdue, the situation is almost identical. After losing Tilson, Campbell and Church, its three great offensive stars of last season, the Boilermakers were relegated out of the running in the early dope. Around two good guards, Miller and White, Coach Lambert has built another good team. He does not have other good team. He does not have to face Chicago, Illinois or Wisconsin, which is a huge advantage.
