Bookkeepers Stage Rally in Last Half of Final Contest and Beat University Place by 11 to 9 Score

Commerce, 11; Unh. Place, 9. Class B. Nebraska City, 16; Central City, 15. Class C. Ravenna, 18; Friend, 8. Class D. Minden, 24; Osceola, 5. Class E. Fairmont, 14; Fairfield, 9. Class F. Waco, 8; Farnham, 7. Class G. Wakefield, 16; Franklin Acad., 12.

Lincoln, Neb., March 13.—(Special Telegram.)—Omaha Commerce finally broke the runnerup jinx that has been lurking in its camp for the past two years.

In a game featured by rallies by both teams, the Bookkeepers defeated the University Place 11 to 9, on the Coliseum floor last night. Six thousand persons witnessed the final clash—a game that ended the largest basket ball classic ever staged in any place.

In hope of repeating the performance of Lincoln against Commerce last year, the suburbanites guarded Mahoney like hawks. The result was that Mahoney failed to score any field goals. The University Place athletes overlooked another big card, and four times Camero broke loose and dropped the ball through the hoop. Shoemaker, the diminutive Commerce guard, was responsible for two more points on a field goal, while Mahoney made one successful free toss.

Captain Yetter of the University Place team was the scoring star for the Methodists. He made three field goals. Deuser, the speedy University Place guard, was probably the star of the Methodist team, showing a lot of speed on the floor. In addition, Deuser made one field goal and a foul goal.

Commerce grabbed the lead at the start, when Camero broke loose twice and heaved the ball through the hoop from under the basket.

Deuser Scores First. Deuser was the first to break into the scoring column for University Place when he heaved a long goal from the floor. Camero was the first to score for Commerce, but Yetter tried the free toss, but was unsuccessful. Alabaster was then handed a foul for the same reason and Mahoney missed the toss. Shoemaker was caught running with the ball but Yetter was again unsuccessful in his attempt at a free throw.

When Mahoney was fouled for traveling a little later, Deuser made the toss. The score was 4 to 3 with Omaha still leading.

University Place jumped into the lead when Captain Yetter broke away from the Commerce defense and heaved a goal from under the basket. He then shot a long one from far down the floor. When the half ended University Place was leading, 7 to 4.

Commerce Starts With Rush. After the intermission, Commerce started out with a rush. Referee Schissler called a technical foul on Yetter for traveling, but Yetter missed. Alabaster was caught traveling and Mahoney made the shot goal. The score was Commerce, 5; University Place, 7.

Commerce worked the ball down the floor and one of the Bookkeepers heaved a long one against the backboard. Alabaster was caught traveling and Mahoney made the shot goal. The score was Commerce, 5; University Place, 7.

Change Grid Rule Governing Safety

Ball Will Be Put Into Play on 30-Yard Line Instead of 20.

New York, March 13.—Change of the rule governing a safety and suggestion that officials who take part in professional games be barred, were made at the annual meeting of the football rules committee, which closed here yesterday.

Following a safety, the rule was changed to read that the ball shall be put into play on the 30-yard line instead of the 20-yard line. The alteration was made because of the difficulty of spectators in differentiating between a safety and a touch-back.

The committee suggested to the central board of officials, that after the season of 1921, no college football official who shall officiate in a professional game shall be eligible for any further college football contests.

It was ruled that the referee shall toss the coin for the call of the opening play and the winning captain having numbered his choice of such play, cannot reverse such decisions.

In an effort to curtail cutting down a player from behind, the committee elaborated by the rule on unnecessary roughness to include running into, diving into or throwing the body against a player obviously out of the play. The penalty, which stands as a loss of 15 yards, was extended to include such loss on the kick-off following a touchdown in case such score should result in the play in which the penalty was incurred.

HOLDING A HUSBAND

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

How Dicky "Came Back" at Madge. Dicky thrust his hands deep into his pockets, a trick of his when he is exasperated, and glared at me.

"Well, I'll be cursed!" he ejaculated after a long stare in which he cleverly registered unbounded amazement as well as gathering wrath. "So you think I'm about to embark on a skin game, do you? Nice opinion you've got of me, haven't you? Suppose you tell me just what you'd do in the way of restoring this dining room if you were running things. Come on, let's have the benefit of that wonderful business head of yours!"

The mockery of his eyes was intensified by the cutting sager in his voice. A slanted straight through all the good resolutions I had made to do nothing rouse my temper. "If I were 'running things' as you so courteously express it," I said icily, "I would call in the decorator or who did the room and have him do it over exactly as it was before."

Underneath the Smile. My husband stared at me as if he were seeing me for the first time. "I believe you would," he said at last as if to himself. "I'll be blessed if I don't believe you'd be just that big a fool!"

I made him no answer. My heart was sick at the contempt in his voice. I turned abruptly away from him and walked toward the kitchen. Dicky strode after me, putting a compelling hand on my shoulder and turned me so that I faced him.

"Look here," he said with the quick contrition which often follows his ugly mood. "I suppose I was a bit rough just now, but you can't know how ridiculous your proposition is. Now just listen to me while I talk to you in words of one syllable."

