THE BEE: OMAHA, TUESDAY, MARCH 29, 1921

THE BEE PUBLISHING COMPANY, - NELSON B. UPDIKE, Publisher.

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The Associated Press, of which The Bee is a member, is an fusicely entitled to the use for publication of all news dispatches realised to it or not otherwise credited in this paper, and also the near news unbiashed herein. All rights of publication of our special lispatches are also reserved. dispatches are also tes

BEE TELEPHONES "Hrate Branch Exchange. Ask for be Department or Person Wanted. Tyler 1000 For Night Calls After 10 P. M.: Editorial Department OFFICES OF THE BEE Main Office: 17th and Farmam 15 Scott BL | South Bide Council Bluffs 2318 N St Out-of-" wn Offices: Storer Bldz. Paris. France. 420 Buest. Bonore

The Bee's Platform

1. New Union Passenger Station.

2. Continued improvement of the Nebraska Highways, including the pavement of Main Thoroughfares leading into Omaha with a Brick Surface.

3. A short, low-rate Waterway from the Corn Belt to the Atlantic Ocean.

4. Home Rule Charter for Omaha, with City Manager form of Government.

First Aid for the Farmer.

The really encouraging teature of the program as being outlined for the session of congress soon to assemble is that consideration is to be given first to the plight of the farmers. This will take the form of a revival of the Fordney tariff bill, vetoed by President Wilson, which measure will be taken up at once, and its early passage may be expected. President Harding undoubtedly will approve it, and whatever of benefit may flow from it will be for the direct advantage of the agricultural industry.

The measure will have opposition, particularly from eastern interests, who are committed to a revision of the tariff along such lines as will tend to encourage toreign trade. A singular development is noted here. When the doctrine of the protective tariff was adopted by the republican party as part of its creed, the opposition went among the farmers preaching that the law was all for the manufacturer at the expense of the grower of food crops. Opponents of protection now seek to array the manufacturer against the farmer, on a reversal of position. The position taken is not fair, and those who are endeavoring to arouse a sectional feeling over the tariff are doing the country a bad service. What is aimed at now has been all along the object of protection as popularly understood. Preservation of the home market to home producers is the greatest thing the American government can achieve. Foreign trade is desirable, but it should not be attained at the expense of so important a thing as our farming interests.,

The middle west is for the Fordney tariff bill. The south wants it, and wherever in the east dairying and other allied industries are carried on there is a request for it. Cattle raisers and sheep men are for it, and the fruit growers have their share in it. It cuts off competition that threatens the food producers. It may appear anomalous that in a land that but lately was looked to to feed the world, and which did win the war by saving food, a situation would develop where those food producers would be made the chief sufferers from the result of their own efforts, but this has come to pass, and it is to remedy the situation in some degree that the Fordney bill is intended. Scientific revision of the tariff may follow later. The Underwood law is to be completely and thoroughly overhauled as part of the general. plan to work out a satisfactory system of revenue, but the Fordney bill is an emergency measure, designed to give relief to the farmers of the land. and as such deserves to have the earliest consideration. When a little help is given to the home folks, then we may take up the other task of straightening out the world muddle, but we ought to look out a little for domestic happiness first.

States owes something like $7,000,000, more than double the amount due the United States for war loans to France.

The State and Treasury departments at Washington have now made a search of the records without finding any unpaid bills of this kind. The profound discovery of M. Bernard may have been a hoax, but in the eagerness with which it was received by his countrymen may be read the thrifty hope of wiping out the war loan without either repudiation or actual payment Square Pegs in Round Holes.

Employers often are heard to lament the lack of really good men to fill positions of responsibility, but that does not prove that there is any real deficiency of talent in the world. Rather must it be taken as evidence of a lack of system which prevents the right man getting in touch with the right job.

