

Sunday Blue Law Is Substituted For Senate Bill

Committee Plays Joke on Upper House—Continue Fight on Regulatory Measures.

Lincoln, March 23.—(Special Telegram.)—The senate committee on miscellaneous subjects played a little joke on the upper branch today by stripping S. F. 264, a bill to abolish four code secretaries, of everything but the number and attaching a Sunday blue law to the number. The substitute bill prohibits the playing of base ball in any precinct or township that votes against it.

Oppose Regulation.

The same objections, too much regulation, were raised against S. F. 311, to regulate employment agencies and prevent them from sending when out "on wild goose chases" for work. It was advanced to third reading, with 20 votes in its favor.

Senator Anderson called up H. R. 411, the Lincoln annexation bill, and it was advanced to third reading without discussion. This bill permits the individual suburbs to vote on uniting with Lincoln on a petition of 20 per cent of their citizens.

Correct Salary Bill.

S. F. 326—Authorizing secretary of state instead of secretary of finance to publish session laws.

S. F. 251—A bill to increase the salary of the next county treasurer of Douglas county from $4,000 to $5,000, was about to be advanced when somebody discovered that in amending the bill all salary provisions had been stricken out. It was left on the general file for later correction.

Bill Authorizing State Purchase of Road Material Saved

Lincoln, March 23.—(Special Telegram.)—Six hours after killing a bill centering purchases of bridge and highway construction materials in the state department of public works, the lower house reconsidered its action and put the bill back on general file. Representative Osterman led the fight to give members a second opportunity to vote on the bill. Representative Epperson of Clay fought the Osterman motion and reiterated charges of the immense power centralization of these purchases would place in one department.

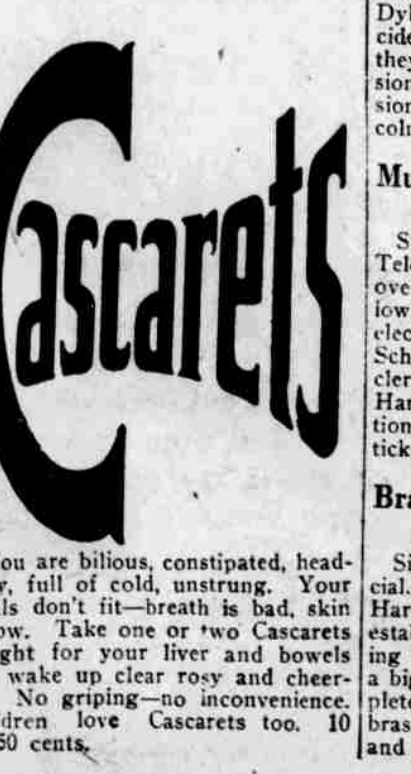

The bill, H. R. No. 554, directs that on March 1 each year county commissioners shall prepare and submit to the state department a list of road and bridge materials necessary to carry out their bridge and road program for the ensuing year. It provides specifications for these materials shall be prepared by the state department and bids received by the state department of finance. Materials not in excess of $200 may be purchased by the county commissioners.

Rest Problems Only to Be Heard by Committee

Why Johnnie Leaves the Farm and Why Modern Scientific Farming Offers Great Opportunities To Persons of Right Type.

By MABEL WARNER RUGG. "WHY Johnnie left the farm," has been the topic of many a fireside talk by the home folks of many a learned book by professors of economics, of many a musical comedy on Broadway. But few have discussed the matter scientifically—and basically—from the standpoint of Johnnie himself.

Too Fine Textured?

Again, he might have been too fine textured to get pleasure out of the rigors of farm life. His nature interpreted as hardships, those things a successful farmer regards as minor in comparison to the delights of the open air life he loves. You all know that of later years there has been a distinct "back to the farm" movement. In the exodus have gone colonies from university towns and cities of the east, middle and western parts of our country. His fingers most probably were under my personal observation—and all are successful. How is it that university people, many of them city born and bred, and gently nurtured, can be happy on the farm, even out on the unbroken plains of Arizona?

Why They Succeed.

It is simply this. Even if they were brain workers before hand, they were people of quick perception, an essential to happiness on the farm. They were medium or coarse textured and they were of the type who would not interpret regular routine as monotony. Fairness of course, to the Johnnie who left the farm in days gone by, we must admit that conditions have changed radically since his day of departure. These university colonies, for instance, are building their farm homes in vil-

Annexation Of Sarpy County Grows In Favor

Need of Fort Crook Paving Starts Talk of Reconsidering Measure Recently Voted Down.

Lincoln, March 23.—(Special.)—Faced with a justifiable demand for an appropriation of $300,000 to hard surface a road in Sarpy county leading to Fort Crook, members of the lower house see more justice in the Sarpy-Douglas county annexation plan than they did at the first of the session.

Admit Paving Need.

No one argues that the road doesn't need paving. There is no question that the importance of Fort Crook as a military center depends upon the state meeting the government half way in improving transportation facilities to the army post. Representative Frazier of Sarpy county at a recent banquet given to legislators by the Omaha Chamber of Commerce in Lincoln, said:

"We must either pave that road or lose the fort." Members of the legislature living south of Sarpy and Douglas counties have substantiated stories of the terrible condition of Sarpy county roads and that part of the Fort Crook road in Sarpy county.

Refuse to Fix Roads.

These same members have learned that efforts to get Sarpy county to spend money in building modern roads have failed. All of these things, coupled with the fact that if they refuse annexation and also the $300,000 appropriation they will be the object of censure, and in all probability will be held responsible for Missouri or Minnesota, with more generous purses to get the headquarters of the Seventh Army corps, is causing them to look with favor on the annexation plan.

Bill for Municipal Light Plant in Omaha Is Revived in Senate

Lincoln, March 23.—(Special.)—Senate File No. 249, a duplicate of the late House Roll No. 1, was lifted out of the committee on municipal affairs in the state senate this morning and placed on general file by a vote of 23 to 8.

The bill provides for placing in the hands of the Metropolitan Water board of Omaha the power of establishing a municipal electric light and power plant in Omaha.

Senator Beebe charged there was no prior notice for this hearing and the Nebraska Power company could not get their representatives to Lincoln in time to appear at the hearing.

Senator Robbins moved that the senate make an exception in this case to the ruling recently adopted that all senate bills not out of the committee by today noon be killed and provide a special hearing for senate file 249 next Friday afternoon.

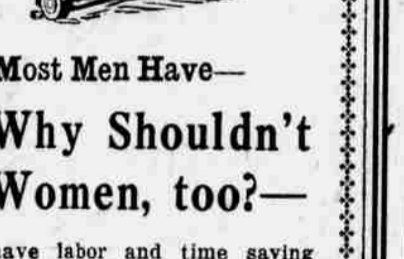

The annual cost of road maintenance in New York state, which includes merely the lighter repairs, aggregates about $3,500,000.
