Accidents Resulting in Loss of Six Lives Causes Postal Department to Aban- don Use of Ships.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Accidents resulting in the loss of six lives have caused the Postoffice department to discontinue the operation of the metal monoplane purchased abroad. John A. Jordan of the air mail service said today before the house post office committee. Three of the eight planes have been burned while in operation. The committee inquired particularly into the burning of one of the planes at La Crosse, Wis., February 10, in which three men lost their lives. Mr. Jordan said an investigation had not disclosed the cause. The eight planes were shipped to the United States from Denmark and were constructed either in Germany or Holland, the committee was told. The hearing was marked by frequent clashes between Chairman Stearnson and Mr. Jordan as to responsibility for the accidents. Mr. Jordan contended the Postoffice department was doing its utmost to safeguard the lives of aviators.

Your Face and What It Tells

What Sort of a "Nose Section" Have You? Is It the Kind That Denotes Energy? Read This and Study Other Faces.

By MABEL WARNER RUGG.

HAVE you a nose section well developed from the nose itself to the cheek bones? If so, it probably is correct to credit you with plenty of energy. It has been found that this is a facial characteristic generally possessed only by energetic men and women. But other features must bear out the energetic nose section, or the careful observer will discount the nose feature in analyzing character. Character analysis cannot be made by hard and fast rules. It deals with the work done by mind, and mind is one thing that cannot be tied down by rules. Be the nose like jutting Gibraltar, the character analysis would deny its possessor energy signs if the person dragged his legs as he walked.

Mail Airman Cited for Bravery in Night Flying

(Continued From Page One.) on to Chicago. He had flown from North Platte to Omaha and was tired. Moreover, he never had piloted a ship between Omaha and Chicago, even in the daytime. But there was no one else to go. It meant the Omaha field would be disgraced if the transcontinental mail was delayed here on its inaugural trip. So Jack took the ship.

Complains of Treatment.

"You know," he complained, "my best friends seem to look at me differently. They seem restrained, as if they didn't know what to say. Besides, it wasn't such a much, that flight. I watched the compass and my map and I could tell about where I was by the lights from towns. Of course I wasn't absolutely sure all the time, but almost sure."

Call of the Air.

Discharged from the army, he obtained a position with the Mead-Marrison company in Chicago. He went to the top of the company's building to watch a flying circus which was circling over the city. The sight was "too much" for him, he said, so he went downstairs and resigned. A short time later his application to become an air mail pilot was accepted and he began flying between Cleveland and Beloit, Pa., and Beloit and New York City. Since last October he has been flying between Salt Lake City and Cheyenne, and Cheyenne and Omaha.

or slouched habitually in his chair. The analyst then would proceed to find out what had happened to kill the person's natural capacity for energy. So with all features. One feature may show a person to be optimistic, but another may offset the first entirely, or modify the amount of optimism naturally to be credited on first impression. These are details to be covered in later articles of this series. The main proposition holds true. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." The mind engraves in the body character signs easily read with certainty and correctness. It is an interesting and attractive study. I am sure you will enjoy it.

Full protection, he asserted, would be afforded volunteer workmen and railroad property. Allies Will Pay War Debts to United States, Thomas Lamont Says

(Continued From Page One.) the schedule arrived at does not seem to be unreasonable. "Certain it is that the allied and associated powers would be delighted to receive as a reparation, a capital sum today of $13,000,000,000, rather than what that sum would amount to with interest spread out over a series of 30 or 40 years."

Mr. Lamont dealt extensively with the discussions at Paris and the reasons for the decision to establish a permanent reparations commission. He questioned the wisdom of Lloyd George and Clemenceau in insisting upon such high figures from Germany, maintaining that the popularity of each was so great at the time, that they could have outriden or even profited by the political storm, which would have resulted in their two countries, had they been willing to agree to a smaller figure which Germany could have paid, and which would have gone far toward settling the world's economic condition.

Praise for Wilson.

He told how General Smuts finally convinced President Wilson that pensions should be included in the reparations bill. Some of the exerts, he said, gathered in the president's library and explained to him that they couldn't find a single lawyer in the American delegation who would give an opinion in favor of including pensions, and that all logic was against it. "Logic, logic," Mr. Lamont said the president exclaimed. "I don't give a damn for logic. I am going to include pensions."
