

Cardinal Asks Contributions To Irish Relief Fund

Copy of Telegram Sent to All Archbishops and Bishops Received By Nebraska Committee Chairman.

John Rush, Nebraska chairman of the Irish relief fund, received from Morgan J. O'Brien, national chairman, the following copy of a telegram from Cardinal Gibbons to all archbishops and bishops:

"I earnestly beg all kind-hearted and generous Americans to contribute to the fund for the relief of the many thousands now suffering in Ireland. Authentic information reveals that villages, towns and cities have in large part been burned or wrecked, homes laid in ruins, factories and creameries destroyed, and thousands of persons thrown out of employment, while they and their families are left dependent for food and shelter upon the charity of others. In many places the situation is acute, and relief is now being administered by a committee of American and Irish Quakers, without distinction of religion or politics.

"All funds are to be expended solely for relief under the supervision of men of the highest character and integrity. Contributors will have the satisfaction of knowing that their money is relieving destitution, and bringing comfort and consolation to the women and children of that race that has itself always been pre-eminently distinguished for generosity and charity.

"While the sad plight of the destitute in Ireland appeals to our common sentiments of humanity, it ought to touch American hearts with special force. The Irish people out of their poverty, have more than once in times past, sent aid to suffering Americans. Nor should we forget that we owe to the French nation do we owe more for the achievement of our independence, than we owe to the Irish soldiers of the American revolution. To the French we have proved that a nation may be moved by sentiments of gratitude. Let us pay some small portion to their sufferings, by practical sympathy in their sufferings.

"I need not urge upon Americans of Irish descent their special duty to their own flesh and blood. They have given generously to all other suffering peoples, they will not forget their own.

"I recommend this cause to the Catholic clergy of this country whatever be their own racial origin. The whole Catholic church of America is most deeply indebted to the Irish people. It is not much to expect that in every parish of our land, effective means be taken to collect funds for the relief of suffering Ireland."

Natives of Azores Attract Attention at Union Station

On her way across the great expanse of the United States to meet her sister, Irene Marie Pererin, 7792 Third avenue, Oakland, Cal., and unable to speak a word of English, pretty Angelina Denise, native of the Azores, islands of the Atlantic ocean off the northwest coast of Africa, spent three happy hours in Omaha yesterday at the Union station.

Her four small children, 1, 2, 3 and 4 years old, were the objects of the good will and generosity of the many travelers who stopped in their bustle to enter or leave trains to play with them or give them a smile and cheery word.

The pretty little mother could not make known her thoughts as she sat in the depot and fed her little flock from provisions in her immigrant bag, but an envelope she carried bore the address of her sister to whom she is traveling.

Mrs. Clara Mead of the Travelers' Aid association took care of the little family and provided milk and rolls for the babies.

Mme. Denise comes from the islands which won a place in the hearts of homecoming Yankee doughboys as they plowed the ocean blue on their way to the United States of America from war-torn France.

Pretty Angelina Denise and her brood of children, 1, 2, 3 and 4 years, natives of the Azores, islands midway of the Atlantic ocean off the northwest coast of Africa, spent a happy three hours in Omaha yesterday between trains at the Union station on their way to a sister and

Petrograd Said To Be in Hands of Revolutionists

Copenhagen, March 9.—Petrograd is reported to be in the hands of revolutionary forces which for several days have been fighting against Russian bolshevik troops near that city, says a special dispatch from Helsingfors received here this morning.

The revolutionary forces were victorious, the dispatch declares, after a terrific bombardment of Petrograd from Kronstadt, Krasnoya, Gorko and Systerbak, which was followed by machine gun battles in the streets of the city.

London, March 9.—Workers in soviet Russia are unanimously indignant over the revolutionary uprising at Kronstadt and are begging to be allowed to fight against the forces engaged with soviet troops there, says a wireless dispatch from Moscow. Re-Arrest of 10 Men Is Ordered

Federal Officers Plan to Hold Prisoners Released on Volstead Decision.

Ten of the 18 federal prisoners who expected freedom yesterday, upon releases signed by Federal Judge Munger in Lincoln Tuesday, will be rearrested immediately, under the Volstead act.

This information was given out from the United States marshal's office yesterday to inquiring friends and relatives who besieged the office. Names of the "unlucky 10" were withheld, pending the arrival of Tom S. Allen, United States district attorney, who was expected in Omaha yesterday to file information against the 10.

Releases were signed by Judge Munger pursuant to a recent ruling of the United States circuit court of appeals at St. Louis that the old revenue laws, under which the 18 were arrested, were superseded by the Volstead act, and therefore the detention was illegal.