He was smiling down at me and, as usual, I couldn't resist smiling back at him. But underneath the smile lay still the remembrance of the stinging words and manner he had used. They could not be rubbed out so easily.

"From your description of that dame," Dicky began oracularly. "I can tell what the kind that's going to make a howl anyway on general principles. And with that sort of people the more you do for 'em the more they suspect your motive. They simply can't understand any."

"But she's working herself into a temper and my own nerves were ready to snap so tactfully were drawn. But the striking of the clock which Katie had set going in the kitchen brought me to a realization of the social duties before us. The bride's home-coming must not be marred by a conjugal row on our part. On her account, I did what I have never done before—I played the role of a meek, coaxing wife, when I did not feel the part. Going up to Dicky, I slipped my arms around his neck.

"Don't be cross," I said. "There'll be no hammer and no 'I told you so' club. Kiss me, and then let's hurry and dress."

He held me off from him and looked steadily, quizzically at me until my eyes fell and I felt the hot color mount in my cheeks. "You feel a lot like kissing me," he said mockingly. "You'd much rather exercise that fist of yours. But I never decline a lady's challenge."

He clasped me roughly in his arms and kissed me, smiling half-tenderly, half-maliciously when he had done so.

"Now there won't be any danger of a scrap when the dear bride and groom get home," he said with a comprehending grin.

Dog Hill Paragrafts

By George Bingham. Washington Hocks is thinking about raising the foundation of his house about two inches so his dogs won't bump their heads against the floor underneath when they scratch.

There is considerable talk pro and con about a movement to improve the roads of this section, but it has about been decided to let them stay like they are so that our people will have to do all their trading with the home merchant.

The Mail Carrier came in several hundred yards ahead of time this afternoon as a funeral procession dropped in behind and crowded him.

WHY—

Is "Jean Crapaud" Symbolic of France?

Practically all the prominent nations of the world have come, by virtue of the custom of the years, to be symbolized in the person of one man, to whom are attributed a number of outstanding peculiarities of the country. Thus we have Uncle Sam as typical of the United States, John Bull as symbolic of England, the German Michael, the Russian Ivan Ivanovitch and the French Jean Crapaud. But, while Uncle Sam had its origin in a mistake made by ignorant soldiers during the War of 1812, and John Bull was the creation of a brilliant satirist, Jean Crapaud harks back to the reign of Louis XIV, and an even more ancient prophecy.

When the French took the city of Aras from the Spaniards, after a long and desperate siege, a number of persons claimed to find a piece of the event in the statue of Nostradamus that "Les anciens crapauds prenent Sara"—"The ancient toads shall take Sara." The name used by Nostradamus, it was noticed, was nothing more than Aras spelled backwards, and it was claimed that the phrase was a brilliant satire, referred to the French, as that nation formerly had for its annual bearings three toads, instead of fleur-de-lis which appeared in later years. The name found favor among the peasantry, and "Jean Crapaud" soon became a mythical personage who personified the event. The attributes of the nation as a whole—finally to be immortalized in the familiar figure with the waxed mustaches, the bell-shaped trousers and tapering silk hat of the cartoonist.

Do You Know the Bible?

(Cover up the answers, read the question and see if you know the answer. Then look at the answers to see if you are right.)

Arranged by J. WILLSON ROY.

1. Why does St. Mark omit the commendatory expression of our Lord in favor of Peter which St. Matthew mentions, while he is very particular to mention St. Peter's fall and denial of his Master?

2. Who was St. Luke?

3. Who was St. John the evangelist?

4. What is the meaning of the word apostle, as referred to in the Bible?

5. Why were 12 apostles chosen?

Answers.

1. Because the gospel of St. Mark was dictated chiefly by St. Peter, who, from his great humility, chose that the evangelist should so write.

2. A native of Antioch, capital of Syria, the companion of St. Paul in his apostolic excursions, and called by him "the beloved physician and his fellow-laborer."

3. A native of Bethsaida, the son of Zebedee, and brother to St. James the Great.

4. The name given to a small class of men to whom Jesus Christ entrusted the organization of his church and the dissemination of his religion among mankind.

5. Because that was the number of the tribes of Israel; the apostles being mystically constituted the heads of the tribes of the new Israel, or church of the gospel dispensation.

Parents' Problems

Is it safe to allow a girl of 19 to run an automobile?

The law allows any person "over 18" who an affidavit to have a license to run an automobile. Great care is taken that would-be drivers of automobiles do qualify—that is, actually demonstrate that they can run an automobile, understand the traffic regulations, etc. But parents should supplement this by warning their children whether their daughter (and sons) are responsible, careful and of steady heads and hands. Running an automobile is not entirely safe, at any age.

Where It Started

The Congressional Medal.

The first medal ever voted by congress, was voted March 25, 1776, to be presented to George Washington. At about the same time congress voted a medal to Lieutenant Colonel Fleury, a Frenchman who had enlisted as a private. Later, these special medals voted by congress were made a part of the regular United States decorations for valor.
