Easterners Win Last Home Game By 27-24 Score

Lovley and Kearney Star for Locals, While Anderson and Linnehan Play Good Game for Winners.

By RALPH WAGNER.

After torging ahead with only two minutes left in which to play during the last half and giving hundreds of spectators visions of an upset similar to the one they saw pulled Wednesday night against the same quintet, Creighton university's basketball tossers allowed Colgate to torg ahead in the final seconds and win the last game of the series by the score of 27 to 24.

It was the last game of the season for Creighton at home and it might be said that the locals completed a very successful basketball year on the home court, winning all but two of its contests. Des Moines college defeated the Blue and White here by the score of 24 to 19.

The game last night was a fitting climax to the Creighton home schedule. Fighting from start to finish, both teams exhibited a brand of basketball that has equaled any displayed here this season. The guarding of each player, together with the passing, is worthy of comment. While the teamwork of Creighton and Colgate functioned well at all times.

Exciting Game Throughout.

From the first whistle in the initial period until the final shot was fired denoting that the contest had ended and the curtain lowered on basketball at Creighton university as far as home games are concerned, the fans were kept keyed up to the highest pitch. Not one dull moment found its way into the game, which was featured by spectacular shots by Blue and White cagers as well as by the Hamilton, N. Y., basketweavers.

The first half of the game, while exciting, was not especially fast. Creighton led in this period until with only a minute of play remaining. Murphy tied the count, 14 to 14, and then Linnehan put in one bucket and the stanza ended with Colgate on the long end of a 16 to 14 count.

The second half was fast enough from a Colgate standpoint at least. The visitors opened up with a peculiar offense, which the locals seemed unable to fathom for a minute or two. It consisted of a drive ending in a short backward pass, which generally brought results. Anderson seemed unable to miss the basket and to his wonderful shooting Colgate owes its victory.

Stanley Coveleskie, Ace Among Pitchers

WORLD'S SERIES HALL OF FAME

PITCHERS WHO HAVE WON THREE GAMES AND LOST NONE IN A WORLD'S SERIES:

- 1905—MATHEWSON
- 1909—ADAMS
- 1910—COOMBS
- 1920—COVELESKIE

COVELESKIE

Sensational Spitalist Was Star Of World Series, Winning Three, Losing None—Started 13 Years Ago

New York, Feb. 25.—(Special.)—Anyone who believes the road to pitching fame is paved with roses may find proof to the contrary in the record of Stanley Coveleskie. The star of the 1920 world's series found the highway that leads to base ball's hall of fame steep and rocky. He had to work harder than the average pitcher because he is a disciple of the spitball, and as such suffers from wildness which he was unable to remedy for a good many seasons. Today the star of the Cleveland Indians stands out as one of the most sensational pitchers base ball has known, and enjoys the distinction of being one of a select quartet of twirlers who have won three games and lost none in a single world's series.

In addition to this fine record Coveleskie ranks as one of the greatest pitchers of the age, and, thanks to a sane ruling made by the major league rules committee, after the spitter was put under the ban, "Covey" will be enabled to continue in the use of his pet delivery until he comes to the end of his trail as a big league star. During the 1920 campaign Coveleskie and Jim Bagby were the men who shouldered the burden of pitching Tris Speaker's Indians to their first American league pennant. On the season's work Bagby finished with a better record for games won, but in spite of this fact it was Coveleskie who stepped into the breach when victories were needed, and turned back the opposition. It was Coveleskie's consistent pitching in crucial series and his fine work in the world's series that landed the Indians their world's championship.

Back With Indians. "Covey" is back in the harness with the Indians again this year and Cleveland fans are hoping that his good right arm will not fail and that his control of the spitter will be just as effective as it was last year. Last season the world's series star took part in 45 games. Out of this number he turned in the fine total of 24 victories against 11 defeats for a pitching percentage of 68. He faced 1,129 batters and gave up 213 earned runs for nine innings. Opposing batters got 65 bases on balls off of him and base runners managed to steal fourteen bases while he officiated in the box. He won the strike-out title for the season by fanning 123 batters, and four hit batters, coupled with one error wild pitch all season offer much evidence to the manner in which he has learned to control the most delivery. What will Coveleskie do this year? Indications are that with the spitter given a new lease on life and the same fine team that won the world's title behind him he may continue on his winning way. He may even turn in more victories for the tribe than he did last year, and if the speakeries manage to battle their way into another world's series, he will have another chance to show the base ball world what a hard-working "fougallist" can do.

Started in 1908. It was back in 1908 that "Covey" first broke into the box scores as a professional player, and it took a big part of his 12 years to land him in the select club of pitchers who win rank among the great.

STONE STATES HIS WORK IS A PLEASURE NOW. "What I needed was just an all round building up, and Tanlac has done that very thing," said Joseph O. Stone, 1333 North Sixth street, West Cedar Rapids, Ia., employed by the Quaker Oats company for the past three years. "I can't say that I was exactly sick when I started taking Tanlac, but I was in just that miserable run-down condition that robs life of nearly all its enjoyment and makes work a burden. My appetite was very poor and I was gradually getting more and more run-down. I felt depressed and good for nothing all the time. For four months now I have taken a bottle of Tanlac every two weeks and I feel so much better I can hardly realize that I'm the same man. Why? I've gained seven pounds and enjoy the food as I had not for a year before, and my strength has returned so that I just can't remember when I was stronger than I am now. My work is a pleasure and I feel that I am again of some use in the world. Medicine that will do what Tanlac has done for me is worth praising."