Some of the 18 have already finished serving their sentences. The entire list includes Julius De Large, Russell Miller, Harry Zahn, Joseph Murray, Christ Jensen, Theodore Katz, Lee Sokol, John Thompson, Revere Flynn, Julius Epperle, James McKenna, Joseph Sodomsky, Frank Rankal, Frank Herzog, George Bevin, Michael Barna, Tom Danek and Joe Bomber.

The whisky runners' roadster carried 20 cases of Canadian whisky, a pistol, shotgun and ammunition, all of which was confiscated. The men offered no resistance when arrested. Murray and Tilley were held to Harold Tilley, 2710 California street, working in a garage at Twenty-fourth and Lake, disclaims any knowledge or relationship to the Harry Tilley mentioned in the dispatch.

Tourists Tell Of Lost Fortune

Montana Ranchers Returning East to Make New Start—Covered Wagons Used.

Grand Island, Neb., March 9.—(Special.)—Amid the shtimmer of falling snow a canvas-covered wagon stopped at the tourists' camp on the Lincoln Highway here. It bore on its side the slogan, "Illinois or Bust." In the wagon were Frank C. Holloway and five children and his brother, Fred. They came from their ranch southwest of the Crow agency, in Montana.

Six years ago the two brothers sold their farms in Grundy county, Illinois, for $500,000 and invested in cattle and land in Montana. Heavy droughts prevented the growth of forage crops and they have been paying $65 for alfalfa hay. Then came the blizzards of last winter which caught cattle under hill ledges, and smothered them. Following this was the drop in cattle prices.

The Holloways have left their land behind, sold what cattle they had left and with the team and wagon are on their way back home.

The trip of 900 miles, thus far covered, has taken 36 days. They still have 600 miles ahead of them which they expect to complete by April 1. The Holloways say that hundreds of ranchers' families are returning to Illinois and Ohio the same way.

There is a note of sadness in the old wagon. Both brothers' wives and Fred Holloway's two little girls and one little boy died two winters ago of influenza. Their aged parents, who later came to Wyoming, died there.

Huge Vegetables and Fruits Are Displayed

All notions of standard sizes for familiar fruits and vegetables are wiped out after a visit to the agricultural display in the Union Pacific building, main floor.

Potatoes weighing three and one-half pounds each, peaches that tip the scales at one pound, celery stalks a yard long, cucumbers 15 inches high and asparagus tips which require plates eight inches wide, are among the giant specimens, all grown in the west.

Cherries big as plums, cantaloupes big as watermelons and apples well in the casaba melon class raise the admiration of all who visit the exhibit.

Peanuts growing on the vine, sugar beets 20 inches high and an unusual showing of dehydrated vegetables is included in the display. There are even dehydrated tomatoes, though tomatoes are popularly supposed unsatisfactory for dehydration.

An appetizing array of these products, converted into fruit and vegetable salads, and otherwise arranged for serving, is an additional feature of the exhibit.

Public school children are especially invited to view the exhibit, which is maintained for the benefit of prospective farmers.

Sunderland Reduces Building Material Prices

Omaha needs homes, apartments, warehouses and offices. Building should be started now if "Growing Omaha" is not to falter in her stride.

Building will resume, we are convinced, when the man who WANTS to build believes he CAN build with economy.

We say now, "It's up to us"—to co-operate in lowering the costs of building.

We have put pressure on our producers to lower their prices to us to meet this emergency and in many cases we have been successful.

We have substantially lowered our local costs in the handling of materials.

We have wiped out our profits.

The resulting prices we now offer are our contribution to the necessary sharp reduction in building costs if the present stagnation is to be promptly followed by the volume of construction that Omaha so vitally needs.

M. Corbeau Favors the Coat Dress

In wool he uses navy tricotine, wraps it about the figure in true coat style and adds a puffed collar and elbow cuffs of royal blue moire ribbon.

There are three of his silk frocks on display now—a black taffeta, pin striped with white, with a voluminous scalloped skirt and a quaint white organdy fichu with a pink rose at the throat. A coat dress of printed green and white cashmere de soie is made over white crepe de chine. The third is an alluring ecru Georgette over black satin. The ecru coat is rich with filet lace and is girdled by tangerine ribbon.

M. Corbeau's dresses are hand-made and have certain distinguishing features—an entre deux of floss which he often uses to join the sleeves and waist, and an Egyptian medallion of lace of which he seems quite fond.

M. Corbeau dares to be original but he attains a wearable good taste which French extremes sometimes lack.