Chance, which plays a great part.even in the vital matter of love and marriage, functions even more freely in the choice of human occupations. On the verge of college, most young men are uncertain whether they shall turn to the study of law, engineering, medicine, teaching or what other vocation, and their decision is more than likely to be purely accidental.

Almost everyone grows up without ever really looking inside of himself, not recognizing the points of weakness and those of strength. Special talent for art, music or scholarship may be detected, but beyond this is a region seldom explored. The factors of memory, will, quickness of understanding, sureness of touch, or acuteness of any one of the senses are seldom taken into account. Such qualities as these might make for success in some special line, or for failure in another

In the same way young people going into the employment market know little of the requirements of any job. The attention is centered on the superficial aspects, such as its cleanliness, the hours, the treatment received from the boss, and the like. The possibilities of reward in the event of success may be considered, but whether one is fitted to discharge the duties with pleasure and efficiency is seldom or never pondered. Spccial capabilities remain undiscovered and perhaps the job becomes one of drudgery, even ending in discharge, whereas if the person concerned should have stumbled into a place for which he was particularly fitted, both the industry and the individual would have benefited.

Much is heard about conservation of natural resources, but there is need also for conservation of human resources. One who is thrown out of a position as unfit, stands small chance of gaining opportunity to start anew without being handicapped by the thought of failure. One of the biggest problems of life is how to avoid being a square peg in a round hole.

Dark Age Methods in Georgia.

A tale that smacks of the medieval comes to us from Georgia. There a farmer, accused of an offense against the law, calmly proceeds to rcmove all evidence against him by murdering the witnesses. If this had taken place anywhere between the eighth and the fifteenth centuries, it would have excited little wonder. Such doings were not uncommon then, but that the record of twentieth-century America can be so stained shocks even the mind attuned to strange things. Possibly some good may be extracted from the affair.

Consideration of the crime itself must lead to

Germany's Industrial Leader Brief Sketch of Hugo Stinnes

Biggest of All Teutons Today

London, March 28 .-- Hugo Stinnes, generalissimo of German industry, recently accused of plotting a strike of several hundred thousand workers in the Ruhr district to make more difficult the Allied occupation of Dusseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhroot, is referred to by the Berlin correspondent of the Times as "an earnest and dangerous patriot.

Stinnes, a multi-millionaire member of the Reichstag, has put through some of the greatest financial deals of his career since the armistice. He has been called a "relentlessly efficient, human calculating machine." It has been said that he would sacrifice every mark of his enormous fortune to bring back the monarchy.

Mine owner and coal merchant, ship owner, landed proprietor, head of a great chain of newspapers, proprietor of the very finest hotel in Berlin, trader in oils, paper, hides, jute, peat and manufactured wares of many kinds, Stinnes, the Times correspondent says, "is today the wealthiest, most influential, best known, and at the same time the least well known man in Germany." Publicity and notoriety are alien to him, it is stated, and he prefers to remain behind the curtains in the Reichstag, permitting his henchmen and heutenants to do the talking while he pulls the strings.

"There is nothing in his appearance to betray the man of genius," says the correspondent. "Just years old, of medium height and sturdily built, with black hair and beard that show up strongly against a rather sallow complexion, Hugo Stinnes is an inconspicuous figure as he slips in and out of the Adlon hotel, his bowler hat tilted slightly on one side, his hand in his pocket, and one or two secretaries following hard on the heels of chief in his well worn black coat and black tie. He stops to speak to no one. He has no time for small talk in the lounge with other guests. He is a relentlessly efficient, cool, human, calculating machine.

The foundations of the Stinnes fortune were laid by the present Stinnes' grandfather and increased by his father. The youth was sent to a gymnasium and later worked as a miner and attended the School of Mines in Berlin. Embarking in business for himself at the age of 23, his remarkable career began. He went with success into the coal and iron trade, becoming a prominent figure among the magnates of Rhenish Westphalia, and branched out into the development of tramways and electric power in the coal fields.

