

Two Omaha Women Held In Bluffs For Shoplifting

Wife of F. R. King and Companion Arrested With Quantity of Loot in Their Possession.

Mrs. F. R. King, 203 South Thirtieth street, Omaha, and a companion giving her name as Anna Nechtinable, were arrested in Council Bluffs yesterday afternoon upon shoplifting charges. Two pairs of slippers from the Peoples department store, a hat from the Joe Smith store and candy, stationery and hairnets from a 10-cent store were found in their possession. A clerk from the Peoples department store, who followed the women after the slippers were missed, caused their arrest at Pearl street and Broadway. He called Traffic Officer Robert Weimar, who took them into custody. Mrs. King refused to go to the police station, and during the argument her companion ran into the Fanger Woman's Toggery.

The policeman called A. J. Nielsen, bluffs aviator, to help him, and the bluffsman brought Anna Nechtinable out of the store. On the march to the police station the officer and his prisoners were followed by a crowd of curious spectators. Mrs. King pleaded constantly with Weimar to release her and attempted to break away every few steps. Mrs. King was arrested in the bluffs in the fall of 1919, when she and a companion, Mrs. L. Winchell, attempted to steal a $600 fur coat at the John Beno store. They were pursued and captured by Peter Madison, after a chase of many blocks, in which they dropped the coat. They pleaded guilty to the charge in district court and were fined $500 each and sentenced to five years in the women's reformatory at Rockwell City.

Prison sentence in each case was suspended, however, and the women were paroled to their husbands. Mrs. King used the alias of Rosa Miller, while Mrs. Winchell told police she was Hazel Reed at the time of their arrest. Mrs. Winchell is now in Chicago with her husband, according to the county attorney, who says Mrs. King may now serve a term at Rockwell City for violation of parole.

Exhibit of Dearth Paintings Popular

Art Lovers Throng Gallery Of Library for Memorial.

The memorial exhibition of paintings by Henry Golden Dearth, an American painter, is proving a popular and interesting feature at the art gallery on the third floor of the public library.

In a gallery talk yesterday Morris Rock, director of the Omaha Fine Arts society, described the painter's works and the various periods it covered.

Dearth's art had three periods. The first shows landscapes of poetic quality. The second gives studies in broken colors, the most distinctive being "pools" and "marines" painted in Brittany. The third and most important are arrangements of still life, Gothic Renaissance, Oriental and portraits and figures against backgrounds of old textiles, Japanese screens or wood carvings prominent for their rich coloring.

During his life Mr. Dearth won many prizes for his work.

The collection is being viewed daily by art lovers of the city.

Woman Given $500 Insurance On Daughter in 2 Companies

Mrs. Anna B. Yager, 216 South Forty-second street, was awarded a verdict for $500 against the Equitable Assurance company and the B. F. Goodrich Rubber company in Municipal Judge Holmes' court yesterday.

Mrs. Yager was beneficiary of an insurance policy for $500 taken out with the assurance company by the Goodrich company, for which her daughter, Myra, worked.

Miss Myra died April 9, 1920, from influenza, and the insurance was not paid to the mother on the grounds that the girl had returned to work, her name marked off the sick list and had suffered a relapse, from which she died. Judge Holmes held that the companies were liable for the insurance.

Carpenters Vote to Accept 10 Per Cent Slice in Wages

Acceptance of a 10 per cent wage reduction effective April 1 was voted Tuesday night by 600 members of Local No. 427 of the Carpenters' union. The vote stood three to one. This reduction is in line with a compromise said to be acceptable by the contractors who previously announced a 20 per cent cut had to be made. The compromise agreement calls for another 10 per cent cut July 10 if conditions warrant.

Marrying Parson Ties 5,000th Matrimonial Knot

Rev. C. W. Savidge, Omaha's marrying parson, reached the goal of his ambition at 4:30 yesterday afternoon, when he married his 5,000th couple.

Vinnie Towle, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Towle of Benson, was the bride. Walter Rasmussen, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Rasmussen, also of Benson, was the groom. The ceremony was performed at Rev. Mr. Savidge's home. Rev. Mr. Savidge performed his first marriage ceremony October 15, 1879, in Richfield, Meeker county, Minn. A year or so ago he declared he would be satisfied when he had married 5,000 couples. But last night he performed another ceremony, which brought the total to 5,001, and now the marrying parson says he'll keep on marrying 'em, even though he has passed the 5,000 mark.

"Some of these days I'm going to get myself some timber land near Seattle, Wash., where my son lives," said the minister last night. "I want the land on the mountainside, where the birds sing. I'm going to build a log cabin there. The place must be near enough to the ocean so I can fish and hunt for clams. No, I don't think I'll leave Omaha permanently, but I plan to spend part of my time there, at least. If the time should drag I might be able to find a few couples to marry, too. How does it sound to you?"

'Square Jaws' Needed to Keep From City Evils, Says Pastor

"Square jaws" are needed to withstand temptations of city life, the Rev. Paul Calhoun told young people, who made up the biggest part of the large audience in the Brandeis theater at holy week services yesterday noon. He urged them to close their eyes to greed and strife and, like Paul on his visit to Corinth, see only Christ. Rev. Mr. Calhoun substituted for the Rev. O. D. Baitzly. The Y. M. C. A. quartet sang. Similar noonday services will be held today and Friday.

Woman Battles With Robber for Several Minutes

Intruder Escapes With Loot After Overpowering Mrs. Lehman and Locking Her in Closet.

Mrs. Ferdinand A. Lehman, 55, 2705 South Nineteenth street, was finally overcome by an intruder with whom she battled furiously for several minutes, and locked in a clothes closet, while her husband, unconscious of her danger, busied himself painting his garage in the back yard. The struggle occurred Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Lehman, who is hard of hearing, did not discover the presence of the prowler until he entered her bedroom, where she was seated.

"What do you want?" she inquired. "I want money," replied the prowler.

Mrs. Lehman believed the man had been sent to her by her husband to be paid for hauling rubbish away, and replied:

"All right, come downstairs with me and I'll give it to you."

"No you don't," replied the man, and as she attempted to pass he struck her in the mouth. A tussle followed. The man seized her by the throat and she was unable to scream. She fought desperately, but the man finally dragged her into a clothes closet and locked the door.

Before fleeing the man picked up two watches and a pocket knife. Mr. Lehman heard a pounding in the house and found his wife in the clothes closet a short time later. She was badly bruised but not seriously injured, it is believed. She was able to give police a good description of her assailant.
