Metallic Cylinders in Vaults of Ralston and Fremont Banks Set to Trap Robbers.

Held captive in this small metallic vessel, are a liquid and a gas under 31 pounds pressure to the square inch, which, when freed, will expand 1,000,000 times with deadly

This cylinder is the invention of two Omaha men, E. V. Lorig, 2414 N street, and U. V. Graham, master methanic for Armour & Co., perfected after 12 years of experiment-

It is known as the "Lorigram" and is guaranteed to lay cold the toughest yeggman or cracksman that ever wielded a chisel or bored for a "bowl of soup."

The cylinder looks like a miniature 40-centimeter shell, but with-in its walls of alloy it contains more death to the square inch than any shell, according to E. D. Betels, 202 Karbach block, who is interested in the invention with Lorig and Gra-

Gas Released.

On top of the cylinder is a perforated cap beneath which is a circular disc from which projects a sharp spindle.

This spindle threatens a small lead composition seat which is all that lies between the gas and the outside

When this spindle pierces the lead seat the gas is released, pouring through the perforations of the top cap and expanding 1,000,000 times, sufficient to fill 36,000 cubic feets according to Mr. Betels.

The composition disc is set in motion by vibrations similar to the run-ning of a gasoline motor, and when these vibrations stir the disc into action, the spindle pierces the lead sion of this gas, whose chief component part is anhydrous ammonia. life is impossible, Mr. Betels explained, and within the second thousandth expansion the action on the lungs and nostrils is such as to waken the soundest sleeping watchman.

Besides the deadly qualities of the gas contained in this cylinder, the safe protected by a Lorigram is secure from fire also, Mr. Betels declared, chilling the steel of the safe when released within it to such degree that the hottest fire cannot melt the metal for 48 hours, in which space of time the average fire would e extinguished.

Other component parts of the liquid and gas besides the anhydrous ammonia are secrets of the invention, Mr. Betels explained.

The invention is patented and will be manufactured in Omaha. On the front door of each bank and on the outside of the safe containing one of these cylinders is posted a brass warning to yeggmen and cracksmen of the protection

Mr. Betels predicts a revolution in the safe cracking profession when these Lorigrams are spread broadcast throughout the country.

Goodrich is what it is today because during the fifty years of its growth it has adhered to high ideals. The progress of the company from the beginning has been markedly influenced by the loyal belief of every member of the organization in its plans, policies, purposes and products.

GOODRICH AND THE RUBBER INDUSTRY

MILLIAM

HEN Goodrich started business fifty years ago the whole rubber industry was represented by a few scattered plants. The two-story building in Akron, on the site of the present Goodrich factories, was part of the nucleus of the industry itself as it now exists. At that time few persons ever dreamed what the industry could become. Scarcely any of the fields in which rubber products play so important a part had come into being. Electricity was undeveloped. Transportation was in its infancy. The automobile and motor truck were unborn. The combination of circumstances which brought about the greatest industrial era of the world was virtually unseen.

Yet the history of the company shows that even in those early days Dr. Goodrich and his associates were actuated by a broad view of the future and its potentialities. Radiating from that small factory and small organization of half a century ago, Goodrich has built a city. Not alone the huge city of brick and stone and steel which houses the great plant in Akron - but a city which comprises the entire Goodrich organization everywhere in the world.

. It requires people to make a city, and the spirit of those people is the soul of that city. The personnel of Goodrich is one that has a family feeling-a pride in its work-a determination to maintain the integrity of its creed and which extends that integrity to the service of the product itself.

Wherevera Goodrich product is used, it carries with it the good faith and good will of the organization. The opening of the second half century of the organization finds it just as earnestly building its city in the esteem and regard of the public, as it worked on that far day in 1870 when it was entering a field almost untried and approaching an era of development passing the imagination of that time.