But his "real great spring to fortune," says the Times, "came with the great war." "His fortune before the war was estimated at 40,000,000 golden marks. What it is now he probably could not say himself-possibly 1,000,-000,000 marks." Newspapers now owned by Stinnes are said to number at least sixty.

"People are eagerly asking with what ultimate object all this colossal wealth is being incessantly piled up," says, the Times correspondent. "Does his present association with and financing of the Volkspartie mean that Stinnes s preparing to bring back the monarchy?"

"Stinnes," concludes the correspondent, referring to the alleged truculent conduct of the Stinnes. financier at the Brussels Financial conference. 'has measured himself once with the Allies and received a severe snubbing. He is not likely to risk a second similar rebuff. Nor is he likely to forget. Let the Allies in their turn remember that, witness his unconciliating manner of the conference table, he lis an carnest and dangerous patriot.

Alleged "fantastic salaries' demanded by German film stars has caused film producers so much concern' that a move has been made toward limiting their pay. The moving picture companies, in making this announcement, gave out a list of salaries which they believe exorbitant.

The salaries of a few women reached 800,000 marks yearly, it is said, although the usual pay based on the results of these tests for first-class work is about 3,500 marks daily have been made for the purpose of while employed. It is customary to hire even well known performers by "the piece." Those under regular contracts are paid from 7,000 to 30,000 marks a month. Unknown players are paid as low as 150 marks a day.

How to Keep Well

Questions concerning hygiene, sanitation and prevention of disease, submitted to Dr. Evans by readers of The Bee, will be answered personally, subject to proper limitation, where a stamped addressed envelope is enclosed. Dr Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases. Address letters in care of The Bee.

ulas

Copyright, 1921, by Dr. W. A. Evans

BEWARE SCAPHOID SCAPULA. The paim readers tell me that one uestion patrons want to know about s the length of the life line. "How long will I live?" is a question that the phrenologist is called on to ans-Life is a great adventure and death is ranked as "the great advent-

Some men glory in adventure while others cling to the beaten situdes of life. Even the most shel-path. But all, bold and timid, some terer life is full of adventure. The openly. some covertly, are anxious venturesome have to pull back the curtain a little and Dr. Grave steal a look into the future. Witness scaphoid Dr. Graves' point of view is that the the wave of spiritualism that is sweeping over the land just now. physical constitution and that those In the Osler Memorial volume I find a contribution by Dr. W. W. of life on an average at a considerably greater ratio than do the mem-Graves of St. Louis which lays down bers of other groups. a sign of longevity or its opposite which has more scientific foundation than the life line of the palm, the knots in the skull or the images in a ter 16% years old, who is attending crystal. the university. She takes vocal les-Do you remember Katisha and her sons. She has a goiter. I just noticed wonderful shoulder blade? Had Ka-it last fall. It is small, but we are tisha been around Dr. Graves he worried. Can I treat it in any way? Can I treat it in any way? worried. might have robbed her famous bone Should she stop singing?" its romance and he might even REPLY. have gone further and predicted long backbone and nearly parallel with it In stooped shoulders the chest is barreled and the flat shoulder blads Exact Nature Unknown. Mrs. A. M. T. writes: "1. What is slips forward on the sharply curved Raynaud's disease and is it fatal? In such people the shoulder 2. Please tell me about carbuncle of the urethra? Is it an unusual disblades stand out so that they are sometimes called "winged scapula." ease, does it terminate in cancer, is It is easy to feel the backbone edge there a cure and does standing or of the shoulder blade in such people. straining at stool cause it, or what It is not even difficult in flat-backed, does cause it?" heavily muscled people. REPLY.

A small anatomical goiter in a life for its possessor. The shoulder blade, known to the osteologists as schoolgirl is not necessarily a matter of moment. Advise with your physithe scapula, is the heavy triangular bone lying on the upper part of the back of the ribs. One corner of the cian as to giving her small doses of lodide for a while each spring. There is no reason for discontinuing triangle co-operates with two other either her vocal or regular lessons. Be cerones to make the shoulder joint. tain to teach her poise, equanimity The edge of the scapula which runs north and south lies not far from the and control.

