New York, Feb. U.—Dun's tomorrow will say; The irregularities which still characterize the business situation are a natural seconomic readjustment. With conflicting forces in operation, commercial revival has not come in all quarters simultaneously and a definite turning point if yet to be reached in some leading trades and industries. Unsettlement in prices, with the trend continuing downward, redmains a cause for hesitation in different lines and such new demand as develops doe not indicate that buyers are disposed to commit themselves extendively for the future. At prices much below the highest basis, there is not the volume of purchasing that might be expected because various insrkets lack stability and orders are deterred to take advantage of probable further reductions.
