Mrs. McFarlane On Wisdom Literature

Mrs. Ida Kruse McFarlane of the University of Denver, who spoke before the Delphian society Saturday afternoon at the First Presbyterian church on "Wisdom Literature," said in part: "The wisdom literature is the result of our unending effort to get to the source, not of human thinking, but of human living. It is a crystallization of experience. Therefore, the wisdom literature is not confined to the work of the literator or of the gifted. It is of the people. The proverbs, the fables, the essays, the sayings are the wisdom literature."

Mrs. McFarlane gave illustrations of proverbs of many lands and advised the study of proverbs as a doorway to an understanding of literature and a respect for life.

"Teach children before they are 15 100 of the finest proverbs of the world," said Mrs. McFarlane. "Choosing from all countries and ages, relying for half the number on our own Book of Proverbs in the Bible," she continued.

In conclusion Mrs. McFarlane commented on the wisdom element in fiction and illustrated her point by a story from the Russian "A Tedious Tale," by Chekov.

Mrs. McFarlane's third lecture of the course will be given Saturday, March 26, at 3 p. m. in the Sunday school auditorium, First Presbyterian church. The subject will be "Robert Browning and His Works."

Wedding Anniversaries

Such anniversaries are most enjoyable when they are least formal, and sometimes even older persons like to join in a little good natured frolic at such times. The decorations should always be carefully planned with an attempt at a novel effect. For a tin wedding supper the dishes might all be of tin, the different courses being served in tin plates.

For the paper wedding the dishes might all be of paper with paper napkins. Bunches of raw cotton are excellent decorations for the cotton wedding. Here are the principal wedding anniversaries with the materials associated with them:

First, cotton; second, paper; third, leather; fourth, fruits and flowers; fifth, wooden; sixth, sugar; seventh, woolen; eighth, India rubber; ninth, yellow; tenth, tin; 11th, steel; 12th, linen; 13th, lace; 14th, ivory; 15th, crystal; 20th, china; 25th, silver; 30th, pearl; 40th, ruby; 50th, golden; 75th, diamond.

Problems That Perplex

Answered by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

From Overland Jack: Dear Miss Fairfax: As I am a constant reader of your column, I wish to express my opinion of the "Mother and Daughter" problem. I think that every 16-year-old girl should have at least three nights out of every week to attend dances and social gatherings. She should be accompanied by a young man not too much her senior. Remember we are living in modern times, when people should know something about the way of the world regardless of age.

Now why not let the girl step out a little and learn a few things from experience? Why keep her cooped up at this bright young age when she should be enjoying life. I say, "Let her out."

How is she going to broaden her mind or know about all the worldly wiles if she hasn't mingled with people outside of the family, and by mixing she is sure to learn by the world's best teacher, experience, to distinguish the good from the evil, far better than the girl who is kept shut up at home and never gets a glimpse of the outside world. Now, how many of you 16-year-old girls would like that, "I'll be buried long enough after I'm dead." OVERLAND JACK.

More Letters to Mother and Daughter.

Mr. Twenty-seven writes that he thinks "Mother" does right not to allow her 16-year-old daughter to go out with boys.

Another Daughter thinks "daughter" has nothing to complain of. J. M. K. writes that she considers Miss Sixteen better off at home. "I believe nothing can be done to give 16-year-old minds the judgment of 25," she says. "They think us all warped if we begin to preach. Experience is the best teacher."

Lonesome: You seem to be worried because your boy friend has preferred another girl. If he is the kind of man you say he is, you are lucky to be rid of him. Turn your thoughts to some one more worthy.

Miss Fifteen: I am afraid you have condemned yourself as a flirt. Your ideas of what is proper for a girl are all wrong. Better have a talk with your mother and follow her advice.

Lounging: I can only advise that you make yourself worthy of the girl you love and when you have given her opportunity to know you, ask her to marry you. Her answer will not depend upon your weekly pay check.

When you buy diamond jewelry, the integrity of the seller should be your first thought.

Since 1879 Albert Edholm has helped fulfill the jewel requirements of the more conservative people of Omaha and environs.

No jewelry house could survive for so many years with the business standing this store enjoys unless its every transaction was founded upon integrity.

Having disposed of all of our clocks and about half of our silver since the opening of our closing out sale, we are now ready for the disposal of our extensive showing of diamonds.

There is a prevalent idea that diamonds are coming down in price—we believe the contrary to be true.
