Cabinet Wives Have Many Charms

Mrs. James Wallace.

If May Broadhead Wallace, wife of the new secretary of agriculture, is excited or a bit nervous over the new honor that has come to her husband, nobody knows it but herself. She says she is going to miss Des Moines, her home, but most of all she will miss her flower gardens this spring. She has a reputation for raising pansies.

Mrs. Wallace is a home woman. She has been praised for her cooking by some of the greatest men in America, for the Wallace home has long been reputed for its hospitality and many men of greatness have been welcomed under its roof. Mrs. Wallace is a member of the Phi Beta Phi sorority and a graduate of Ames college. She met her husband while attending school at Ames college and they were married on Thanksgiving day in 1887.

Mrs. John M. Weeks.
The Secretary of War and Mrs. John M. Weeks of Boston, like the Secretary of States and Mrs. Hughes, dislike publicity. Mrs. Weeks even more than Mrs. Hughes. During the years of her husband's service in the senate she never grew accustomed to the publicity into which the position naturally throws every senatorial family. She kept to her own circle of personal friends, never permitted her own or her daughter's photograph to get into the public prints and kept all knowledge of her entertainments within the little circle in which she was identified. Their only daughter was Miss Katherine Weeks. Miss Weeks was introduced to society while her father was senator and married into the residential circle of Washington, also during that time. She is now Mrs. John W. Davis, wife of one of the young lawyers of the city, and son of the late Justice Walter D. Davis, a leading jurist of the city. They live in a handsome apartment at 2139 Wyoming avenue, and are identified with the old resident set of fashionable society. Mrs. Weeks, as a girl was Miss Martha Sinclair.

Miss Ailsa Mellon.
Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, will have for his hostess his young daughter, Ailsa, who is about 18. She will probably be the most interesting member of this new coterie of officialdom, as she will fall heir to an enormous fortune, a glamor whose attraction must be acknowledged. She will probably not only be a cabinet bud during her first season here, but like the former Miss Nona McAdoo, daughter of that other secretary of the treasury, will be a charming young cabinet hostess. Her mother formerly was Miss Nora McMullin of Hertfordshire, England, where her marriage took place in 1900. Miss Mellon's chaperone at home is Miss Alice Sylvester, who acts as hostess of Mr. Mellon's splendid place at Oak Ridge, a suburb of Pittsburgh. Paul Mellon, the only son of the secretary-elect, is at the Western University of Pennsylvania, his father's alma mater. Mr. Mellon is expected to take a house in Washington at once.

The Arabs believe that falling stars are stones thrown by the angels at devils who are trying to get into paradise.

Every man has his star. When a star shoots, it is a sign that the man to whom it belongs is dead.

The beautiful stars that shine brightly belong to people whom God especially loves, his elect, who have accomplished many good works and have never displeased him.

The negroes say that when the stars are so thick that there is no space between them for your finger tip, it will rain next day.

If a star seems to move, wish and you will get what you wish for.

Spit three times for luck when a star falls and make your heart's wish.

Many stars in winter indicate frost.

In summer, when many stars twinkle, clear weather is indicated.

Observe carefully the dipper which is called "the lucky group of stars," and you will be fortunate for a week to come.

When the stars begin to huddle, the earth will soon become a muddle.

The comet of 43, B. C., which appeared after the assassination of Julius Caesar, was looked upon by the Romans as being a celestial chariot sent to convey his soul heavenward.

It is lucky to see the first star at night and say:

Star light, star bright, first star I've seen tonight; I wish I may, I wish I might, have the wish I wish tonight.

When the stars flicker in a dark background rain or snow follows soon.

To see the great dipper on your first glance at the sky at night means that your cup of joy will soon be full.

Comets signify corruptions of the air; they are signs of earthquake, of wars, of changing kingdoms, great dearths of corn, etc., a common death of man and beast.

Tennyson calls Venus the planet of love.

A house beside which a star has fallen will soon have a death.

If you see the dipper in the heaven as you go on a business trip you will be successful.