Now for the sign. In a vigorous. In typical Raynaud's the tip of strong person this backbone edge of a finger, toe, nose or ear will become the shoulder blade is arched toward almost bloodless, then gangrenous the backbone. In people without and finally will slough. In mild cases much vitality this edge is straight or during the attacks, the affected it curves in the other direction-the member becomes blue or white and concavity points toward the backthe circulation is very poor. The sign of weak constitution mildest cases are related to cold feet and, therefore, of tendency toward chilblains, etc. The exact nature of short life is the "scaphoid scapula." the disease is not understood. The name sounds troublesome and 2. Carbuncle of the urethra is not an infrequent condition. It seldom how about the life line of the pain or the knots on the skull? serious condition. All such cases get

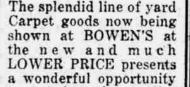

The expert skill of the palmist, the well under treatment. Some cancer of the urethra resemble carbuncle. well under treatment. Some cancers sometimes commands diamonds, automobiles and liveried servants. Graves bases his opinions on the following observations: Old people who have success. fully weathered the storm of life found to have convex edged scapulas.

bone

to Buy Carpets In children the scaphold scap-Is Now at The Mental Age

(From the Boston Transcript.) BOWEN'S In the midst of many troubles onies what would be a new source of anxiety and alarm, were some current ideas concerning human mentality to be taken at their face value. It is well known that dur ing the war the men in the American army were subject to a variety of mental tests. Since then tabulations

Your Opportunity

And as sure as shootin.' if this country will develop into a veritable

Interested in Ringer.

We pause for reply.

Of course, Mr. Ringer, at least to subject-licker; but who do you

Sees the Issue Plain.

Omaha, March 27 .- To the Edi-made as plain as day.

a into the grasp of the old Third

How is it that United States Mar-

Look the list over carefully, boys.

PERPLEXED.

s again, for now i

The city

pick to succeed him?

ONE WHO KNOWS.

Omaha, March 27-To the Editor their fingers a little quicker at Uncle of The Bec: Who is this fellow, high read.

"Welfare Sponsor," who raps the Welfare board? Is he afraid to sign anti-eightet law gains momentum his name and come out with his among the dear sisters who hang complaints into the open like a real onto Pussyfoot Johnson's skirts and man? His argument is no good, won't let go the apron strings He has no argument in fact, for he dear Lucy Page Gaspipe, there gites no specific instance where the be more law-breaking and this crime board has failed, while many cases wave that's causing so much worry where it has done good can be among leading police officials of the enumerated.

ly had scaphoid scapulas. I believe this fellow, "Welfare typhoon. br. Graves has had some people under observation for more than a dozen years and he observes that the scaphoids have a greater average ble dances to his heart's content, there will be lots more harm done. tendency to succumb to the vicis- drink all the moonshine he wants situdes of life. Even the most shel- to, and cut all the capers that a fellow with his peanut-brain craves. Otherwise, he would come out in the Omaha, March 25.-To the Edi open and sign his name to the letter for of The Bee: What about Mr hazards scapula shows inferior he wrote you. Let's hear from him Ringer? again, only make him tell who he who have it succumb to the hazards is and just what he means when he the maked eye, appears a bit balmy says the Welfare board is no good in the bean, so to speak, and the I'm for law and order. What's he wheels in his attic revolve upon one I'm for law and order ROBERT W. DANIELS. for?

For the Fags.

