Financial

By ALEXANDER DANA NOYES. Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire. New York, March 13 .- In the confusion of movement which existed in last week's financial markets, despite the general and severe decline, two curious facts will be observed. The stock exchange was not affected by the new turn in the German negotiations, which, on its face, was clearly unfavorable, but it was instantly and unfavorably affected by the news of the wage reduction policy of our railways, although that policy which must await official approval, could not make the situation worse and might make it better. But second, although the railway announcements were the obvious basis for the decline in prices, the weeks heaviest declines were not in the railway stocks, but in the industrials. The effect on sentiment of the railway announcements was undoubtedly greater because they amounted to formal and final declaration that the relief expected from the new railroad law had not been obtained.

Expectations Upset.

Expeciations Upset.

Actual secured of the railroad act and the Interstate Commerce commission's higher rates, in their effect on railway earnings and railway finances is one in a long succession of events which, from the beginning of 1919 up to the present date, competely upset what had previously seemed to be reasonable expectation and production. The announcement by the commission last July, of the 25 to 40 ner cent increase in freight rates was at the time, greefed aimost unanimously by the railway managers themselves as a distinct solution of the problem. The increase as then announced was, in fact, slightly greater than the carriers themselves had asked.

It is true the commission itself, in reporting that increase, stated that its exact result was bound to be uncertain; that "what revenue will actually be produced, no one can tell," since "the general price level is changing from day to day," and that "it is impossible to forecast with any degree of certainty what the volume of traffic will be." But even this reservation seemed mainly to imply a doubt as to whether the new rates should produce mere revenue than was estimated, and one commissioner who concurred in the decision against his will, defended his position in a separate opinion on the ground that "it would be a mistake if the the decision against his will, defended his position in a separate opinion on the ground that "it would be a mistake if the railways were now accorded rates designed to produce substantially less revolue than their responsible executives assert that they need in order that good service may be provided."