That when any one is born a new star appears in the heavens. It remains burning as long as the person lives, but at his death it disappears. It influences his destiny throughout his life. Christ's star was the star of Bethlehem, a glorious object, shining with wonderful luster.

Select the number of stars in a constellation, add to it the number of the date of your birth and divide the whole by 12. Keep the result in your mind until you, shake hands with some one, then add the letters in that person's name to what you have. Divide by 7 and you will get the number of months before you are married. If it should run over 13 and be even you will marry a young man; if uneven, an old one. If over twice 13 and even, he will be red-headed; if uneven, he will be bald and rich.

Queen Mary has loaned the London Museum the doll's house with which she played when a child.

Two cups graham flour, one cup white flour, one teaspoonful soda, one teaspoonful salt, one-half cup brown sugar, one and one-half cups dates cut into strips, two cups of sour milk, or one cup sour milk and one cup cold water. Bake one hour in steady oven. This is delicious to serve with afternoon tea.

Star Lore

When a star falls, it is a sign that some one the angels love is shining on earth, so say the superstitious minded.

Dr. Ira S. Wile, food expert, declares Mrs. Cooley's diet furnishes only 694 calories a day, while a normal person needs from 2200 to 2400 calories. A person would only get 40 grams of protein a day from her menu and needs 125 grams.

Tables loaded with food, yet— a vital element now known to be lacking in our meals

A simple food that builds health
Fleischmann's Yeast, a simple familiar food, increases appetite, and helps all the processes of digestion. To build up and maintain health, keeping the body resistant to disease, eat 1 to 3 cakes of yeast a day—a part of your regular diet.

Laxatives gradually replaced
It is recognized that laxatives bring only temporary relief—they cannot remove the cause of the trouble. Fleischmann's Yeast by its very nature as a wholesome food is better suited to the system than coarse substances, drugs or oils. It is a conditioner that tends to restore normal functions. And it cannot form a habit.

For constipation, eat from 1 to 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast a day.

THE vital tissues upon which their health and strength depend, starving for lack of one single element in food! That is the situation of thousands of men and women today.

Science has discovered that the mysterious life-giving vitamin is essential to health. Without it our food, no matter how good and plentiful, cannot give us the energy we need.

Our food, though plentiful and good, is often robbed of this vital element!

Physicians and food specialists have obtained almost magic results by adding it to diets.

Today, thousands of men and women are eating Fleischmann's Yeast to correct the vitamin deficiency in their ordinary meals. As a result, they are finding themselves free of minor ailments. They are building up increased resistance to disease, and are feeling an abounding sense of vigor and energy often unknown for years.

Eat yeast before or between meals. 1 to 3 cakes a day. Spread it on toast or crackers—dissolve it in milk or fruit-juices—or eat it plain. Those who are troubled with gas should first dissolve yeast in boiling water.

Place a standing order with your grocer for Fleischmann's Yeast and get it fresh daily.

To learn more about what this important discovery has done for others and what it can do for you, send for new booklet, "The New Importance of Yeast in Diet." Address THE FLEISCHMANN COMPANY, 1609 Chicago Street, Omaha, Nebraska.

The mysterious, almost magical "vitamine"—its richest source

Yeast is the richest known source of the vigor-making vitamin which is lacking in so many of our common foods. This is what has caused yeast to assume such a new and startling importance in our food.

Mrs. Winifred Harper Cooley, of New York City, head of the National Associated Clubs of Domestic Science, is shown here preparing the 19-cent-a-day fare which she says is enough for the average person. Here is the $1.33 a week menu listed by Mrs. Cooley: Spinach, 21 cents; cheese, 5 cents; whole wheat bread, 10 cents; oranges, 15 cents; apples, 10 cents; cocoa, 21 cents. Dr. Ira S. Wile, noted New York food expert, is of the opinion that Mrs. Cooley's diet is faulty and would get monotonous. He declared the diet furnished only 694 calories a day, while a normal person requires from 2,200 to 2,400 calories. Mrs. Cooley claims that her diet need not be as monotonous as it sounds. She points out that for very little more money a day other articles can be bought. For instance, an egg, which would add but 5 cents to the total cost for the day.