Omaha, March 26.-To the Editor Give it the north, south, east and of the Bee: And now, the dear souls west. Is there a candidate who is want to take our cigarets away from likely to do better? We'd like to know and we've given Well, when they draft a bill against it up. cigarets, why don't they draw up a sister bill against skirts that reach but to the knee and have a hard time doing that, silken hose that gives the leg the apperance of being tor of The Bee: Rally round the flag.

bare, dresses that droop in front alboys, raily one the time for all good men to come most to the waist-line' The war is over-for the sake of to the aid of their city. argument, although no peace treaty campaign is on and the issue has has been signed-but during that been time millions of men learned the isn't Judge Sutton leading the forces sweet pleasure of a cool cleavet of right, and United States Marshal smoke: and they don't propose to Dahiman opposing him. It's down lose that pleasure now. to a case now of standing by or-While the boys were overseas, they ganized government as it has been bozed the dry law through. but for the past two years, or falling there's going to be some difficulty ba n passing an anti-clgaret law, ward gang.

Why make all these laws, just to force young Americans to be- shall James C. Dahlman may run for a public office and still hold his come lawbreakers? America may be dry, but many job.

America may be dry, but many lob. Isn't there some kind of a a youngster who would have been restriction to that? Seems funny afraid to go into a saloon until he to me there hasn't been a little more had reached the age when he didn't said about that. And while I'm had reached the age when he didn't said about that. And while I'm care much for hard liquor, reaches writing to you, I want you to know eagerly and craftily for the moon- that none of the women in my neighshine And every time these High berhood will ever vote for him school boys take a drink "from the MRS. H. G. R.

Can Keep Up Lessons. B. C. M. writes: "I have a daugula was frequently found.

A very large part of the sick-ly children had scaphoid scap-

Children with certain inheri-

more

ted diseases and defects general-

Harnessing Science and Industry.

No recent invention appeals to the imagination with the force of the reported discovery of a metal lighter than steel and yet strong and tough. The Germans hit upon this secret alloy during the war and used the composition for the framework of their Zeppelins, but no other nation was able to produce it until now the problem has been solved by researches conducted in a steel mill at Pittsburgh,

The first thought of the average man is that this might enable the weight of automobiles to be cut down, with the consequent saving in power and gasoline. Railroad men may wonder if it can be used to lighten the weight of their equipment. In thousands of ways a decrease in the weight of metal machine parts would be of immense advantage. The immediate effect concerns only the giant dirigible balloon which is being built for the government, but it is more than possible that the product will have itts peace time uses greater than those of war. The progress of aviation is not entirely a military matter, and if by the use of this light metal dirigible balloons are able to be improved, this single item would assure the value of the discovery.

The Germans, driven by the necessity which is proverbially, the mother of invention, first found this alloy, but great credit is nevertheless due the American scientists who found it for themselves. Research of this nature until late years was neglected in the United States, while Germany devoted the greatest attention to harnessing science to its industries. Now in a number of technical schools the great manufacturing corporations are paying for the education of chemists and engineers and financing their experiments in order to be sure of keeping abreast of the rest of the world in just such things as this.

Billion Eat Billion.

The jingle of B. L. T., written at the close of the war, in which he remarked, "We've paid our debt to LaFayette," and inquired who else we owed, is called into doubt by the latest sensation in France, where one Jean Barnard claims to have discovered that America never reimbursed the French nation for aid and loans made during the Revolutionary war. M. Bernard also claims that part of the purchase price of Louisiana also has not been paid, and these claims have even been discussed in the French Chamber of Deputies.

Paris newspaper estimates that the United much comfort in the moonshine.

closer attention to the lesser crime. Wholesale murder will undoubtedly be dealt with sternly by the law, and maybe that same law may be brought to deal more sternly with the peonage proposition. One of the greatest of all the problems of the south has been that of labor, and laws that deal with it have been generally framed on a basis that gives the least of thought to the worker and lays greatest stress on the necessity for securing a certain amount of work from every individual. Harsh laws define vagrancy, and conviction on such a charge is followed by enforced labor, the contract system prevailing yet in some localities. It was so that the negro might be kept from idleness that these measures were at first adopted, but they have proven a source of profit, and have been extended until the white man suffers from them as well as the black.

