Boston Braves of 1914 Fame Passing "Rabbit" Maranville's Going Marks Most Recent Elimination.

Boston, Jan. 25.—The passing from these parts of the last of the Boston Braves who in 1914 made a sensational rush from last to first place in the National league race and topped their feat with a world championship in four straight games was indicated today.

The trade of "Rabbit" Maranville to Pittsburgh marked the most recent elimination of base ball's wonder-men of six seasons ago. The miracle man, George T. Stallings, has left the club to become part owner and manager of the Rochester Internationals. Little Dick Rudolph, one of the three pitchers who contributed to the team's success, has been given the right to negotiate for his transfer elsewhere, probably to the Detroit Tigers. And now, Catcher Hank Gowdy said today he had heard that he, too, was to be traded.

Manager Fred Mitchell admitted there was another trade in the air to bolster up the Braves against the next campaign, but he withheld details.