On the other hand, the peonage laws were set up to give the man not under sentence of vagrancy and willing to work some protection from the oppression the greedy were wont to visit on the ignorant. Out of the present instance may well come such a discussion as will effect the situation in the south to where more humane and worthy methods will be adopted for handling the labor problem down there.

Quest for the Odorless Pig.

Esthetes of Lansing, Mich., stimulated by Henry Ford's mechanical cow, are now casting about to locate an odorless pig. They are a thrifty lot up there, and want to use the garbage collected to produce pork by feeding it to pigs in a municipal piggery. But, the odor! No need to tell certain Omaha folks about that. Similar experiments carried on here have come to a sudden end, merely because the residents could not abide the smell that came yelling up from the piggery, although we have not yet generally adapted that word for local service.

We would like to suggest to the Lansingiles that they are going about the quest from the wrong end. What they should seek is the odorless garbage; the pig in general is not an unsavory animal. Take him as he is reared in Nebraska, under the clean sky, the happy denizen of broad meadows or carefully devised "hog lots," and his porcine presence is more an inspiration than a menace. If he suggests odor at all, it is that of crackling bacon or sputtering ham, sizzling sausage or savory chop, a fragrance that not only ravishes the sense of smell but delights the whole soul of man with such promise of gustatory joy as only can be experienced by the hungry-man when he senses the presence of the dainty, delectable food through its heralding smell.

However, if the fastidious Michiganders feel they can be satisfied only by the deodorized pig. we suggest to them they do not carry their experiment too far, or they may deprive themselves of the purpose of their quest. Other, ways to dispose of the accumulations of household refuse may be found (Omaha still needs information on this point), and pigs may be raised successfully and never taste the garbage gathered by a city. but no way is known of depriving a pig sty of the scent imparted to it by the persistent use of sour swill.

The Omaha man who explained that his mash was for the use of a sick pig perhaps referred to By compounding the interest on these items, one of those poor, sightless ones that find so German burglars face a new obstacle in the strongbox which a Berlin inventor has just placed on the market. The portable steel box is equipped with an alarm which can be set before he lid is closed.

When the box is lifted or moved ever so lightly the alarm sounds and can be stopped only by unlocking the box and adjusting the mechanism which controls the buzzer.

Hotel guests are buying the strongbox and lacing it against their doors at night, or setting on luggage which they wish to protect. The boxes are produced in various sizes and with alarms varying in strength from an ordinary buzzer to a fire alarm gong.

Paris March 28 .- To mark the place where he German advance in the spring of 1918 was stopped it is proposed to crect pyramids along the entire front beearing the inscription: "Here was arrested the rush of the barbarians." The number of pyramids and the places where they are to be erected will shortly be determined by Marshal Petain.

Taxing Vocational Students

Now the 100,000 ex-soldiers in the United states who are taking vocational training are inormed that they must pay an income tax on the maintenance compensation they receive from the overnment while under instruction. This is not all they must pay. A tax is even demanded on the tuition the government pays for them at educational institutions and on the books, materials and appliances furnished them free of charge. Of course, congress has passed no law utilizing such an extraordinary source of revenue. The congress which exempted its own members from special war taxation until the war was virtually over ould hardly invite the comparisons which a law of this sort would make inevitable. That the tax gatherer is sent in pursuit of the vocational sindents is due to the fact that the bureaus at Washington have been legislating again.

The most remarkable feature of this attempt to raise revenue from the government's students, which comes about by reason of a ruling by the internal revenue commissioner, is the assumption that the books, tools and other educational facilities "become the property of the recipients." the voucher which the student is compelled to give when he obtains these necessary things specifically sets forth that they are "the property of the Vocational Training board," are subject the orders of that board and must be returned when training is discontinued. The entire ruling seems ungenerous, arbitrary and unwarranted. If desperately wounded ex-soldier requires hos pital treatment with the continuous attention of light and day nurses, would the entire sum representing the cost of his care be credited to him as income and taxed? Some degree of disability incurred in the service is necessary to eligibility as a vocational training student. They are as much wards of the government as hospital patients: vocational training supplements hospital treatment. The ordinary citizen is not taxed on gifts made him. Why should these men be taxed on gifts from the government? Why, particu-larly, should they be taxed on the $3,000,000 larly. worth of books already furnished them when the books are only borrowed?-St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Chinese Revere Print.

To destroy a newspaper, even though it is a week old, shows, in the opinions of the Chinese, a gross lack of character; to crumple a printed ivertisement shows the haste of unreason; to toss a book carelessly on the floor shows a tendency toward violence; to tear a printed page shows that you are mentally deficient. It is a sad commentary on the quality of much of our reading that we of the western world, where illiteracy is rare, have so little reverence for the printed page .- Chicago Iournal.

showing the mental ages of the American population. The conclusions that some of the students of the statistics draw from them are enough to convince the pessimistic that human progress must come to a standstill

Volumes have been written about the government's psychological ex-periments with the men of the army. One of the commentators announces that the tests indicate that 70 per cent of the people of the United States have a mental age of less than 15 years. He wants to know if we can hope to have a successful democracy where the aver-age mentality is 13. He reveals in figures by means of which the great number of men described as posess ing C-minus intellects are compared with the select few who form the band after the letter A.

It would be very depressing were t not for the fact that we are all familiar with what those mentally year-old boys did on the battlefields of France. It is not forgotten that the speed with which those sychological infants, taken from civil life, were transformed into soldiers amaged the world. When sensible folk are told that the American people, or 70 per cent of them, will never grow up, and that this sad prediction is based on army tests, the sensible folk are likely to receive the news with derision. They are not alarmed about the perpetuity of American institutions. They know that the government at Washington will still live long after the gloomy deductions from the figures made by the psychologists have been forgotten.

Thousands of Bundles of Spring Cleaning Work Are Due to Arrive at This Plant About Now-

And do you realize how you could help to relieve this congestion by sending in your cleaning work a little before you actually need it?

Even a few days, a day, or even a few hours' leeway helps greatly when the annual spring rush is on.

Thanks. Phone Tyler 0345 or "South 0050" if you are a South Sider.

DRESHER BROTHERS Cleaners--Dyers 2211-17 Farnam St.

to get just the quality and pattern in Carpets you have been looking for. From the lowerpriced Brussels and Velvets to the all-wool worsted Wiltons, in all the popular patterns, colors and shades-in fact, here you will find suitable Carpets for any room in the Home, as well as Carpets for Halls, Lodges, Churches, etc. This is your opportunity. -Advertisement

Blended with this professional ability and dependable business policy is a genuine recognition of the

It is our effort that in coming to the Hoffmann

Funeral Home sorrow

shall NOT be intensified.

meaning of sorrow.

Home Builders' securities before April 1. Real Estate Mortgage Securities moned and administered by -Home BuilderS C.C. SHIMER, President G. A. ROHRBOUGH, Sec.-Trees. Assets Over $1.400,000 Call and talk the matter over American Security Co., AGENTS Dodge, at 18th Douglas 5013

Exclusive Service in Undertaking For Poor and Rich

There is a quality to the service rendered by the Hoffmann Funeral Home that characterizes it as unique in Omaha and distinct from the commonplace.

It is this individuality that prompts persons of wealth to choose us and encourages the poor to know that here all will be provided in the time of need.

More important than the ample physical equipment of this establishment — which is well known—there is an atmosphere of truth and frankness that brings people here. Our confidence in our ability to perform begets confidence in those we would serve.

Our accomplishments of yesterday are the criterion of our capabilities for tomorrow.

